Hotels, Union Accept U.S. Bid to Strike Parley Today

Early Settlement Is Predicted After Building Council Supports Walkout

Deadlocked and steadily gathering support from other labor organizations, the eight-day-old strike of hotel service employes appeared near solution last night after both sides agreed to meet Labor Department conciliators today at 10 a. m.

Developments in the strike, which has surrounded 13 large hotels with picket lines when negotiations for new contracts with service employes and bartenders stalled on the question of a closed shop, were:

The Building Trades Council and Yeast Workers Local No. 49 joined painters in refusing to cross the picket lines. Plumbers, carpenters and painters were called out and beer was not to be hauled to the hotels in licensed trucks after yesterday, Harry J. Thompson business agent for the brewery workers, said from his bed in Mount Alto Hospital, where he is under treatment.

The executive board of the Washington League of Women Shoppers voted yesterday to support the strike, according to Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, president.

The White House Correspondents Association called off its annual banquet, set for Saturday at the Mayflower. Officers of the association said the banquet was canceled to "avoid embarrassment" to President Roosevelt, who was to have been guest of honor.

Echoes in Congress

Echoes of the strike resounded in Congress when New Deal members were accused of "sneaking" in and out of their strike-bound hotels. Representative Hoffman (Republican), Michigan, wondered in a speech in the House if Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, father of the labor act, actually "sneaked" out of his hotel.

Wagner left the Mayflower by a side entrance Wednesday, but was understood yesterday to have moved to another hotel.

Although all dining rooms closed Wednesday for lack of help were open yesterday, crowds were reported to be meager. At all affected hotels, functions scheduled for the week-end were transferred to others not being picketed.

Conference Bid Accepted

Both Samuel Levine, attorney for the unions, and Joseph C. McGarraghy, attorney for the hotels, accepted a conference invitation from J. R. Steelman, director of conciliation at the Department of Labor.

"I sent Mr. Steelman a telegram saying we are anxious to take any steps which will bring about a settlement," McGarraghy said.

Levine announced that union representatives will be on hand at this morning's conference "ready and willing" to listen to any proposals which would end the strike.

"Public Interest" Cited

In inviting the union and hotel factions to meet at the Labor Department, Steelman declared:

"Since the present hotel controversy has become a matter of extensive public interest and it is our firm belief that further joint conferences between the disputants may not be unavailing, pursuant to statutory authority vested in the Department of Labor, I respectfully requested representatives from both sides and officials of this department to meet in room 3229 at the Department of Labor Building at 10 a. m. March 10."

Numerous minor clashes between pickets and so-called strikebreakers kept police on the jump throughout yesterday. Four men, armed with knives, bottles and rocks, were arrested while attempting to pass

Brazil Pact Insures Pay for U. S. Goods

Export-Import Bank Loan to 'Unfreeze' Commercial Debts; Agreement Held Severe Blow to Nazi Aspirations

By Felix Cotten,
Post Staff Writer

Brazil's practice of keeping exporters in this country waiting while she paid debts incurred elsewhere will be abandoned under a commercial agreement between the two countries announced yesterday by the State Department, it was learned last night.

Meanwhile, the United States Government, through the Export-Import Bank, will advance loans up to $19,200,000 for a two-year period at 3.6 per cent interest to pay off a log-jam of commercial debts owed this country's exporters.

Brazil's willingness to discontinue a practice which United States exporters have complained of, it is said, is the basis for the department's announcement that Brazil will free her foreign exchange. After the Export-Import Bank "unfreezes" American commercial debts, it is reported Brazil will keep them paid up.

Brazil, it was learned, has incurred a substantial debt to England by having British shipyards build war vessels for her.

After this Government's offer of a year ago to lease destroyers to Brazil fell through as a result of Argentine objections, Brazil decided to build a navy of her own. British shipyards obtained a large part of the business, it is reported.

Brazil's trade with the United States is decidedly in her favor. Her trade with England, however, is in England's favor. What has happened, according to authoritative sources, is that Brazil has diverted credits obtained by sale of coffee and other materials to this country to pay for armaments obtained from England.

This is said to be contrary to the Griffenhagen Opposition Held Political

Commissioners Seek To Protect Jobs, Kennedy Asserts

By James D. Secrest.

Chairman Kennedy, of the House Subcommittee on District Reorganization, last night assailed the Commissioners' substitute plan to the Griffenhagen suggestions as "haphazard, ill conceived, and marked by whim and caprice."

He charged the District heads with seeking to protect their own jobs and with currying favor with other officials who might help them retain the status quo.

Kennedy, who sponsored the reorganization study by Griffenhagen & Associates, challenged the statement of the District heads that their proposal would save taxpayers $150,000 a year and said it would leave most of the District administration "in the mess in which it now is."

Kennedy accused the District heads of being unduly sensitive in assuming that the report had been directed expressly at the part of the District government under their control.

"The report makes clear," he said, "that it is the entire aggregation of Federal, District and non-descript, independent agencies, that is under criticism, and not just that part that is directly under the Commissioners.

The Commissioners assume that Congress would not delegate to any

Dirksen Opens Fight Against Sales Levy

Congressman Favors Graduated Income Tax for District

A renewed fight to substitute a graduated personal income tax for the combined income-sales levy proposed by the Citizens Tax Advisory Committee will be made by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, he disclosed yesterday following the first public hearing on the $13,000,000 District tax program.

Dirksen, ranking minority member of the sub-committee, said he agreed with Chairman Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, that there is little need for extended public hearings, as the ground was covered fully last fall in hearings conducted by the Citizens Committee.

Bill Must Be Rewritten

"We're going to have to sit down in executive session and rewrite the tax bill anyway," he said.

Reiterating his approval of an outright income tax in lieu of the dual levy proposed by Dr. Chester B. Pond, tax specialist, Dirksen said he could see no justification for starting the income tax at $14.000 as proposed in the Pond report.

Meanwhile, a meeting of the Citizens Tax Advisory Committee was called for this afternoon after L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations and a member of the committee, complained that he had not been consulted with regard to changes made in the tax legislation.

Lists Committeemen

Jo V. Morgan, sole member of the Board of Tax Appeals, stated that he had drafted the changes, chiefly administrative in character, at the direction of a committee of District officials, all of whom are members of the advisory committee.

The committee, he said, comprised Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, chairman of the advisory group; Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, Richmond B. Keech, of the Public Utilities Commission, and Fred Allen, tax assessor.

Morgan also, with authorization of this committee, conferred with income tax lawyers and Colin F. Stam, general counsel of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, who supervised the general tax study.

"I thereafter submitted the redraft to the committee, who, with the exception of Mr. Seal, spent the entire day going over the draft," Morgan said. "Every change or improvement or addition was approved by the entire committee, except

Alley Cat Inherits $5,000 and May Get $50,000

New York, March 9 (U.P.).—It was a lucky night for Tommy Tucker, an alley cat, when he scampered out of the rain four years ago and into the kitchen of Miss Louise Baier.

Miss Baier's will, filed today, names Tommy as heir to a $5,000 trust fund, and possible heir to a $50,000 trust fund, which he will receive if the beneficiaries refuse the terms.

Miss Baier left an estate valued at from $250,000 to $350,000. The bequest to Tommy provides he be cared for by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and housed in the Ellen French Speyer Hospital.

Both the Speyer Hospital and the society will receive one-sixth of the estate if they will care for Tom.

Woman G. O. P. Leader Beaten To Death in Long Island Home

By the Associated Press.

Mineola, N. Y., March 9.—Miss Louise McKee, 55-year-old Republican politician, was found dead late today in her Long Island home, her skull crushed. The furniture gave evidence of a struggle preceding death.

Inspector Harold R. King, head of Nassau County detectives, said Miss McKee had been dead three or four days. Neighbors noticed an accumulation of milk bottles and newspapers on the porch of the house she occupied alone and notified her brother, Charles, deputy county assessor and a county Republican leader.

Gaining entrance by breaking down a door, he found the body on the floor of the living room.

Miss McKee, generally known as Lulu instead of Louise, was Republican county committeewoman and a clerk employed at North Hempstead town hall.

Inspector King said later that robbery apparently was the motive. No money or valuables of any kind were found in the house, he said, nor was the death weapon.

He added the slain woman made it a habit to admit only persons she knew to her home. The door had not been forced, and police said lights had burned day and night in the house since last Sunday.

Neighbors told police they saw a man they thought was known to Miss McKee, in the vicinity of her home last Saturday, about 24 hours before the time detectives believe she was slain.

Counter-Revolt Grows

By the United Press.

Madrid, March 9.—Gen. Jose Miaja's "peace" regime announced late tonight its bombing planes, tanks and artillery had attained all main objectives in a "terrible battle" against Communist-led rebels in Madrid, but the counter-revolt appeared to be spreading over a wider area of Republican Spain.

Communist headquarters in Madrid, which enlisted factions of the Republican army in its rebellion against Miaja's appeals for "peace with honor," was reported to have surrendered and turned over 1,400 prisoners.

Planes Bomb Rebels

The surrender, which Miaja's defense council described as a prelude to "complete liquidation" of the revolt, came after the streets of the capital resounded to the roar of loyalist planes bombing entrenched rebels in the outlying districts of Canillejas, Ciudad Lineal, Chamartin and Barrajo.

Miaja moved an entire army corps into the capital from the fighting lines in an effort to beat down the revolt before Generalissimo Franco ordered his nationalist troops to attack the stricken city.

At the French frontier it was reported Franco, whose troops occupied the lines abandoned by the loyalist soldiers who were moved into Madrid, might order an assault upon the terrorized capital "at any hour."

Communists Gaining Ground

In the Ciudad Real sector, south of Madrid, the Communist rebels appeared to be gaining ground. The military governor there appealed to Miaja for bombing planes to rout the extremists, who were said to have seized the arsenal.

At Almeria, on the southern coast, the Communists were reported to have seized strategic points in the town, including the radio station.

Barricades and tanks appeared in the streets of Valencia, where it was feared the Communists might attack in full force if routed from Madrid. Fighting was reported earlier from the Valencia suburb of Albal.

Roosevelt To Ask New Canal Locks

Sought for Defense; Second Waterway Through Mexico or Nicaragua Rejected

Protest to Japan

Plans for Panama

Construction of a third set of locks for the Panama Canal will soon be proposed by the Administration, officials said yesterday as it was revealed that President Roosevelt has turned down a plan to build a second oceanic canal through either Nicaragua or Mexico.

Studies of the cost of expanding the capacity of the present canal, key link in the American defense system, are nearing completion, officials stated, with a favorable report from the Army Engineers assured. Earlier estimates of the cost of the project, under contemplation for years, ranged up to $300,000,000.

Hull Gives President's View

Hearings on the expansion program legislation are to start next week before the House Merchant Marine Committee.

Reporting the Administration's stand, Secretary of State Hull said the President opposed the Nicaraguan and Mexican plans while the Panama project "was still under consideration." Another official source said the latter plan would be approved.

Presumably referring to diplomatic difficulties with Mexico resulting from the confiscation of American oil properties south of the Rio Grande, Hull said that "for various reasons, not necessary to elaborate" the State Department believed the Mexican canal proposal should not be considered "at this time." The Army also was represented as opposing as "impracticable" the Mexican Canal, which would lie across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

May Speaks for Army

Meanwhile, conferees on the Army expansion bill were told that a Senate amendment denying armament contracts to firms not complying with the national labor relations act would jeopardize the entire re-armament program.

Secretary of War Woodring notified the group that the Barkley amendment requiring him to judge whether bidders are interfering with employes' right to organize, might bog down the whole defense program in labor disputes.

Chamberlain Plans World Arms Meeting

May Invite U. S. to Conference Seeking to Halt Air Force Race; Britain Spends Million a Day

By Frank R. Kelley
Special Cable to The Post.

London, March 9.—As the next major step in his program of appeasement, Prime Minister Chamberlain intends to invite the major European powers and perhaps the United States to a disarmament conference before the end of next summer, in an effort to halt the competition in armies, navies and air forces, it was made known on the highest authority today.

[These developments followed the disclosure today that Britain, engaged in her greatest peace-time rearmament program, was spending more than $1,000,000 a day for airplanes alone and expects to have 2,250 first line fighting planes by April 1, the Associated Press said.—Editors note.]

Official quarters in London believe peace in Spain is not far off and that Italy's claims against France in Tunis, Djibouti and the Suez Canal, can be settled this spring without war. Once these two major obstacles to European peace were removed, then it is understood, Chamberlain would feel justified in launching his initiative for an arms conference in London.

It is believed United States Ambassador Kennedy has already been approached by Chamberlain or his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, with a request to obtain President Roosevelt's views on the matter.

At least Kennedy has been made aware, since his return from the United States three weeks ago, of the sudden optimism with which Chamberlain and the rest of his cabinet now regard the international situation.

Chamberlain's first goal at the conference would be to obtain limitation of air forces. This is obviously the most difficult aspect of the

Pedestrian Control Begins In Earnest Now

Jaywalkers Face Anything From Frown to $300 Fine

The rehearsal period is over, and today Washington's new pedestrian control laws formally go into effect. For three weeks, policemen in the role of "teacher," have been trying to convert jaywalkers into careful pedestrians. Today the penalty for jaywalking jumps from a bluecoat's frown of disapproval to a fine ranging from $1 to $300.

However, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, said last night that his men will continue to emphasize "protection" above "control."

Arrests "in Extremities"

Pedestrians will be arrested, Brown said, only in "extreme cases." The definition of this will be left to the policeman. It was suggested that an extreme case might be that of a jaywalker who gets nasty and insists on ignoring the officer's efforts to keep him out of the path of death.

During the trial period cases were reported in which pedestrians—particularly women—became "sassy" with policemen who sought to regulate them at crossings.

Maj. Brown said he has only enough men to regulate pedestrian traffic at the principal downtown intersections. Most of the traffic casualties from jaywalking have been in the residential sections.

The Do's and Don't's

Here are the "do's and don'ts" embodied in the new pedestrian control laws:

Don't cross in the middle of blocks when a vehicle is approaching close enough to "constitute a hazard."

Don't disobey any direction of a policeman, who now has "full power to regulate and control traffic."

You have the right of way over right and left turning vehicles when crossing on a proper signal.

You may complete your crossing if a changing light catches you in the center of an intersection.

Wait for the green light—don't start on the amber.

Obey all "walk" lights.

Pedestrian control regulations were adopted after long and sometimes bitter discussion. Action was taken after hearings by the District Commissioners at which many civic organizations were represented.

Drastic Curb Announced on WPA Politics

Harrington Warns Of 33% Cut Unless Congress Votes Cash

Drastic curtailment of political activities of WPA employes was announced by Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, yesterday, soon after he had stated "serious reductions" in relief rolls will be necessary unless Congress votes an additional $150,000,000 appropriation before the end of the month.

Foreshadowing an expected Presidential request for supplemental WPA funds Monday, Col. Harrington envisaged a slash in WPA employment from 3,000,000 to 2,000,000, if Congress persists in its refusal to allot WPA the full sum demanded by the President.

Col. Harrington, who said he told President Roosevelt the appropriation was needed to carry WPA through the current fiscal year, declared at a press conference that even if the $150,000,000 is granted, WPA rolls will have to be cut at the rate of 150,000 a month, as originally contemplated.

After President Roosevelt in January had asked a total of $875,000,000 to sustain WPA through June 30, Congress voted $725,000,000 for the purpose, with an "invitation" to the President to ask for more if necessary. He requested restoration of the $150,000,000 slash almost immediately, but Congress thus far has failed to respond.

The third WPA message, scheduled for Monday, will probably be

Senate Group Acts to Curtail U. S. Franking

A saving of $15,000,000 and drastic curtailment of free distribution through the mails of Government publications was written into the $1,700,000,000 Treasury-Postoffice supply bill yesterday

Sponsored by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, the amendment would prevent transportation of Government publications through the mails under frank "unless they are being sent in response to a request or transmission is required by law."

O'Mahoney said transmission of free matter through the mails for executive agencies had increased from $8,537,730 in 1928 to $35,690,880 in 1938, while matter mailed by members of Congress under frank had decreased from $909,864 to $779,254 in the same period.

Leaders Put Business Tax Revision Up To President

Congress, Treasury Spokesmen Confer At White House; Economy Urged

By Robert C. Albright.

Without agreement on details, tax revision in the interest of business recovery and the need for parallel Federal economies were put plainly up to the President yesterday at a White House conference of Congressional and Treasury tax spokesmen.

Although no conclusions were reached, a new revenue bill designed to lighten business tax deterrents appeared definitely in the fiscal picture following Treasury analysis of March 15 tax returns.

Tax problems discussed with the President included projected repeal or modification of the capital stock tax, the excess profits tax and the undivided profits levy, and possible substitution of a single corporation tax with a partial shifting of the burden to other sources.

Parley "Harmonious"

While no specific action was taken, conferees reported there was no "friction" and termed the conference "harmonious." Other conferences will be called by the President as the tax deadline approaches.

"We are trying to get together on something constructive," Chairman Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, told reporters after the conference. Smiling slowly, the Mississippi leader of the new economy drive asked reporters not to press him too closely.

Attending the conference, besides Harrison, were Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Undersecretary of the Treasury John Hanes, known to favor the single business tax proposal, and Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of the House ways and means tax sub-committee.

President "Anxious to Cut"

Cooper echoed Harrison's view that the conference was "very harmonious," said business taxes were fully discussed without any effort to reach decisions, but declared he could recall no point on which there was disagreement. The Tennessean said he would call his tax sub-committee together as soon as the Treasury completes its tax studies.

Harrison said he presented "candidly and fully" his recently expressed views on the necessity for Government economy.

"The President was in thorough sympathy with the idea, if it can be done," Harrison said. "He realizes how difficult it is to cut expenditures, but he wants to run the Government as economically as possible."

Later he said "it appears that the President is anxious to cut where he can."

"Anything specific?" Harrison was asked.

"Don't ask me for details," he replied. "This is just the first conference. We are going to have more."

Tax Issue Waits Returns

On the subject of taxes, the Senate Finance chairman said the Treasury must wait on March 15 returns "so they can fix the rate necessary to maintain revenues."

"There is no desire to increase taxes but we have got to keep the amount of revenue we have," he said. Earlier at the White House he told reporters "we have got to do something this year with reference to the corporation tax."

Referring to recent conciliatory gestures to business by Secretary of Commerce Hopkins and Secretary Morgenthau, a reporter asked:

"Do you think the President is ready to make concessions to business?"

Again Harrison asked newsmen "not to press" him for "details."

"I think Mr. Hopkins has truly ex-

Income Excuses Get a Laugh—At the Taxpayers' Expense

If you're bowed down under the burden of compiling your annual income tax return, you should let the Bureau of Internal Revenue tell you about the woman who wanted exemption on a "facsimile" of her husband.

Every year Uncle Sam gets a lot of hearty laughs. Taxpayers visiting the bureau at Twelfth street and Constitution avenue at the rate of 3,000 a day now bring not a few laughs with them. Others arrive by mail at the Baltimore office and samples are on display at Treasury press headquarters.

Among the gems gleaned from the bureau's mail was one man's explanation of a mistake. "A few months ago," he wrote, "I was struck by an automobile and practically killed for days, and lost two months of time. It does seem that I make more mistakes since then, my main injury having been a fractured skull."

And the woman who sought credit for two thoroughbred dogs as dependents. One, she wrote, was "a facsimile of my darling husband."

A worried housewife: "I am the cook, laundress, barber, housecleaner, keep books in the winter, sell garden plants in the summer, can around 300 quarts of food, grandmother to ten, try to keep my temper down and keep the old man happy, and not trained for this job of bookkeeping, anyway. Whitney Asks Rank and File To Rule Labor

Brotherhood Head Urges Voice Vote to Choose Leaders

Cleveland, March 9 (AP).—The entire membership of the Congress of Industrial Organizations would return to the American Federation of Labor, and leadership would be decided "by bowing to the voice of the delegates" at the next A. F. of L. convention, under a peace plan proposed today by Alexander F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Whitney disclosed he made essentially the same proposal a year ago to William Green and John L. Lewis at separate conferences in Washington. Senators Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts; Schwellenback (Democrat), Washington, and Capper (Republican), Kansas, attended both conferences, he said.

Whitney incorporated the idea in an address at Minneapolis last April 30 and sent copies to Green and Lewis. He said Lewis replied "no one could take exception" to the address, and Green wrote "when those who left home return, the labor movement in America will again be united."

The brotherhood president urged today that jurisdictional claims be decided by "the rank and file themselves" in elections under the national labor relations act. He said also the A. F. of I. has "machinery which, generally speaking, is admirable to work out labor disputes."

"In the course of time overlapping unions would adjust themselves under the course of the law as to their respective units," said Whitney, New Deal supporter who accompanied President Roosevelt to the 1936 Inter-American Conference at Buenos Aires.

"It is a workable plan—a plan that will not embarrass either group."

Whitney's plan was injected into the current labor peace negotiations picture as Daniel J. Tobin, president of the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union, conferred privately with President Roosevelt. Negotiators for both peace factions looked, meanwhile, to their conference in New York tomorrow night.

Mr. Roosevelt saw Tobin separately because, said Secretary Perkins, Tobin was not present at the Tuesday meeting of the negotiators, when the President urged that every effort be made to establish harmony in organized labor.

Senator Smith Threatens Congress With 'Fool-Killer,' Loss of Quorums

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, believes a change in tactics is in order if he is to obtain Senate approval for his bill dealing with the cotton surplus.

SEN. SMITH

"It's time we started raising hell," Smith stormed at a public hearing on his bill late yesterday. "We'll never get anywhere by pussyfooting.

"We sit around here like a set of fools and let men write our laws who wouldn't know a stalk of cotton from a jimson weed or a cornstalk from a fishing pole."

"If a fool-killer ever comes around here there will never be a quorum in the Senate or the House."

Mistakenly listed as the "Speaker's messenger" in a widely distributed photograph of the House in action, Minority Leader Joseph Martin was given a thorough ribbing by his friends.

The picture was taken when Martin happened to use the messenger's chair which is situated on the left of the Speaker's rostrum. The mistake was made despite the fact that Martin was attired in formal clothes.

L. W. Robert, jr., secretary of the Democratic National Committee, was accused in a letter to President Roosevelt of lobbying in behalf of freight rate legislation sponsored by Southern States Congressmen.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, wrote the President:

"'I respectfully suggest that it is your duty, as titular head of your party, to see that the offices of the National Democratic Committee are not used to obtain passage of legislation which is bound to destroy all that you and our party in New York have worked so many years to achieve—the finest industrial standards in the whole world."

Granting of huge fees to lawyers for prosecuting claims of Indian tribes against the Federal Government was assailed in the House by Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, who said that in the last session of Congress $9,721,791 was appropriated to pay judgments in Indian cases. He said a total of $2,584,000,000 is involved in Indian claims now pending in courts. Two lawyers living here, he asserted, received $350,000 in the Klamath Indian case, while three Omaha lawyers and another District lawyer jointly received $424,190 in the Shoshone case.

Representative Sirovich (Democrat), of New York, introduced a bill that would increase bank deposit insurance limits from $5,000 to $10,000. Enactment of such legislation would save depositors, who desire protection of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the annoyance of distributing their bank deposits to obtain the $5,000 protection now obtainable at each bank, Sirovich said.

A joint Senate-House committee has greed on a $3,000,000 appropriation for eradication of grasshoppers and other farm pests. The House had voted $2,000,000 for the purpose and the Senate $5,417,000. The compromise allotment of $3,000,000 must be approved by both chambers.

The Gallup Poll

Revision of Wagner Act Favored by Public, With Only 1 Voter in 3 Content With Law

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 9.—A substantial majority of American voters with opinions on the Wagner labor act think the law should be revised or repealed at this time.

GALLUP

With agitation stirring in Congress to amend this controversial legislation, an American Institute of Public Opinion survey finds that approximately one-third of the voters with an opinion on the act think it should be left unchanged, while two-thirds want it amended or repealed outright. Although opposition has increased somewhat as compared to a year ago, there has been a slight trend in favor of the act in the last four months.

The Institute has taken three surveys of voting sentiment on the labor law, each time asking the same question:

"Do you think the Wagner labor act should be revised, repealed or left unchanged?"

May, 1938	43%	19%	38%
Nov., 1938	52	18	30
Today	48	18	34

If the votes for revision and repeal are combined, it appears that 66 per cent of persons with opinions on the act are dissatisfield with it today, against 34 per cent who want it left unchanged. Why has this dissatisfaction arisen?

The principal reason, judging by an analysis of voters' comments is a belief that the act discriminates against the employer. When those voters who favor revision were asked how the act should be revised, the majority wanted it to be made "fairer to the employer" and to place more responsibility on labor unions.

The group of voters who, on the other hand, favor outright repeal of the act give two main reasons for their opinion—first, that the act "stirs up labor trouble," and second, that it is not the Government's function to take a hand in labor squabbles.

Finally, those voters who want the act left unchanged say that if the labor unions like the law it should remain as it is. Many also argue that the present act should be tried out for a longer period before any changes are made.

Sentiment for repealing the act, the survey shows, is strongest among voters in the upper income levels, while sentiment for leaving it unchanged is most pronounced in the lower levels.

Less than one-fifth of the upper income voters, for example, want the act to remain unchanged, whereas a majority of 53 per cent in the lower income group think it is satisfactory now. A relatively small percentage of voters in the middle income group favor repeal; the preponderant sentiment of the group is for revision.

Upper Income Group	58%	25%	17%
Middle Income Group	51	18	31
Lower Income Group	34	13	53

The survey finds that the Wagner act is unpopular with many Democratic as well as Republican voters. More than eight out of every ten Republicans want it revised or repealed, and well over half of the Democrats express the same sentiment.

Democrats	45%	12%	43%

Howe Says 5 Firms Control Retail Prices And Farmer's Share

By the Associated Press.

Federal Trade Commission economists yesterday contended before the Monopoly Committee that "monopolistic control" by a few Nation-wide corporations had enabled distributors to collect an increasing share of the Nation's milk dollar at the expense of farmers and consumers.

Frederic C. Howe, who directed the commission's presentation of testimony, told the committee that entrance of "big business" into the dairying industry about 15 years ago had brought lower prices for milk or the farm and higher prices for the consumer.

Charges Domination

He named the National Dairy Products Company and the Borden Company as the two principal corporations who "with three other big companies and the meat packers of Chicago dominate this industry if they do not pretty completely control it."

Howe presented a table to show that in 1923, when these companies were said to have started acquiring pasteurizing plants and distributing systems, the farmer's share in the consumer's dollar was 52 cents, compared with 35 cents in 1933.

In the same period, he said, the distributor's share rose proportionately.

Commenting on Howe's testimony, Dr. Edward Fisher Brown, executive vice president of the Milk Research Council, Inc., said in a statement at New York.

"If the economic welfare of the $2,000,000,000 dairy industry was not of such great importance to consumers and especially farmers, the testimony of Dr. Howe might well be called 'Howe's Comedy of Errors.'

Proof Held Lacking

"The numerous governmental inquiries have yet to disclose a milk monopoly."

Howe contended that the development of pasteurization was the "strategic turning point in the dairy industry" because it took distributing out of the hands of farmers and placed it under the domination of corporations owning pasteurizing plants.

In a few localities where dependent distributors sell milk through stores, Howe said, consumer's prices tend to be lower and farm prices higher.

"Powerful milk companies and their allies, Howe told the committee, "determine what 70,000,000 people shall pay for their milk as what 3,000,000 farmers who produce it shall receive for their labor.

Howe said the National Dairy Products Corporation had received a return of more than 13 per cent on its invested capital in 1930, 1931 and 1932, while many other corporations were suffering heavy losses.

Fine Arts Body Opposes Design Of Memorial

Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, minority leader, yesterday expressed willingness to reconsider the design chosen for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial.

An appeal for a restudy was transmitted to Congress yesterday by the Fine Arts Commisison. Senator McNary is a member of the memorial commission, which approved the pantheon-type design over objections of the arts group.

The Senator said he had not yet received a copy of the commission's report but reiterated his opposition to the Tidal Basin site which was chosen for the marble memorial and where foundation operations are nearing completion.

"In the judgment of the Commission of Fine Arts it is not too late to make a restudy of the design for the memorial in a manner to fit the foundations that are already under construction," Chairman Gilmore D. Clarke said in his letter accompanying the report.

The commission met in New York yesterday and presumably discussed the memorial project.

"Such change in the design, omitting the dome and providing for an open circular colonnade of approximately the same dimensions in plan as the proposed pantheon, would provide a memorial structure of greater freshness and insure uniformly satisfactory materials of construction," Clarke said.

The commission chairman said the $3,000,000 authorized will prove insufficient to provide an entire marble interior, which would bring about a situation "exceedingly unfortunate, resulting in a lowering of the standards for great memorials erected in the National Capital."

The report charges:

That the memorial commission failed to solicit the Fine Arts Comsion's advice before announcing its approval of the site and design in February, 1937.

That the late Representative John J. Boylan, of New York, chairman of the memorial group, misrepresented the arts commission's position in his speeches to the House.

That Representative Boylan also misrepresented the position taken by Charles Moore, then chairman of the Fine Arts Commission.

Clip Service Keeps George VI Informed on U. S. Opinion

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 9.—The King and Queen of England are finding out what America has to say about the visit they will make here next June.

A newspaper clipping service is collecting comments and articles for their majesties by order of the Canadian Legation in Washington.

Apparently those who would appraise the royal couple of reaction in this country are not concerned with the thousands of small town and country newspapers. The order is for clippings from the 25 largest cities only.

The clipping business—just 60 years old—is perhaps a critique on the art of propaganda. In 1879, the Count Chambure of France, a music lover who decided all the artists he idolized could not possibly see all the mentions made of them in public prints, started the first clipping service. It began with 15 papers and now checks through 20,000 for mentions of clients.

60 Girls Carry On

Frank Burrelle was an unemployed newspaperman in New York 50 year ago when he overheard a distinguished citizen remark he hadn't seen an article about himself in the newspapers of the previous day. To begin the industry in the United States, Burrelle got a few clipping papers for that individual.

Sixty girls of high school training—mostly in their 'teens—now carry on where the late Burrelle left off. They scan through 4,000 newspapers and magazines each day, looking for pictures and mentions of clients in ads and news columns. The company gets a nickel for each clipping.

Each girl is expected to memorize the names of 10,000 subjects.

"It sounds like a terrific memory job," said Harold E. Wynne, now head of the company. "But as a daily routine they soon know them all."

Roosevelt Has Own

President Roosevelt and a few big industrial concerns have their own clipping services. Many manufacturers subscribe for clippings, Wynne said, in order to watch for thefts of their trade marks or contractual violations, such as cutting of prices for their products in distant towns.

Brenda Frazier, New York glamour girl, is a subscriber although her mother insists they want to avoid publicity. Mrs. Anthony J. D. Biddle, Eileen Balfe, the distillery heiress, and other society folk have become leading customers.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York saves money by subscribing only for "original references"—no press service dispatches which are duplications—but he got about 3,000 clips monthly during the James J. Hines trial at $150 per month.

Cost Runs High

Jack Benny, George Burns and Phil Baker pay the heaviest tolls—they get about 1,000 mentions a month ($50), said Wynne. Sometimes amazed celebrities balk when the clipping bill starts running high. Elaine Barrie, wife of John Barrymore, canceled an order for this reason shortly after their marriage. Many subscribers decline one-line or other brief mentions.

Mae West wanted only 100 clips on her recent New York visit—the rest didn't interest her. But Gov. Richard W. Leche of Louisiana wants all he can get.

Acid Treatment Of Pyorrhea Is Described

Brush Boiled Often Called Safest for Teeth

Dr. Thompson demonstrated how persons afflicted with even a severe case can be cured "absolutely without pain."

The affected areas of the mouth are treated with trichloracetic acid, or as it is more commonly known, glacial acetic acid. The acid was described as a pain killer as well as an erosive for the removal of the affective tissue.

This is only the start in a permanent cure of the disease, he said. The most important thing is to keep the teeth clean. He said the most common error is the use of a hard brush.

"Get the softest brush available," he said, "and then place that in boiling water to soften it even more.

Prizes for the best clinical display were awarded to dental assistants at a tea, at which Mrs. Eva B. Carrico, vice president of the District of Columbia Dental Assistants, presided. Her assistants were Mrs. Julia Schuett, Miss Anne Howe and Miss Charlotte Moore.

Miss Retta Amatucci and Miss Harriet Buchenhorst, of the Philadelphia Dental Nurses' Association, won first honors.

Second prize went to Mrs. Carrie Mecereaux, of the District Association, and third prize was won for a skit in which Margaret Hummer, Dorothy Monoghan, Elizabeth Kirk, Merle Shelton and Beatrice V. Butler, all of the local organization, appeared.

Bowers Here to See Roosevelt On Recognition of Franco

Ambassador to Spain Also to Consult State Department Officials; Describes Plight Of Thousands of Refugees in France

By the Associated Press.

Claude G. Bowers, American Ambassador to Spain, came to the Capital last night to report to President Roosevelt and the State Department.

Out of his consultations may come a decision whether the Administration is to recognize the government of General Franco at this time. It was learned he will not be sent back to Spain. A new ambassador will be named when the question of recognition is straightened out.

Bowers, on arrival in New York, described as extremely pitiful the plight of seyeral hundred thousand Spanish refugees in France. At the State Department yesterday an official said the largest number of such refugees the United States could receive was 252, this being the annual immigration quota from Spain.

Ambassador Bullitt, in Paris, was asked by the French government yesterday whether the United States could assist in taking over some of the refugees. On instructions from the State Department, he was obliged to give the above answer.

President Threatened, Man Gets Prison Term

Tucson, Ariz., March 9 (AP).—An unmailed letter containing a threat to throw acid in President Roosevelt's face brought a one year's prison sentence today to Benjamin W. Kitchener, 59, a native of Germany. He was convicted in Federal Court.

Kitchener addressed the letter to the President and Harry Hopkins after he became disgruntled over inability to obtain relief.

Franco Warned On Attacking British Ships

Halifax Says Navy Will Answer General's Sink-at-Sight Order

By Thomas C. Watson

International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, March 9.—British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax tonight bluntly told Gen. Franco that any attack without warning on a ship flying the Union Jack inside or outside Spain's territorial waters would be answered by British naval gunfire.

In a significant address before the House of Lords, Halifax also cautioned Rome and Berlin that if Gen. Franco's foreign military forces are not withdrawn from Spain at the conclusion of the civil war "a very serious situation would arise."

Food Ship Runs Blockade

While news reached London that the British food ship Stangate had successfully run Franco's naval blockade, arriving at Valencia, Lord Halifax, referring to Franco's order to sink such ships within the 3-mile limit, asserted:

"Instructions have been given to His Majesty's ships, charging them to give all necessary protection to vessels which might be objects of attacks and to retaliate even inside territorial waters against any submarine taking such indefensible action."

It was not so much Franco's blockade in itself that perturbed the British government, but reports the general had ordered his navy to "sink at sight" any ships that might attempt to penetrate the three-mile limit off Spanish shores.

Pointing out that Britain, while recognizing Gen. Franco's government, has not accorded him belligerent rights, Lord Halifax remarked:

"I must also make it perfectly clear that His Majesty's government would regard as a very serious matter the sinking of any British merchant vessel even within territorial waters, especially if due warning is not given or adequate steps taken for the safety of the crew."

The foreign secretary's words were not taken to mean, however, that blockade-running vessels will have British naval protection in territorial waters in the event they are attacked with due warning and after prior measures for the safe guarding of their crews.

The foreign secretary said the British government has confidence in Franco's assurances he will exact no mass reprisals and therefore feels the evacuation of thousands of loyalist sympathizers by British ships is not necessary.

He said, however, that any Spanish political leaders whose lives may be in danger would be evacuated safely if they manage to reach British warships at Spanish ports. He further announced Britain is making a "substantial contribution" to France to help pay for the upkeep of Spanish refugees in that country.

Dubinsky 'Tired' Of Denying Report Of Loan to Martin

New York, March 9 (AP).—David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said tonight he was "getting pretty tired of denying" reports he loaned $25,000 to the Homer Martin faction of the United Automobile Workers of America.

The report popped up again today in a statement by R. J. Thomas, president of the U. A. W. A., who charged Dubinsky with "meddling" in his union's affairs.

"Mr. Martin has never asked our union for money for his union, and we have never given him any," said Dubinsky. "If sending a telegram of greetings to a labor convention, hoping for a united automobile workers' union and urging labor unity, constitutes an act of meddling, I can assure Mr. Thomas that in case he invites me to address his own convention I shall send him a similar message."

President Gets Rublee Report On Refugees

George Rublee, who has resigned as director of the Intergovernmental Committee on Political Refugees, made an optimistic report to President Roosevelt yesterday on prospects for the orderly emigration of Jews from Germany.

Accompanied by Undersecretary of State Welles, Rublee called at the White House to report on his conferences with Nazi officials during a visit to Germany in January and February.

"I was glad," Ruble said, "that what I was able to tell him was of an encouraging nature.

"From my conversations with officials of the German government, and from other information in my possession, I am convinced that the German government is prepared to take definite measures to transform the present chaotic conditions of exodus from Germany into conditions of orderly emigration.

"Naturally," he continued, "I do not mean to imply that conditions will become ideal overnight. Nevertheless, despite recent press reports which at first sight appear discouraging, I am firmly convinced that orderly emigration can be carried out and that persons awaiting emigration will receive better treatment than heretofore."

Affairs Committee, presented a memorandum from the War Secretary to this effect at a meeting of the conferees yesterday. The conference committee discussed the matters in dispute between the two houses and will meet again today, it was said.

Four other committees were in session yesterday rushing various phases of the defense program. The House Military Affairs Committee postponed action on legislation to build up a $100,000,000 reserve of strategic war materials after it was disclosed that the Administration would not approve expenditure of more than $10,000,000 for the purpose at this time.

Tentative approval was given by the House Naval Affairs Committee to a $46,000,000 bill to strengthen naval shore facilities. Meanwhile, the Senate Naval Affairs Committee was hearing opponents of the naval air base bill, which includes provision for developin- aviation facilities on the western Pacific island of Guam. The House military appropriations sub-committee was taking testimony in executive session on $110,000,000 budget estimate for new weapons and equipment for the Army.

Before the President's disapproval was expressed, the House Military Affairs Committee had approved an amendment offered by Representative Pace (Democrat), of Georgia, authorizing the War Department to acquire the reserve stocks of manganese, tin, rubber and other materials not produced in quantity in this country, by barter or payment on war debts.

Policy Statement Demanded

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee was urged by Col. Theodore Roosevelt to demand from President Roosevelt a statement of foreign policy before acting finally on the national defense program. In a statement presented to the group by Oswald Garrison Villard of the Keep America Out of War Committee, the son of the former Republican President, declared that without "a statement of foreign policy" Congress was "shooting in the dark."

Testimony of naval officials that Guam is necessary to the defense of the United States, the former Governor of the Philippines termed "idiotic." Miss Jeanette Rankin, of the National Council for Prevention of War, and Walter W. Van Kirk, of the National Peace Conference, also testified in opposition to the Guam development.

problem whether it is tackled qualitatively or quantitatively. Yet it appears to be the aspect which Chamberlain favors clearing up first because of the nightmare which the rapid growth of aerial fleets has started in Europe.

If progress can be made toward reducing the menace from the air, then it is probable the arms conference would be widened in scope, to include economic problems, such as Germany's demand for colonies. The British government has always been willing to consider this demand as part of the general settlement which is Chamberlain's aim before he lays down the burden of his office.

Trade Mission to Continent

In this connection much importance is attached to the visit to Berlin next week of Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, and Robert S. Hudson, secretary to the department of overseas trade. From Berlin Hudson will continue his trade mission to Warsaw, Moscow and Scandinavian capitals.

The present differences between Italy and France over Italian aspirations for better treatment for Italians in Tunis, a share in the control of the Suez Canal, a free zone in the French port of Djibouti and reduced rates on the Djibouti-Addis Ababa Railroad, are unlikely to lead to new tension, Whitehall believes.

It is expected Mussolini will send a formal note to Paris shortly expressing his desire to negotiate an agreed settlement of his demands. If Il Duce acts thusly the French government will not be disposed to reject friendly discussion, in the opinion of officials here.

Million a Day for Planes

London, March 9.—Great Britain, spending more than $1,00,000 a day for airplanes alone, expects by April 1 to have a first-line air strength of 2,250 planes.

Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood disclosed today in the House of Commons that by the end of this month the home force air fleet would have an estimated 1,750 fighting craft, with an additional 500 ships in the overseas force.

These figures were exclusive of the fleet air arm—naval air force—under supervision of the admiralty, which has 500 planes.

Nazi Attacks U. S. Ideas of Pan America

This Nation Called The Worst Enemy Of Latin States

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 9.—Gen. Wilhelm Faupel, German Ambassador to nationalist Spain in 1937, challengingly pitted a German idea of Latin-Americanism today against the United States idea of Pan-Americanism.

Speaking at the biweekly luncheon of the German Academy, (the general said:

"The United States, by painting dangers of invasion of Latin America by the totalitarian states and by promulgating at the same time the idea of Pan-America, hopes to establish a united front on the Western Hemisphere which will be ready in case of need to turn against the totalitarian states."

Urges Peaceful Invasion

He urged the leaders of the academy to provide for a wholesale peaceful invasion of Latin America by German linguists, educators, scientists and engineers, and for return visits by South Americans to Germany.

Faupel's speech came on a day marked by sharp attacks on the United States.

Diplomatisch-Politische Korresdenz, mouthpiece of the foreign office, charged democracies with spreading lies about Germany.

Pittman Assailed

Large posters appeared on bulletin boards devoted to Nazi publicity material in some Berlin office buildings assailing Key Pittman, chairman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as an anti-German agitator.

They showed Senator Pittman's head and shoulders in life size with the caption: "Mark Him Well." In addition, they contained a tirade against the United States as being "Jew-ridden" and as "trade-snatchers in South America."

Faupel asserted that "the Monroe Doctrine is nothing but a claim put forward by the United States for domination of the Western Hemisphere" and that "there is but one danger to Latin America—that is the United States."

Proposes Spanish-America

Against the idea of Pan-America, which he described as a clever invention of the United States, he proposed the idea of a Spanish-America.

"The countries of South and Central America," he declared, "have much more in common with Spain and Portugal than with the United States."

He held that victory for Nationalist Spain in the civil war would cement bonds between Europe and Latin America, helping the latter win what he called its struggle for freedom from domination by Washington.

New Pact With Brazil Insures Pay for U. S. Goods

spirit of the United States-Brizilian trade agreement. In fact, notes covering this point were exchange when the trade agreement was entered into February 2, 1935.

Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, in a letter to Secretary of State Hull made public yesterday by the State Department, said the new commercial agreement would insure the provision of funds in payment for imports from the United States" in accordance with the note of the Brazilian Ambassador of that date.

Officials here regard the new commercial pact as of major importance, as it points to an era of close commercial and political relationships between this country and Brazil. It is looked upon as a hard blow at hopes of the German government for trade gains in South America. These hopes, according to reliable information, never have been as menacing as reports have indicated.

Three-Point Plan for Aid

Under the commercial agreement, the United States agrees to a three-point plan for aid to Brazil through loans amounting to a maximum of $120,000,000.

Besides the advances to "unfreeze" United States commercial debts, the Export-Import Bank will finance, through long term credits, sales of locomotives and other heavy goods to help Brazil build needed railroads and otherwise to advance industrially. These loans, which may total $50,000,000, will be at 5 per cent interest. Credits running for five or ten years are needed.

President Roosevelt will ask Congress to enact legislation authorizing the Treasury to place at Brazil's disposal $50,000,000 of gold for use as a metallic reserve for a Central Bank of Brazil to be set up under the agreement.

Currency Value Control

The object of the bank will be to keep commercial channels between the two countries open by controling the value of the milreis, the Brazilian currency.

Besides freeing her exchange, so far as commercial transactions are concerned, Brazil will resume payments July 1 on her $357,000,000 of defaulted bonds held by American citizens. An arrangement in this matter has been worked out between Aranha and the Foreign Bondholders Protective Council, Inc., a private organization representing American holders of defaulted foreign bonds.

Under this arrangement, it was indicated, token payments will be made for two years. In the meantime, an attempt will be made to resume service on the dollar debt on a permanent basis which American holders of the bonds will regard as satisfactory.

Equal Treament

Brazil also agree dt give American interests the same treatment accorded its nationals. This has reference, it is understood, to legislation now pending in Brazil of a nationalistic character which would restrict substantially the rights of both Brazilians and foreigners.

The arrangement for resuming service on the dollar debt will be announced by Aranha, it was announced, on his return to Rio de Janeiro.

The United States will undertake to aid Brazil in developing noncompetitive products for which markets might be found in this country. This essentially is a long-term proposition, it is said, but it may result eventually in Brazil producing rubber on a large scale for sale to this country, as well as tropical products.

Henry Ford, it is said, has been trying to develop rubber plantations in the Amazon basin region of Brazil. Ford also has been experimenting with certain hard woods and herbs.

Officials regarded as of the highest importance the Brazilian decision to free her foreign exchange. This will place her in the ranks of other countries, like the United States, which follow a liberal trade policy as contrasted with the rigid barter system employed by totalitarian states, it was explained.

In fact, it is said, Brazil by trying to direct foreign exchange created by commercial transactions into particular channels—such as using credits establishing in this country to pay for armaments—was following essentially the same policy as that employed by Germany.

In Line With U. S. Thought

The largest South American nation, it is pointed out, is lining up with the multilateral trade philosophy of Secretary of State Hull.

By keeping United States exporters waiting while using dolar credits to pay debts elsewhere, it is explained, Brazil caused drafts covering exports from this country to pile up to such an extent that an exporter usually had to wait a month or more before the draft was cleared.

The gold loan to Brazil would be repaid from Brazilian gold production, which has been stepped up. The production of Brazilian mines, which formerly did not exceed $5,000,000 annually, is now about $8,000,000 or $10,000,000.

Aranha Is Friendly

Aranha, who knows this country thoroughly, is regarded by officials here as a friend. The prospect for closer political and commercial ties depends, in large measure, on his influence. The attitude of officials here is one of sympathy toward Brazil's problem.

Whether the agreement will affect the Brazilian barter agreement with Germany was undetermined. Reports were circulated recently that purchases under that agreement had reached the prescribed limit.

The agreement, which is in the form of an exchange of notes, was signed in the office of Secretary of State Hull by Aranha and Hull. Present were Undersecretary Sumner Welles, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and Warren Lee Pierson, head of the Export-Import Bank.

Welles characterized the agreement as of "major significance." If it works out as hoped, he said, it should demonstrate in the near future that it will constitute a highly successful effort to stimulate trade between the two countries and also will serve as a basis for "helpful co-operation between the two countries in developing new sources of non-competitive production to the advantage of their respective economies."

New York, March 9 (AP).—Brazilian bonds jumped $25 to $45 per $1,000 certificate in the New York Stock Exchange today after announcement the Brazilian government intends to resume payments July 1 of interest and amortization of the dollar debt.

Gandhi Advises Nonviolence For Refugees

New York, March 9 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, Indian leader, commenting on the Jewish question in the March issue of "Jewish Frontier," says it is "wrong and inhuman to impose the Jews on the Arabs" in Palestine.

He urges German Jews to begin a mass policy of non-violent resistance to the restrictions imposed by the Nazi government.

Gandhi asserts the Jews should settle in Palestine only with the good will of the Arabs and he suggests they seek to "convert the Arab heart."

Miaja Planes Crush Revolt In Madrid

fired early Sunday, reported to Miaja the uprising there had been "completely crushed" with heavy casualties and an "enormous number" of Communist prisoners.

Unconfirmed reports told of 19 executions and at least 500 arrests in Valencia.

Miaja's national defense council announced Madrid had been freed from a threat to its food supplies and munitions as result of the crushing of rebel forces which early in the day had held entrances to the city.

The Madrid radio station described a series of "terrible battles," one of which occurred at midday along the Glorieta San Bernardo, where Communists and Republican troops fought in the streets with machine guns, hand grenades and rifles.

The troops, closing in on the rebels from side streets, were said to have ordered them to surrender, "after which the officer in command ordered an attack without mercy, resulting in a terrible battle in which the Communists surrendered at 3 p. m., leaving corpses in houses along the street."

The heaviest fighting appeared to have been around the suburb of Canillejas, 5 miles northwest of Madrid, where hundreds of Communists reportedly surrendered after being bombed and strafed by planes and shelled by field guns.

U. S. Protests As Japanese Bomb Missions

Consul Says He Furnished Maps of Ichang Property

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, March 9.—The United States Consul General at Hankow protested to Japanese authorities today against an air raid on Ichang in which two properties of the American Church (Episcopal) Mission were heavily damaged.

Official Chinese reports accused the Japanese of dropping 200 bombs "recklessly all over the city" and doubled earlier estimates of 1,500 killed and wounded in raids Tuesday and Wednesday.

Chinese said one-third of the civilian homes in Ichang, deep in China's interior, were destroyed.

Maps Were Supplied

The United States protest was made by Paul Josselyn, consul general in Hankow. He pointed out to the Japanese consul general that he had given Japanese consular and military authorities detailed maps showing the location and nature of the American property last June at the mission's behest.

Advices from Ichang, 387 miles up the Yangtze River from Hankow, said 17 bombs fell on American property although huge American flags were flying from buildings and stretched out on the ground.

They said a residence and three other mission buildings were badly damaged.

A mission compound including a church, several residences and a school within Ichang's walls, these reports said, suffered the Japanese air raiders' heaviest onslaught. They said 10 bombs fell there, courtyards were blasted and windows shattered, although "miraculously" no buildings were struck and Chinese servants within escaped injury.

English Mission Wrecked

The second property, near the Yangtze outside the city walls, was struck seven times. Direct hits damaged a residence, a church and two girls' schools inside the compound.

Belated reports from Sian, in Shensi Province, said a Japanese air raid had wrecked an English Baptist mission and a Catholic church Tuesday.

British officials of the mission were said to have been uninjured but three Chinese workers at the mission hospital, which was said to have been marked with a British flag, were reported killed.

It was estimated 140 bombs were dropped in the raid in which a 2-mile stretch of Sian's main street was battered and several hundred persons killed or wounded.

(Reliable reports in London said the British government had protested the attack on British property. They identified the damaged hospital as the Jenkins Robertson Memorial Hospital and said it was clearly marked with two union jacks.)

Chinese Flee Ichang

Chinese said 45 Japanese bombers participated in the Ichang raid. They said the ancient north wall of the city was virtually razed. A large part of the population, normally 112,000, was reported in flight.

A Japanese naval spokesman here said 40 Japanese naval planes carried out the air attack. He said the eastern wall, where he charged numerous Chinese military warehouses and barracks were located, also was demolished.

He said the bombers started several fires within the city and loosed heavy bombardments on the headquarters of the Chinese Seventy-Seventh Division in the center of Ichang.

Under leadership of Joseph I. Wilner, more than $2,000 was raised in the first week of the campaign for the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society transportation fund, it was announced yesterday.

He said that in response to the President's call a committee of 32 nations met in France to discuss the refugees' problems.

The HIAS refugee fund committee includes, besides Wilner, Morris Cafritz, Joseph Cherner, Bernard Dansansky, Morris Garfinkle, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, Paul Himmelfarb, Isadore Hershfield, E. I. United States Signs Credit Agreement With Brazil

Survivor, Widowed in Crash of Cavalier, Sues British Airplane Line for $200,000

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 9.—One of the survivors, widowed when the flying boat Cavalier sank at sea last January 21 on a flight to Bermuda with a loss of three lives, filed suit against the airline company for damages of $201,109.50.

Mrs. Katherine Cline Miller, of Lincoln, Nebr., in Federal Court alleged her husband, Donald Walters Miller, died because Imperial Airways crewmen did not attempt to help him after the big transport made a forced landing.

Among the 104 "interrogatories" accompanying the demand for $200,000 as compensation for the loss of her husband, plus $1,109.50 for lost luggage and the tickets they purchased, was this question addressed to the company:

"Is it not a fact that the airmen failed and refused to assist the plaintiff in succoring Donald Walters Miller, although requested to do so by one or more other passengers?"

Seek to Bring Reforms

Mrs. Miller's papers, filed in what was termed a suit in admiralty, related that her husband was struck by a wing of the plane after it came to rest on the water in a landing which smashed the hull.

The flying boat sank a few minutes later. Of the eight passengers and five crewmen in it, six passengers and four of the crew were saved after hours in the water clinging to life preservers.

T. R. Iserman, Mrs. Miller's attorney, explained the suit was filed to bring about reforms in the operation of foreign-owned transport aircraft based on American soil.

Willful and negligent misconduct is charged in 31 separate paragraphs. The questions addressed to the company include one as to whether Capt. M. R. Alderson, in command of the craft, did not tell the passengers that it was "every man for himself."

Another asked whether it was not a fact that the captain "at the time of the forced landing was suffering from hysteria or other aberration which then or thereafter incapacitated him."

Blames Carburetors

Mrs. Miller also filed a libel against the goods and chattels, credits and effects of Imperial Airways of Great Britain and its wholly owned subsidiary, Imperial Airways of Bermuda.

Mrs. Miller alleged her husband was given no life preserver or instructed in the use of one, and a corollary interrogatory asked if it was not true that passengers were forbidden to adjust their life preservers prior to the landing.

She asserted the company was negligent in not equipping the plane with carburetors which could be de-iced properly. Radio messages from the plane said the engines were stopping because of iced carburetors, though later in an interview Alderson insisted the de-icing equipment was working properly.

Two Immigration Officials Called in Perkins Inquiry

By the Associated Press.

The House Judiciary Committee yesterday decided to call two immigration officials to assist in its investigation of charges that Secretary Perkins should be impeached for her handling of immigration law enforcement.

The group sent for R. P. Bonham, district immigration director, and R. J. Norene, divisional director, at Seattle. Procedure suggested by Bonham and Norene was disregarded in the Labor Department's deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, West Coast C.I.O. maritime leader.

Representative Thomas (Republican), New Jersey, said Bonham had submitted to the department an application for Bridges' arrest which contained "most unusual supporting evidence." This document and others related to it disappeared from the department's files, Thomas told Chairman Sumners (Democrat), of Texas.

Kennedy Expected In Rome Tomorrow For Rites Sunday

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, March 9.—A special stand was erected today near the lofty central altar of St. Peter's Basilica to accommodate 40 missions to represent foreign governments at the coronation of Pope Pius XII next Sunday.

Many missions were expected to arrive tomorrow in Rome and President Roosevelt's personal representative, Joseph P. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to London, was due Saturday.

Vatican and Roman police, who will handle the vast coronation crowds, were ordered to report for duty at 4 a. m. Sunday (10 p. m. E. S. T., Saturday.)

The doors of the Basilica will be opened at 6 a. m., but thousands of ticket-holders were expected to gather in St. Peter's square before dawn seeking favorable positions to witness the five-hour coronation mass.

More Than 350,000 Expected

Authorities predicted that more than 350,000 persons would be gathered in front of St. Peter's before 1 p. m. (7 a. m. E. S. T.)

At that hour the Pontiff will appear on an outside balcony to receive the triple tiara.

Carpenters today were raising the level of the balcony floor and building a special throne to bring His Holiness within the view of all.

Pope Pius devoted much of the day to regularly scheduled audiences.

Authoritative Germans reported the Pontiff had received the four German cardinals on Monday and had discussed with them the church situation in Germany.

They said it was impossible to disclose the nature of the discussion "because of the great delicacy of the situation" but hope was expressed relations between the Vatican and Germany might be improved.

Hitler Sends Congratulations

Berlin dispatches published in the Italian press meanwhile said that Diego von Bergen, German ambassador to the Holy See, called on the Pope four days ago and delivered a message of congratulation from Chancellor Hitler.

Bishop Ralph L. Hayes, of Pittsburgh, rector of the American College in Rome, and Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, of London, participated today in a te deum in the American Church of Santa Susanna in Rome in thanksgiving for the Pope's election.

Pope Pius tomorrow will attend special Lenten prayers in the papal palace.

Japan Reveals Plan to Provide Own Munitions

Three-Year Program Designed to Make Nation Self-Sufficient

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, March 9.—Hitherto secret details of a gigantic industrial expansion program designed to give Japan complete self-sufficiency in war materials within three years was disclosed today in Parliament.

The plan embraces Japanese-occupied China and Japanese-protected Manchoukuo as well as Japan proper.

Program Already Under Way

Kazuo Aoki, president of the cabinet planning board, told the lower house budget committee the program already was under way and was scheduled for completion in 1941. Hence, he said, some phrases might be disclosed.

Raw materials derived from newly occupied areas of China play a major role in the production scheme. The majority of industries and articles coming under the plan relate directly to war materials.

The plan envisages the following percentage increases over present output: Ordinary steel, 60 per cent; special steel, 100; steel ignots, 60; pig iron, 100; iron ore, 150; coal, 30; magnesium, 1,000; copper, 80; lead, 90; zinc, 70; tin, 100; natural gasoline, 30; synthetic gasoline, 2,900.

The gasoline would be ordinary medium test, not airplane fuel.

Proposed Increases

Still other products and the proposed percentage increases: Natural oil, 40; synthetic oil, 800; dehydrated alcohol, 1,200; soda, 20; caustic soda, 40; industrial salt, 65; ammonium sulphate, 40; paper pulp, 20; gold, 20; machine tools, 100; railway locomotives, 30; passenger cars, 70; freight cars, 50; automobiles, 400; wool, 240.

Aoki told the Diet the actual details of how these increases would be effected could not be disclosed at present.

Warners Announce Four Paramount 'Specials'

De Mille's 'Union Pacific' Heads the List; Father Flanagan Writes Another Letter; News Notes and Jottings of Amusements

FOUR OF PARAMOUNT'S most pretentious pictures will be exhibited in Washington on the screens of the Earle and Metropolitan Theaters during early impending weeks, according to announcement made yesterday from the executive offices of Warner Brothers.

In "Union Pacific," Cecil B. De Mille has executed another of his far-flung epics of an important chapter in American history. Joel McCrea, Barbara Stanwyck and Akim Tamiroff will head a cast that runs into the thousands.

BELL

"Hotel Imperial," a subject that has been haunting the Paramount story department for years on end, has finally been converted into celluloid and will present Isa Miranda, much publicized Italian importation, in her first American film. Ray Milland will appear opposite the star, with Reginald Owen, Gene Lockhart and J. Carrol Naish in support.

"Man About Town" is reputedly the best vehicle to date for the comic talents of Jack Benny, whose major successes have been on the radio. Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Phil Harris, Binnie Barnes and "Rochester," Benny's famous radio valet, are included in the roster of principals.

"I'm From Missouri" stars Bob Burns, whose popularity has been increasing with each successive picture. The Post's paragrapher has been hailed as the late Will Rogers' legitimate successor on the screen. Burns does not attempt to present an imitation of the former idol of the gelatins, but perhaps comes nearer fitting into the Rogers groove than any other contemporary player. Gladys George, Gene Lockhart and "Samson," the only mule ever to spend a night in a Turkish bath, lend comic support to the star, who progresses from his native state to the upper crust of British society.

So there they are. Specific booking dates will be made known in due course.

Speaking of Isa Miranda, as we were back there a few blocks, her work in "Hotel Imperial" is said to have made her in great demand by other producers and to have justified Paramount's faith and heavy investment in bringing her to America and then devoting a year to grooming her for stardom. Five foreign film companies are said to have attempted to borrow Miss Miranda within the last month. The most recent request was from L'Herbier, French producer, who wanted her for "Dame de L'Ouest." To all such supplications Paramount has answered with an emphatic "No." Her next picture on the coast will be "Madame Mystery." We shall see what we shall see.

As long as we are on the topic of the Warner Brothers and their local activities, it might as well be jotted down now as any time that the Del Rios, opening on the stage of the Earle today, are given two pages of pictorial display in the issue of Pic Magazine, bearing date of March 21. Pic has this to say about them: "Making their debut at the Roxy Theater (New York) the Del Rios won critical applause as the most sensational balancing act of the year."

In the pictures published in the magazine, they are doing stunts that are obviously impossible! So I align myself frankly with the rustic gentleman who attended the circus, took one look at the giraffe and ejaculated, "There ain't no such animal."

Maybe the Del Rios, who hail from Winnipeg, Manitoba, and use that name because it is short and easy to remember, do execute the feats in which they are pictured. If they do, they know more about the laws of leverage than any other two men and a girl that ever have come along to a Washington stage. I still don't believe it!

Mr. Ray C. B. Brown, my scholarly office-mate, wishes it made known that Arturo Toscanini, who will conduct the National Broadcasting Co. orchestra in a Constitution Hall concert on Tuesday evening, March 14, has announced the following program: Overture to "The Barber of Seville;" (Rossini), Symphony No. 7 in A major (Beethoven), "Fountains of Rome" (Respighi), Siegfried's Death and the Funeral March from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" (Wagner), and the Overture to "Tannhauser" (Wagner). The concert is under the local management of Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey. So now you know.

The heartfelt sympathy of the entire motion picture industry is being extended to John J. Payette, zone manager of the Warner Brothers interests in this territory, today upon the passing yesterday morning of his father, Dr. George N. Payette, of a streptococcus infection, following an attack of the grippe. Having known Dr. Payette through the decades as a genial and kindly gentleman, this column shares with his children a deep sense of personal grief.

In case you have been worrying about it, "Yes, My Darling Daughter," the romantic comedy costarring Priscilla Lane and Jeffrey Lynn will open a repeat downtown engagement on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater on Tuesday, March 14.

Dots and Dashes

Comes another letter from Boys Town, Nebr., over signature of Father E. J. Flanagan, inclosing a postcard view of the main group of buildings . . . A new building plan is to be put into operation this spring on the 400-acre tract that constitutes Boys Town . . . "We feel that this is necessary," says Father Flanagan, "because last year alone we had to turn away about 1,300 homeless, destitute boys" . . . Also a brief note from Phil Regan, at the Essex House, in New York, hoping that the next time he comes to town we will be able to spend a little time together . . . That makes it unanimous . . . The Variety Club will hold one of its famous luncheons in the Willard Hotel on next Monday, at 1 . . . Eddie Fontaine, local branch manager of Paramount, will be chief "king for the day" . . . "Angels of War," being produced for the first time in America by the King-Smith Playhouse, is said to be a completely realistic depiction of life behinds the scenes during a "war to end all wars" . . . Watch those Roxyettes at the Earle this week . . . They are replacing their stilts with ladders!

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, March 9.

TOLERANCE: The Daughters of the American Revolution will receive another shock when the King and Queen of England visit the White House . . . For among those who are expected to entertain for the royal visitors at the Executive Mansion will be that young American singer whose voice was described by Arturo Toscanini as "a voice heard once in 100 years"—Marian Anderson.

VOW: John Barrymore who now is rehearsing for his new play, "My Dear Children," insisted upon one change in the script—and the script has been altered pursuant to his demands . . . The change occurs in the line preceding the first entrance of Barrymore's wife, Elaine Barrie—the line reading: "May I present Felice, Comtesse de Brittone" . . . At Barrymore's insistence, five words have been added. Those words are: "My future—and final—wife."

SURPRISE: Saturday morning Connie Immerman, of the Broadway night clubs, received a phone call from H. H. Rogers, jr. . . . "What're you doing now?" asked Rogers . . . "The missus and I are having breakfast," said Immerman . . . "Well, come on down to Pier 11 right away and have breakfast on my new yacht," Rogers invited . . . Mr. and Mrs. Immerman donned slacks, left for Pier 11 and nothing has been heard from them since—except for a letter received by their nephew—a letter mailed via the pilot boat—reading: "Rogers won't let us get off. Sublease our apartment. He says he's taking us to his private island in the South Seas."

GRATITUDE: Albert D. Lasker invited a group of 16 friends for a week's stay at his Lake Forest, Ill., estate . . . Among those invited were Grantland Rice, Roy Howard, ex-Governor Cox, Dan Mahoney, the publisher; Charles V. McAdam, the syndicate man; Deac Aylesworth, Gene Tunney, Bernard Gimbel and Rube Goldberg . . . A chartered plane brought them to Lake Forest and back . . . They were placed in guest houses, with one valet for two guests . . . They played golf at Lasker's private course and were not permitted even to tip the caddies or pay for the golf balls . . . Food and drink were always within call . . . When the week was over, the 16 guests held a conclave to determine upon a token of gratitude for such hospitality . . . "What'll we give Lasker to show our appreciation?" Tunney asked . . . "Oh, that's easy," Goldberg suggested. "Let's give him two bucks apiece."

MISTAKE: At a Washington dinner party Mrs. Chip Roberts, wife of the Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, sat next to John Hanes, Undersecretary of the Treasury . . . "Who's the Mr. Douglas sitting at my right?" whispered Mrs. Roberts . . . "Douglas of Douglas Aircraft," Hanes whispered in reply . . . Mrs. Roberts then started to discuss aviation with Mr. Douglas. After the dinner she told her husband: "That Mr. Douglas doesn't know a propeller from a landing gear. How'd he ever get to be head of Douglas Aircraft?" . . . "Hanes was kidding you," Roberts informed—for Mr. Douglas was Bill Douglas, head of the SEC and No. 1 candidate for the Supreme Court vacancy.

DEFEAT: Kenneth Dayton, the New York City budget director, phoned Russell Forbes of the Purchasing Dept. yesterday and complained that he couldn't get out the budget because he had no carbon paper . . . "But the city has a warehouse full of carbon paper," Forbes informed . . . "Yes," Dayton replied, "but there's no carbon on it" . . . Forbes checked and found it true. In 1927 a local politician had sold the city ten years' supply of carbon paper—deliverable immediately.

REASON: Dick Kollmar, the juvenile whose excellent performance in "Knickerbocker Holiday" has resulted in movie offers from every studio, went to the Rainbow Room with Mary Martin and there saw Conky Whitehead, who owns the Coca-Cola Co. . . . "I've been following the weather reports in your Coca-Cola sign at Columbus Circle," Kollmar stated. "But yesterday's sign gave no weather report at all. How come?" . . . "Well," Whitehead explained, "it was just too dreadful to announce."

DISPUTE: Mayor LaGuardia yesterday arranged for his train passage to the Frisco Fair . . . Fiorello booked it via the American Express Co. . . . The mayor won't book any trips through the New York Central, direct . . . He insists that he never can get good accommodations from that railroad—ever since he compelled them to put the Eleventh avenue tracks underground.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., March 9.—While testing that Cuban girl, Diosa Costello, who conducts her own orchestra—with her anatomy instead of a baton—in a New York night club, we're wondering if Twentieth Century has forgotten their strip teaser, Gypsy Rose Lee, who wore more clothes than an Eskimo. Even changed her name. She never learned the clever trick of some of our girls, who looked stripped when covered. In "Idiot's Delight" they made two evening dresses for Norma Shearer—one sheer, another sheerer! She wore both! But when Gypsy went back to Broadway, her 2-inch long fingernails teased the customers, instead of her anatomy.

HEDDA HOPPER

Metro's beautiful Spanish dancer, Cecelia Callejo, who was Argentina's protegee, can get more music out of a pair of castanets than some of our leaders out of a whole band.

Speaking of bands, the former Mrs. Doug Fairbank's husband, Jack Whitin, is gathering one together in New York. I wonder what it is about Doug that brings out musical overtones in his former wives' husbands? Because Doug doesn't know one note from another. Maybe during their wedded bliss, they were just longing for music.

Who says it's a small world? Years ago, when Roy del Ruth was reporting for a Philadelphia newspaper, his first assignment was to write a story about Gus Edwards. Which he did. Now del Ruth's directing Gus Edwards' picture, "The Star Maker"—and it's the first time they ever met.

Sidney Fox (Mrs. Charles Beahan) is back in town after two years' absence. She starred in Bette Davis' first picture at Universal, "Bad Sister." She had made quite a name for herself when they sent her abroad to do one picture with Chaliapin, another with Emil Jannings. Following which she went into a New York play. Then R. K. O. brought her out for "Down to Their Last Yacht." She tested for "Good Earth" but was too pretty, really. Following that she went back to Broadway and two more plays; now she's testing for a contract at two studios.

I'm wondering if there's a numerologist working on "Calling Dr. Kildare"—Take a look at these: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Lana Turner, Lorraine Johnson, Louise Carver, Lou Ostrow produces, Les White, camera and Lou Crosley, props.

Bobby Breen hates personal appearance tours, because every time he goes away, his rank at Blacke-Foxe Military Academy slips from lieutenant to sergeant.

Barbara O'Neil, sister of playwright George and Mama O'Hara in "Gone," will establish the smallest theater on record this summer. A trailer, no less! She'll go up and down the coast, picking up local talent in small theaters, will direct and play. Try out, not only her own plays, but best scripts sent her. Swell idea!

'Pygmalion' Enters Second Week

Vegetarian George Bernard Shaw can blithely double his spinach order these days, for his "Pygmalion," which yesterday entered its second week at the Palace Theater, has shown his burnishd truths to be thoroughly palatable to those masses that have too long considered him "highbrow."

For much of "Pygmalion" is outrageously low comedy that should be enjoyed as such. The very idea of successfully palming off a raspy-voiced flower-seller from the slums of London as a cool-headed duchess at an embassy ball is a situation that can be universally appreciated. Her ludicrous remarks at a tea party for the gentry are common to anyone who has ever felt completely out of place at a gathering of strangers. Her wheezing father with his hard and fast philosophy is a character everyone should know.

She has come into all these adventures through a chance meeting with a phonetics expert and her own inner drive to better herself. She cannot get work in a flower shop until she can speak better English; she is dissatisfied with hawking her wares in the street. When the vainglorious phonetics expert declares that his skill could make her speak like a duchess in a few months, a friendly expert bets him that he cannot. So it is that Eliza Doolittle becomes a lingual guinea pig. And, as in the original myth of Pygmalion and Galatea, upon which Shaw composed his variation, the achievement and the creator fall in love.

Wendy Hiller's dazed loneliness and Leslie Howard's harsh egotism are brilliantly etched performances. The earthy Doolittle's scene with Howard on the monetary worth of his daughter; the genteel tea party with the embryo-duchess' textbook remarks and the unwilling bather are memorably comic highlights. Wilfred Lawson, Marie Lohr, Jean Cadell, David and Viola Tree and Scott Sunderland give the smaller parts keen portrayals.

"Double Diving," a Pete Smith short; "A Dream of Love," a Franz Lizst musical, and the news of the day surround the magnificent film that is fast making Mr. Shaw one with Shakespeare.

W. C. Fields Scores Laugh Hit at Keith's

New Screen Vehicle Is Roaring Comedy Of the Circus Lots

By Nelson B. Bell

"YOU CAN'T CHEAT AN HONEST MAN." Universal picturization of an original screen play by Charles Bogle (W. C. Fields), adapted to the screen by George Marion, Richard Mack and Everett Freeman, starring W. C. Fields, with Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snurd, Constance Moore, Mary Forbes, Thurston Hall, John Arledge, Princess Babe, Charles Coleman, Edward Brophy, Arthur Hohl, Grady Sutton, Ferris Taylor, James Bush, Frank Jenks, Ivan Lebedeff and Otto Hoffman. Directed by George Marshall. Reviewed Thursday night. At RKO-Keith's.

"You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," which was accorded its Washington premiere on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater yesterday evening, was written by W. C. Fields (under the non de plume of Charles Bogle), stars W. C. Fields and is so completely dominated by W. C. Fields that nothing else matters much—barring, of course, the presence of Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy and the gloriously stupid Mortimer Snurd.

In this item, the author-star has reverted to the sort of thing he always has done best on both stage and screen. He harks back to the big tops and tanbark of the circus to supply a background for as delirious a series of comedy "gags" as ever has been contrived for the uses of a roistering buffoon who seems to need the raucous setting of the circus pitch to appear at his ridiculous best. If one needed evidence of the proficiency of the clown with the incandescent nose in this sort of thing, he would have only to revert to the first "straight" role W. C. Fields ever played on the stage, as Prof. Eustace McGargle in "Poppy," at the New Amsterdam Theater, in New York, with Madge Kennedy in the costellar part of Poppy McGargle, back in 1925. That was the genesis of the pre-eminence Fields displays on the screen at RKO-Keith's this week.

Whipsnade Crashes Society

That, however, is all aside from the point that in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" there is far less "drama" than there is hilarious tomfoolery. There is, to be sure, something in the movement of the comedy aimed at a romance between the daughter of the owner of a fly-by-night tent show and the son of an aristocratic family, but that is allowed to intrude only occasionally until the very end of the picture, when Mr. Larson E. Whipsnade crashes society with results that are about as you might expect.

The Great Bergen, as a side-show attraction, of course, comes in for a vast share of attention and fun, aided and abetted by his two priceless pieces of whittled piné, known by the names of Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snurd. While a slight romantic interests attaches to Mr. Bergen, Charlie McCarthy and Master Snurd appropriate the major portion of the attention that centers in the circus' ventriloquial feature. Even more so than was the case in "Letter of Introduction," Charlie and Mortimer take on the attributes of living characters, instead of merely wooden dummies "animated," both physically and vocally, by their mentor, who is miraculously content to be the stooge for his carpentered characters.

Fields is Always Funny

The film opens with the initiation of the romantic attachments that are to become more and more vague as the developments advance, but moves soon to the circus lot where Mr. Whipsnade presides over the ticket wagon and rambles, between ticket-selling hours, all over the lot. Mr. Fields pulls some pretty old ones in these early sequences, but he also pulls a few ones to take the curse off. He is bombastically, sputteringly and unfailingly funny in everything he does—or perhaps he only seems so to one who, like Richard Watts, jr., of the New York Herald Tribune, always has looked upon W. C. Fields as the supreme exemplar of low comedy in the contemporary American theater.

"Yu Can't Cheat an Honest Man" separates itself into a succession of more altruistic purpose than to occasion laughs of deep-seated and reverberating physical origin. Fields starts in high gear and never lets down. But his scenes are not the only ones that rock an audience. The sequence in which Bergen, Charlie and Mortimer are loose in a runaway balloon is one of the most amusing in the picture. Charlie has a very tough time here. Mortimer is too dumb to realize his predicament and so comes into possession of the funniest line in the script. "How can anyone be as ignorant as you are?" asks Mr. Bergen. "Well, it's not easy," replies Mortimer.

Long Supporting Cast

There are an unusually large number of supporting players in this subject, but they are all so subordinated to the stars that, as I have said, they don't particularly matter. There are, for example, Arthur Hohl and Ferris Taylor, as the sheriffs intent on attaching the Whipsnade Circus; there are Mary Forbes and Thurston Hall, as the socialites, outraged by the engagement of their son to the daughter of so crass a person as the showman; there is Constance Moore, as the romantic interest in the case and there is, too, James Bush, as Roger Bel-Goodie, her fiance. You will forget them long before you will Mr. Fields, Mr. Bergen and Mr. Bergen's colossal lumber "jacks."

"Pilot Boat," dedicated to the skillful navigators who guide the big ships out of New York harbor into the open sea; a new issue of the Universal News and "Donald's Lucky Day," the Walt Disney cartoon held over from last week, augment a feature that has no further purpose than to induce laughter—which seemed to last night's standing-room audience to be excuse enough.

Foreign Service School Wins Georgetown Play Tourney

'The Road of Poplars' Judged Best in Annual One-Act-Play Contest; Other Entries Are Highly Rated

At the Second Annual Intra-Mural One-Act Play Contest, sponsored by the Mask and Bauble Club of Georgetown University last night, the entry of the Foreign Service School was awarded first place. The play was "The Road of Poplars," a fantasy adapted by Vernon Sylvaine.

In the carefully written, highly drawn leading role, Robert W. Barnitt was declared best actor of the evening in a party which placed him on top primarily because of the great demands it made upon the player.

Second place went to the freshman class entry in "The Perfect Crime," an adaptation of A. A. Milne's famed three-act play. "The Perfect Alibi," made by the supervisor of the club, Arthur Behrens.

Andrew R. Kelley, of the Times-Herald; Harry MacArthur, of the Evening Star, and your reviewer were the judges and announcement of their decision was made by Rev. John E. Grattan, S. J., dean of the college. The other two entries were presented by the sophomore and junior classes and were, respectively, Max Ehrmann's comedy, "The Bank Robbery," and Charlton Andrews' satire, "Chin Music."

"Poplars" Difficult Piece

The war-torn and imaginative "The Road of Poplars" received this reviewer's first place because of its difficult subject matter—that of the mental wanderings of a mentally wrecked British Tommy. Fantasy is the most difficult of the many dramatic arts to portray effectively and for that reason it was necessary to recognize the work of the Foreign Service Students. John Smith gave a satisfactory performance in the chief supporting role of Richardson. The all-vital part of Charley was effectively handled by Robert W. Barnitt. Rolf Williams, John von Weizel and Carl Bunja were in the remaining roles.

Mention should be made of the fine and natural playing of Carl H. Watson, jr., as the radio impresario of "Chin Music," the Junior class play. His work was unobtrusively accurate and firm. It was a minor role, but importantly played.

"The Perfect Crime" enlisted the services of Frank D. Hartnett, John G. Gent and Howard S. Madigan in the three-part cast. Perhaps because Mr. Behrens kept his role of author secret (until after the judges' decision) this play fascinated your reviewer, who had read, but never seen, Mr. Milne's earlier version. It was filled with suspense and the playing by Frank D. Hartnett in the role of the arch-criminal was for the most part promising and full of thoughtful preparation. Since this was the freshman class entry it is more than natural to expect that next year's sophomore play should definitely be in the running.

A Fruitful Evening

Between "The Bank Robbery" and "Chin Music" there was little to choose. Both were earnestly played, but the former achieved the greater success. Jeremiah J. Dalton was the trusting night watchman who was too gullible for the other three robbers, played by Thomas F. Mullahey, William F. Hull and Charles C. O'Connor. It concerned the early morning robbery of a safe by a bandit whose brains proved superior to the brawn of his accomplices. "Chin Music" disclosed a radio station and its troubles to find an announcer, but much of its effect was marred through the vital necessity of expert imitators of our most noted radio announcers, the variety stages having gobbled up all known experts!

But in the collegiate atmosphere of Gunston Hall there was no doubt last evening that Mr. Behrens and his cohorts, with Mr. John C. Creaghan as their moderator, had had a pleasant and fruitful evening exploring the field of the one-act play. RICHARD L. COE.

Even the Joke Is on Income Taxpayer

Income

ahead, maybe I would get a rest."

Another citizen answered the collector's query about her husband's income: "Answering your inquiry about my income tax return please be advised that I am not married. Sorry I overlooked same."

Another: "Am very, very sorry no tax due. Hope to make a better showing next year."

One taxpayer inclosed a check with the statement, "Dear Uncle Sammy: This is the first time in several years that I have been able to contribute to your support. You are welcome to the tax money, you poor, poverty-stricken old dear . . ."

But in the main the taxpayer is allowed to carry the burden of being funny. For example, there was a letter from a certified public accountant, who had helped others to make their returns. He wrote to explain about his own:

"I could not touch my own personal return during January and February because I was waiting for my two customers to come in. Imagine the suspense. Suppose one had up and died."

Funny Business to End

The bureau pointed out yesterday, however, that there is to be no funny business about all tax returns being in by midnight of next Wednesday, March 15. On that day the office will be open from 8:45 until midnight. This Saturday it will be open until 2 in the afternoon, instead of 1.

While a heavy line formed in the corridors yesterday morning it was considerably thinned out by the middle of the afternoon. Some observers claimed that the Government's campaign to have returns made early has borne fruit.

However, an estimate of from 5,000 to 7,000 a day preceding the 15th, next week, is considered conservative at the bureau, especially as on the 15th—which is the Government pay day—many come in to pay their tax in cash.

New York Cancels G. M. Order to Get Revenge on Sloan

New York, March 5 (AP).—The board of estimate today canceled an order for the purchase of 109 police cars from General Motors Corporation after noting a letter from Alfred P. Sloan in which the General Motors head declined in 1935 to help promote Floyd Bennett Field here as an Eastern air terminal.

James J. Lyons, Bronx borough president, said in voting for the cancelation that Mayor LaGuardia "feels that in this case it might teach Mr. Sloan a lesson."

The board voted to grant the contract to the Fargo Motor Corporation.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 9 (I.N.S.).—Mayor LaGuardia got a popping hot telegram today from Dorothy Lamour, who is in a state over the story that she was going to appear at the New York World's Fair minus her clothes!

LOUELLA PARSONS

Poor Dorothy arrived in the big town just in time to hear that Billy Rose wanted her to star in his "Aquacade" in fewer feathers than Sally Rand wears at the San Francisco Fair. Over the long-distance telephone Dorothy said indignantly that she would never appear on any stage in a smile and without even a sarong, much less at the World's Fair as a naiad in a water nymph number.

"I thought," she said, "that they wanted to keep the New York Fair in the best of taste and I am appealing to Mayor LaGuardia to stop such cheap publicity. I have already sent him a wire. Billy Rose never made such an offer to me." Dorothy did say that Paramount had asked her to appear with her picture, "Man About Town," on the stage in a sarong and that she had intended to do it until this happened.

Talk about being up before breakfast. Chatted with Charlie Chaplin at an early hour just as he was leaving for the studio, and for the first time he discussed the coming Goldwyn law suit for a cancellation of his contract. Said Charlie, "I hope we can get together on an amicable arrangement, and that if Mr. Goldwyn feels he wants to leave United Artists the parting can be arranged without court proceedings." From another source I learned today that a deal is being made with Ernst Lubitsch whereby he will come into U. A. as a producer, and that still another deal is pending with Sol Lesser. The Lubitsch contract is due to be closed any day now and will put him in charg of a number of productions similar to the post he held at Paramount.

You can always expect W. A. Brady, well-known stage producer and Alice's father, to have news. He talks headlines—and interesting ones, too. Our old friend says Hollywood has become important to Broadway and he's here now to sign up some of our movie favorites fr a permanent stock company. Encouraged by the success of the revival of "Outward Bound," with Lauretie Taylor, Florence Reed, Bramwell Fletcher and Helen Chandler, W. A. would like to get Leo Carrillo and other movie favorites. He says Katharine Hepburn's stage play has made more money than Philadelphia theater circles have seen in years. Freddie March, Franchot Tone, Sylvia Sidney and Walter Huston are all bringing dollars and cents into the sadly depleted theatrical treasury.

Unlike "Zaza," Claudette Colbert's new picture, "Midnight," cannot complain of censorship troubles because it really gets away with zippy lines and several "continental" situations. But it's all in good fun, and Claudette, Don Ameche and John Barrymore seem to be having fun playing the sophisticated Cinderella comedy. I just a brief flash or two I was particularly impressed with Elaine Barrie Barrymore.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Florence Heller, whose wedding date to Ken Murray was once all set, at a night spot with her ex-fiance; Glenda Farrell rushing to the hospital to be with Tom Lewis, the boy friend, who parted with his appendix; Spencer Tracy and the Mrs. leave April 1 for that long-planned European trip; Marion Davies and her house guest, the Duchess of Sutherland, lunching at a cafe; the festivities for the Sutherlands have been numerous. Mary Pickford gave them a tea and Countess Di Frasso was their dinner hostess; Joan Bennett and Hedy Lamarr met for the first time since the Markey marriage at the Di Frasso party. Joan made the first gesture and wished both Gene and Hedy happiness. She was escorted by Walter Wanger; the sudden death of Mrs. Ray Milland's father was indeed a blow to her; Elsa Maxwell, Kay Francis and Joan Whitney-Payson, picked out the $124 winner at the track; George Raft, who has spent a fortune on his horse, Nadir, won plenty when it romped home a "winnah." So did Virginia Peine, who had $20 on the nose; Lillian Bond, here, there and everywhere since her separation from Sidney Smith, with Pat Di Cicco at a spot;

Group to Play Here Tonight

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 9.—The Little Theater Guild, of this city, will present "The Night of January 16," a mystery story, in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest, Washington tomorrow evening at 8:30 under the sponsorship of Gamma Chapter, Tau Beta Phi Sorority, one of whose members witnessed the original production by the guild here in the fall and liked it so much she arranged to have the Capital see it.

For the guild it will be a new venture in one of their major productions—before an audience with whom they have no personal relationships and which, admittedly, may be critical. At the same time the cast is anxious to have their work appraised professionally.

Principal roles are taken by Mary Frances Lodge, Norman Pope, Forrest Yeakley, E. E. Dreisbach, Charles Lodge, Katherine Bonner and Harold Breslau. Albert G. Geyer is the director. The group will motor from here tomorrow, reaching the theater, with their stage equipment, at 6 p. m.

Drastic Curb Announced on WPA Politics

Relief

based on Col. Harrington's estimates.

In addition, Col. Harrington yesterday appeared before a Senate committee to plead the cause of WPA projects for women and white-collar workers.

He told the special committee on unemployment and relief that elimination of this phase of WPA activity would constitute a "serious omission." The Byrnes bill, now before the committee, would consolidate all public works projects of the Government in one department, but makes no provision for nonconstruction projects of the WPA.

Most workers on white collar and sewing projects, said Col. Harrington, "are entirely unsuited to construction work, and if compelled to accept such employment would have their chances of re-employment in private industry seriously impaired."

The WPA's new anti-political regulations, issued in accordance with Congressional mandate, will result in the discharge of "hundreds" of WPA employes, Col. Harrington declared.

Those fired for political activity will not be re-employed by WPA under any circumstances, said Col. Harrington. The regulations apply to persons on WPA pay rolls who have charge of the work of other employes or can exercise influence over them.

Forbidden acts include promising jobs or other benefits as reward for political activity, penalizing workers for political reasons and soliciting funds from WPA workers. Administrative employes of WPA may not run for office, act as campaign managers or serve on party committees or organizations.

Job Slash Planned

In stressing the need for a supplementary $150,000,000 appropriation, Col. Harrington asserted that every possible administrative economy had been put into effect. He said the nine WPA regional directors would confer with him Monday to develop plans for cutting the rolls on April 1. Instructions on how the slash is to be carried out will be in the mail Thursday, said Harrington.

The Unemployment and Relief Committee was told by Col. Harrington that of the 2,892,274 WPA employes on January 28, non-construction projects employed 544,782, or 18.8 per cent. Although men outnumber women by more than 100 to 1 on construction work, 187,930 men and 356,852 women are employed in the non-construction category.

"Usually," said Col. Harrington, "the person employed by WPA on a white-collar or sewing project, like all other types of projects, is the only employable person in the family."

pressed the President's viewpoint," he said.

When a questioner referred to business "appeasement," Harrison said "I don't like that word."

Another asked if there was any "expectation" that the Nation's legal debt limit would be increased from $45,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000, as recently suggested by Secretary Morgenthau.

"I doubt it," Harrison replied.

The Mississippi Senator, who clashed sharply with the President over the undivided profits tax issue last session, and last week joined with Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means group, in a joint letter to Morgenthau requesting March 15 tax data, precipitated a Congressional economy-tax revision drive at the Capitol Tuesday.

In Thursday's statement, Harrison expressed lack of confidence in the Administration's spending philosophy, and warned that "economic confusion and chaos" will result if huge expenditures and the national debt continue to mount. He said Congress must make up its mind to either cut expenses or raise taxes, and the former course was preferable. He said tax "deterrents" must be removed if business is to go ahead.

Harrison's insistence on modification of the undivided profits tax and capital gains levies in the last tax bill led President Roosevelt to let the bill become law without his signature, and to denounce Senate action in a speech at Arthurdale, W. Va. The President has not since publicly elaborated his tax views.

Out of yesterday's White House conference came definite word that expiring nuisance taxes will be extended, and plain intimations of a Congressional move to repeal the last vestige of the undivided profits tax.

Chief problem before Capitol tax-makers in any program to lighten the business tax load is to find other revenue sources which would bear the added burden.

those considered on the afternoon when Mr. Seal was absent."

Subsequently, Morgan said, he took the matter up with Chairman Nichols and was instructed to submit the changes for inclusion in a committee print of the legislation. He then asked permission to take the stand and explain the charges.

The principal change in the original tax plan was the lowering of the sales tax exemption from 25 to 13 cents. This was done, Morgan said, for the benefit of merchants who would be held responsible for taxes in proportion to their total gross receipts. Experience in other States, he said, has proved the necessity for starting the tax at around 13 cents.

Under the new plan business men would make their first income tax payment in October with the right to divide the tax, paying the second half in March. The original proposal called for payment of the entire tax, covering the calendar year 1939, in March, 1940.

local governing body any more powers than it has so delegated. That is, of course, for Congress, not the commissioners, to decide. Certainly, it is suitable and proper to recommend to Congress that such powers as are necessary to provide for an effective and economical government be so delegated.

"And it is not improper to assume the Congress would welcome relief from the burden of acting as a city council for the District on multitudinous matters of trivial detail.

"In this attempting to rule out any necessity for exercise of any sort of legislative functions (they have not actually done so because much of the action of the District Commissioners even under their present limited powers is of quasi-legislative character), they ruled themselves completely off the boards."

Kennedy pointed out that the Commissioners themselves proposed to set up an administrative officer and added that experience of American cities proved the ineffectiveness of multi-membered boards as administrative agencies.

"No Evidence of Plan"

"The Commissioners' plan of organization," he said, "has the outstanding defect of showing no evidence of being a plan at all. It accepts the Griffenhagen proposals in the main, but with some changes, as to its proposed nine departments, but in substance proposes to leave the rest of the chaotic situation in the mess in which it now is.

"It is made up of haphazard suggestions for which no explanations or reasons are given. There is no indication that the suggestions have any relationship to any unified plan in mind, or that any consistent purposes or principles underlie or run through them. They bear every mark of whim and caprice.

"The primary objectives seem to be to keep intact the jobs of the Commissioners and the officers under them and to maintain their prestige and at the same time to curry favor with the officials of other agencies who might exert strong influence against any changes in their status.

Concedes Merit in Merger

"The Commissioners object to the proposed 17 departments of the Griffenhagen plan as too many, yet they propose nine agencies which they call departments and dozens of other agencies outside the organization of these departments, with varying degrees of independence of the Board of Commissioners, and would leave numerous Federal and non-descript, hybrid agencies to go their own way independent of any common or unified planning or supervision of their activities, exercising local government functions."

While admitting that the merger of District agencies in nine departments had some merit, Kennedy said the idea of placing the fire, police, and traffic departments in a public safety department was an example of a fundamental fallacy likely to be adopted "by persons not trained in government organization."

Hotels, Union to Confer Today With U. S. to Settle Strike through picket lines at the Shoreham. The men were later released after explaining they were "merely looking for jobs" and carried the weapons for "protection."

Call for More Police

Calls for aid came also from the Continental, Willard and Lafayette hotels. Numerous requests for additional policemen to guard picket lines were received by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent. The Police Department reported several skirmishes at the various hotels were broken up without arrests or injuries.

During the day, trains from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore brought several score of laborers. One group from New York was met at Union Station by a union delegation headed by Morris Verbov, representative of the cooks' union. The laborers were cornered by the union men as they stepped off the train and attempts were made to dissuade them from accepting jobs in the hotels.

Union spokesmen said they learned the replacements were sent to Washington by employment agencies in New York. They were promised $10 a week and room and board, for which they paid the agency a fee of $6 before receiving a card to one of the local hotels, according to Verbow.

7 Refuse Work

Seven kitchen and dining room men who came from New York refused to go to work when told of the strike. In taxicabs, however, another group of 30 imported workers went to the Shoreham. The union charged that strikebreakers were now working in the Shoreham, Carlton and Wardman Park hotels.

When informe of this, Levine—the union attorney—went to Department of Justice and conferred with Brien McMahon, assistant to the Attorney General. Levine protested against the importation of strikebreakers from across State lines and contended it was in violation of the Byrnes act.

McMahon and Henry Schweinhaut, in charge of the civil liberties division of the Justice Department, told Levine they were powerless to act unless it was proven the reputed strikebreakers came here for the purpose of interfering with peaceful picketers.

Levine, however, contended the appeal for police aid from hotel managers was prompted by groups who tried to pass picket lines.

Deny Importing Strikebreakers

"If there is any need for additional police protection," he said, "it has arisen as the result of the importation of strikebreakers by the hotel owners. Until the hotel owners began to comb the eastern cities for strikebreakers, the strike here in Washington had been orderly and peaceful."

Speaking for the hotel managements in response to charges that strikebreakers were being imported and hired directly through strike-affected hotels, Attorney McGarraghy declared:

"I deny emphatically we are importing strikebreakers contrary to law. I think the Department of Justice upholds my contentions."

Despite the continued presence of picket lines and the walkout of an estimated 2,200 service employes, each of the 13 beleagured hotels yesterday reported "business as usual."

Hotels Use Own Trucks

When the teamsters union refused to permit truck drivers to deliver orders of milk, bread and beer through picket lines, hotel managements resorted to the use of their own trucks and hired a few non-union concerns to make the deliveries.

Although the strikers charged that local department store vehicles were being used to deliver commodities to the Mayflower Hotel, the management denied the reports and called them "nasty rumors."

College students from Georgetown and Catholic University have been hired for part-time waiter work at the Mayflower. Several other hotels also used college students to serve meals and wait upon guests. Delegates to the dental convention at the Mayflower yesterday were served luncheon buffet style by three secretaries from the business office. The diners said the service was "excellent."

Earl Godwin, president of the White House Correspondents Association, nnounced cancellation of a dinner at the Mayflower at which President Roosevelt was to have been honor guest Saturday night. The banquet also would have been attended by members of the President's Cabinet and other Government officials.

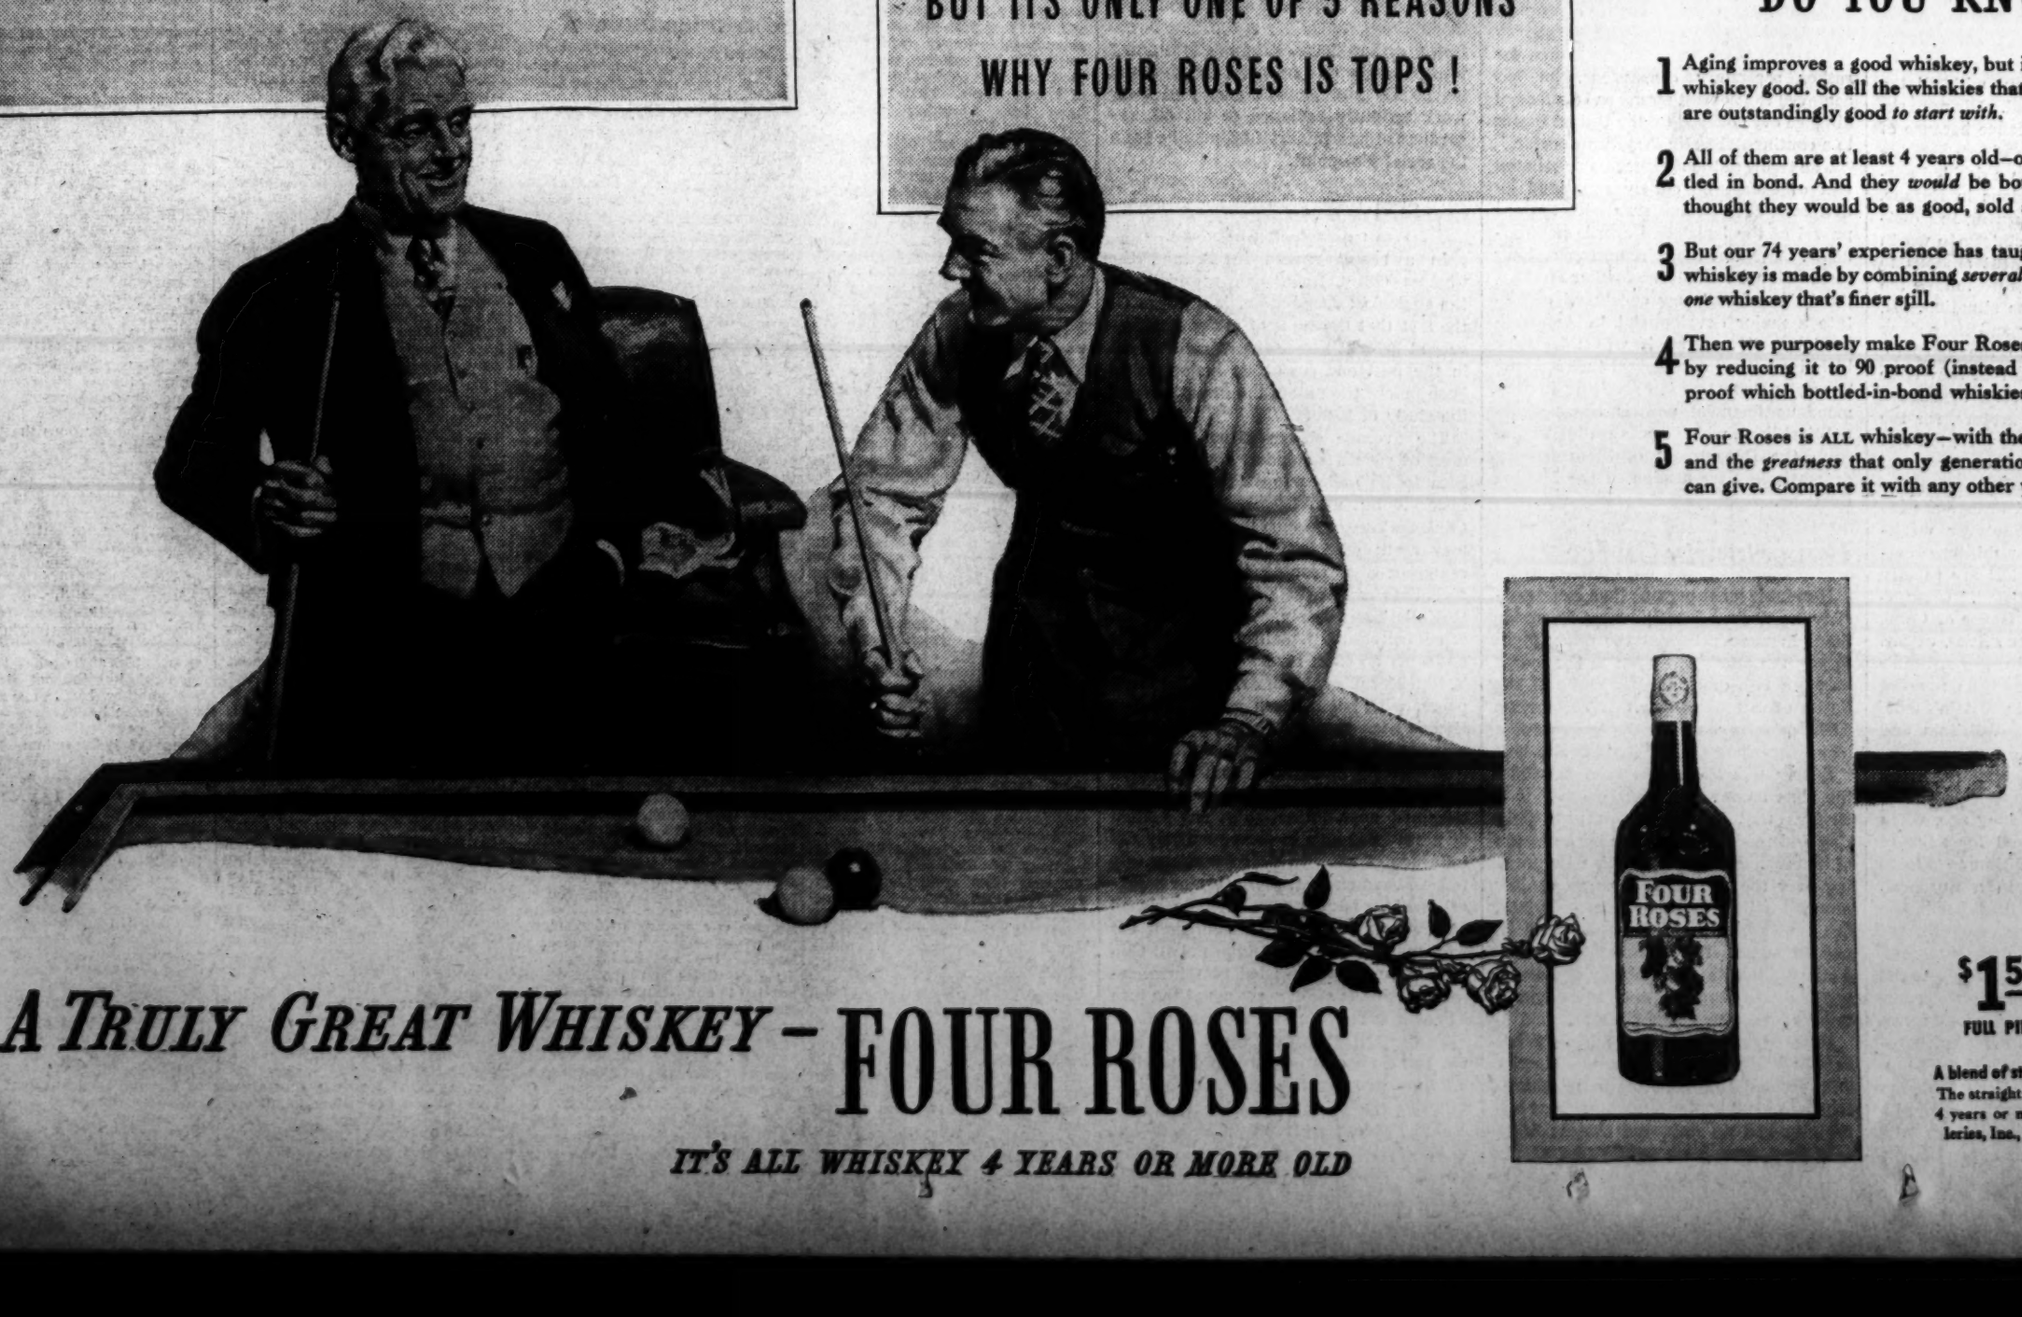
I KNOW FOUR ROSES IS ALL WHISKEY AT LEAST 4 YEARS OLD—IS THAT WHY YOU SAY IT'S AMERICA'S FINEST WHISKEY?

AGE IS MIGHTY IMPORTANT, BILL—BUT IT'S ONLY ONE OF 5 REASONS WHY FOUR ROSES IS TOPS!



DO YOU KNOW

1 Aging improves a good whiskey, but it can't make a poor whiskey good. So all the whiskies that go into Four Roses are outstandingly good to start with.

2 All of them are at least 4 years old—old enough to be bottled in bond. And they would be bottled in bond, if we thought they would be as good, sold separately that way.

3 But our 74 years' experience has taught us that the finest whiskey is made by combining several of our whiskies into one whiskey that's finer still.

4 Then we purposely make Four Roses lighter and milder, by reducing it to 90 proof (instead of the stronger 100 proof which bottled-in-bond whiskies must be).

5 Four Roses is ALL whiskey—with the mellowness of age, and the greatness that only generations of distilling skill can give. Compare it with any other whiskey made.

Basting Basing Points

The fact that the basing-point system of fixing prices has been in effect in the steel industry for several decades should be remembered in considering the Federal Trade Commission's somewhat excited denunciation of this traditional method of pricing steel products.

That the system itself indicates an absence of full and free competition is indubitable. That it results in economic waste, notably that resulting from cross-hauling of steel, is likewise apparent. Indeed, if we had set out to establish an ideal price policy for the steel industry when in its infancy, the basing-point system would no doubt have been banned, assuming anybody had then possessed the foresight to realize where it would lead.

However, the fact is that the steel industry has developed under a pricing system very different from that now favored by the F. T. C. It is a system that does not give the buyer located near a mill all the advantages of his geographical situation. It works against rather than for decentralized location of mills. Consequently, if there had been no basing-point system of pricing, the industrial pattern of the steel industry, and that of a good many other industries, would be very different today from what is actually the case.

To sweep away the existing system in order to restore conditions regarded as essential to sound competition would, as the F. T. C. admits in its statement to the O'Mahoney Committee, cause "considerable trouble and expense." That is a euphemistic way of describing the extensive readjustments necessitated by any sudden abandonment of practices which have been modified over the years, but never without regard for the effect upon the steel industry and the markets served by it.

It is hard to believe the F. T. C. allegation that the basing-point system constitutes a dire threat to capitalism and may be the genesis of authoritarian government. Indeed, it is possible to argue—and some do quite convincingly—that except for this system cutthroat competition would have brought about a much greater degree of monopolistic control of the steel industry than that existing at the present time.

Aid To France

In his notable exposition of Great Britain's new military policy, Leslie Hore-Belisha, the British war secretary, made it clear that Premier Chamberlain's recent pledge of assistance to France will if necessary be carried out with all the force at Britain's command. His remarks had an additional significance because of their timing.

Recently there has been a decided easing of international tensions in Europe. The fear of war in the spring has definitely subsided. But no statesman worth his salt, and no government anxious to preserve the peace, can afford to take too complacent a view of the situation. If, at the moment, Germany and Italy show no disposition to take to the warpath, there is also no indication that they have permanently abandoned their aggressive aims. It is necessary, therefore, for the democracies to be on their guard, to build up their strength and press on for a real state of peace.

Both Great Britain and France are individually doing so. Whatever weaknesses obtained in their military machines last summer and fall are rapidly being corrected or eliminated. Unquestioned acceptance in the House of Commons, even by his former critics, of Mr. Hore-Belisha's boast of the way Britain's defense preparations have been speeded up, shows this to be true in Britain's case. But that is not all. Great Britain and France today are doing everything possible to act in concert, should war break out.

There was a time, not long ago, when the British saw little need for advance training of an expeditionary force equipped to participate in a European struggle. Great Britain had her navy, France her Maginot line and one of the largest and best armies on the continent. The British have now come around to the realization that under present circumstances British naval power and French military power may not of and by themselves be sufficient to turn the tide in favor of the democracies. For this reason the British government, Mr. Hore-Belisha has made clear, is now planning in the event of war to send an expeditionary force several times the size of that which crossed the Channel in August, 1914.

The significance of the British war secretary's remarks will not be lost on Germany and Italy. If, until now, they have acted on the assumption that a wedge can be driven between the democracies they now stand corrected. And if, until now, they have banked on the hope that Britain would limit her participation in a European conflict to naval matters plus the dispatch of a token army to France, they can harbor no further illusions on that score.

The Accord With Brazil

The series of agreements with Brazil, made public by the Department of State yesterday, are of a very far-reaching nature. They convert the pious platitudes of pan-Americanism, so far as our relations with Brazil are concerned, into eminently practical measures of economic and financial co-operation. And they do so in a way which represents a direct counter-attack on Italo-German penetration in the most populous of the Latin-American republics.

Three separate accords have been signed by the Brazilian foreign minister and an appropriate American official. Each of them creates a close tie between the two republics. Each of them is clearly designed to fortify Brazil against other foreign influences and to increase the American stake in that country. Taken together they constitute a formidable commitment in the field of foreign policy.

Of these agreements the most politically significant is that signed by Secretary Morgenthau, offering assistance in the establishment of a central reserve bank for Brazil. As a part of this undertaking the Administration offers, subject to Congressional approval, a Government gold loan of $50,000,000, to be repaid, to the extent drawn upon, from future Brazilian gold production. Such a development would obviously make the United States a firm supporter of whatever government is in power at Rio de Janeiro.

Scarcely less important is the agreement by the Export-Import Bank to extend interest-bearing commercial credits to facilitate Brazilian purchases of American products, with a particular view to improving the rudimentary transportation system which makes Brazil's long seacoast exceedingly vulnerable to invasion. Further credits, the total outstanding at any one time not to exceed $19,200,000, are offered to enable Brazil to discontinue its foreign-exchange control in all trade with this country. This step is clearly designed to offset the recent development of barter trade between Brazil and the totalitarian states.

The third exchange of notes is between Secretary Hull and Foreign Minister Aranha. Mr. Hull writes a covering letter, taking cognizance of the direct agreements with the Treasury and the Export-Import Bank. But in it the Secretary of State also foreshadows the establishment of official American economic missions in Brazil. These will endeavor to develop Brazilian exports "which will complement production in the United States." Secretary Hull's note further approves the Brazilian offer, now for the first time made public, to resume payment, as of July 1, on Brazil's defaulted dollar-bond indebtedness.

Foreign Minister Aranha, who for the past month has been busily working here to further the collaboration now achieved, may feel well satisfied with the results attained. The United States has thrown the mantle of protection over his weak, but potentially very wealthy, country. Dr. Aranha may return to Rio satisfied with the knowledge that, in return for rather secondary concessions, he has achieved the nearest approach to a formal alliance ever offered by the United States to a continental Latin-American power.

The terms of the agreements negotiated will of course be closely examined by Congress, even in matters where the approval of the legislative arm is not requisite. The fact that circumstances alter cases will not conceal the further fact that the "discussions" now concluded constitute a major development in American foreign policy. And it will take very little investigation to reveal that it is the Treasury Department, exercising its tremendous financial powers along semi-political lines, which has taken leadership from the Department of State in this dramatic implementation of the Monroe Doctrine.

Opportunity On Ice

Hundreds more persons than could possibly be packed into the new Riverside Stadium were prepared the other night to pay the admission price to the match between two crack hockey clubs of the Eastern Amateur League. Actually, some 6,500 persons watched the game and a blood-for-blood thriller it proved to be.

Surely this lesson has been noted by the alert among sports promoters. It is obvious that Washington is now fully ripe and ready to support a hockey team of its own. Because spring is now peeping over the threshold is no excuse for procrastination in the matter. Indeed, the next six or seven months would be needed to get the venture properly organized. Besides, the subject of ice will prove a most congenial one for thought in some of the warm days ahead.

Nothing in recent sports history has been more impressive than the alacrity and enthusiasm with which Washingtonians have taken to skates. A year ago the city had no rink, and skaters could only pray, none too hopefully, for a good long freeze. Now there is both an indoor and an outdoor rink, each evidently popular. Everything seems to augur well for a hockey team worthy to carry the brand-new colors of the Capital City.

USHA's Vulnerable Spot

Senator Tydings' blast against the United States Housing Authority occasions no surprise. Many legislators will be astonished when they take time to examine the cost of the projects it has financed and sponsored. And that astonishment is likely to be manifested in sharp criticism on the floors of the Senate and House.

In presenting his indictment of the Housing Authority, however, Senator Tydings was not entirely judicial. While emphasizing the high cost of rehousing a family from the slums, under the method followed by Administrator Straus, he failed to note the fact that slum clearance is expensive under any circumstances. There seems to be general agreement that the USHA should concentrate its efforts upon projects which actually wipe out areas of indecent and unsafe housing. Allowance must therefore be made for the extra cost this type of rehousing entails.

Moreover, the Senator's contention that "the city, in effect, will make no contribution worthy of the name to the cost of these houses" is misleading. No doubt Federal subsidies granted by the USHA will repay the so-called local loans, as well as the Federal loans. But it should not be forgotten that the cities themselves are granting substantial subsidies in the form of tax exemption. Indeed, this exemption of the projects from local taxes was one point which brought severe criticism from Senator Tydings. Whether or not that criticism is justified, the cities should be given credit for the sacrifice they are making in the interests of low-rent housing.

On the other hand, Senator Tydings failed to make the most of one telling point against USHA costs. Dwellings financed by the USHA, he said, will cost $136 more than the average house occupied by the average American family today. Actually, USHA dwellings cost $136 more than privately built new homes for which mortgages are insured by the FHA.

Presumably Senator Tydings, like most other citizens, is entirely in sympathy with the objective of slum clearance on a national scale. His reasonable objection to the present program is that it is unlikely to extend very far precisely because the drain upon the public purse for each family rehoused is excessive. It will be extremely difficult for the USHA to answer this criticism. Its complete development costs, amounting to $5,520 per family to be housed, seem economically impossible. Dwellings provided at that cost are so much better than the quarters occupied by the average American family that subsidies to maintain them can scarcely be justified in the public mind.

Expensive developments, of course, mean exorbitant subsidies if the dwellings are to be made available to slum dwellers. Senator Tydings places the annual subsidy at $215 per family. Other investigators estimate it at $193. In either event, there must be added to this substantial local subsidies. The total yearly outlay per family is unquestionably fantastic. No other country attempts to pay such enormous sums to rehouse low-income families.

If the USHA persists in this policy, it will probably encounter serious difficulty in obtaining funds for a continuous attack upon the slums. The tide is running toward economy. Agencies which resist inevitable retrenchment may find their work seriously curtailed or cut off, regardless of how important it may be from the social viewpoint.

Clio Still A Muse

From the Christian Science Monitor.

In a recent speech in Britain, Sir Charles Grant Robertson, president of the Historical Association, laid stress on the fact that the roots of many great issues at present before the world lie deep in the past and he urged historians to keep before the nation the importance of the study of history.

The average citizen is constantly in need of such a reminder, not altogether because he undervalues "the lessons of history," but also because he is apt to think that they are such that he who runs may read; whereas, in fact, wide and comprehensive reading is necessary to assimilate any of them truly. As Mr. E. E. Kellett said lately, ". . . . it has become increasingly plain that history is no longer an affair for a single man, even if, like Macaulay, he deals, in a thousand pages, with but a dozen years. . . . The lessons each specialist implicitly teaches will vary with the man and his theme."

In addition, modern research has shown that the individual historian, however determined upon impartiality, has seldom or never been able to escape entirely the influence of his own preconceptions and inherent sympathies: patriotism or political leanings have often insensibly biased his outlook, or he has remembered too well that, as Prof. Trevelyan put it, Clio is a Muse, which has led him involuntarily to desert strict accuracy at the lure of rhetoric and the moving passage.

The citizen, therefore, needs to realize the full emphasis on the word "study," and the necessity for summing up carefully for himself in the knowledge of several and differing verdicts, if he is to find in history a reliable guide.

Freedom of Religion

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A minister of a Protestant (once called "free") church, says that "the state should recognize the distinctive nature and function of the church in the world;" meaning that in matters of taxation a church organization should not be looked upon as just another monopolistic unit. And it is further argued that the methods of a church organization should not be controlled by the state. But there are always two sides of a controversy.

Time was when peoples had a national church, such as the Jews before Jesus introduced a more modern teaching, or such as the Romans, the Greeks and Armenians, before Protestantism infused new ideas into the public mentality as a result of more widespread knowledge of the Bible. As it was in the case of the first "heretic," that is to say, Jesus, who was persecuted by the church organization because the state (Roman governor in Palestine) shirked its responsibility to protect the individual, later on other church organizations did the same thing with subsequent "heretics" because governments did not supervise the methods of their religious organizations.

To forestall this, the framers of the Federal Constitution were impelled to incorporate the first amendment in that Constitution, that is, to protect the individual's freedom of religion. And because the people themselves did not know enough to give the correct interpretation of that first and all-important amendment, lovers of freedom turned against religion, when really they rebelled against the tyranny of organizations. That is why we have had Ataturks, Mussolinis, Lenins and Hitlers.

We doubt if any of these men would have become so radical in their efforts to put down the churches if it were not for the fear that those churches are subject to the temptation of using their organizations to serve the interests of their own material expansion, rather than that of "healing broken hearts." C PHILIPS.

'With Malice Toward Some'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A daily reader of The Post would appreciate an opportunity, respectfully, if "with malice toward some," to address the Congress of the United States.

We have before us the extension of the merit system. We want it. Give us a merit system of which we can be proud. We like to play by the rules of the game.

You (Congress) are tired of running an employment bureau.

We are tired of something, too, Mr. Congressmen. We elected you to represent us because you know us and we know you. Tell Uncle Sam we think he is a good boss, and we want him to help us show our appreciation by becoming more efficient, and we depend upon him to look after our interests. We don't need any labor organizer to tell you that. There ought to be a law against it.

No Criticism Intended

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial entitled "Massachusetts Ratifies," under date of March 5, is unduly critical.

You might be interested to know that the Massachusetts Constitution approved by the people and adopted October 25, 1780, contained a bill of rights at least as broad as the Bill of Rights added to the United States Constitution by amendment December 15, 1791, and largely served as a basis for such amendments to the United States Constitution. Democratic Control Of Monopoly

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your issue of March 8 reports "a stinging indictment of monopolistic practices in the steel industry" by the Federal Trade Commission which "warned that disappearance of free competition might mean the death of capitalism and of democratic government."

The writer holds no brief for the monopolistic practices of the great capitalists, but the insistence upon a return to so-called "free competition" or the death of democratic government, is a species of "or else" reasoning which should not go unchallenged.

It must be recognized that competition has played an important and useful part in the history of human growth, but like all industrial systems it finally reaches a stage where its social mission is performed and its usefulness is outlived. When this occurs, competition begins to yield gradually to combination and ultimately monopolies and trusts.

Trusts are not mere artificial inventions of diabolical capitalists, nor are they accidental or preventable evils. "Trust-busting" activities dating back to Theodore Roosevelt's occupancy of the White House have amply shown this. Monopolies unquestionably represent a superior and more efficient method of industrial management than competition, modifying our social conditions both for the better and for the worse. Like all other modern industrial institutions they are primarily, if not solely, conducted for the profit of their individual owners or promoters and are therefore afflicted with all the vices of private ownership and management.

It may be true that monopolies present a greater menace to democracy than did the system of free competition; but given a social service objective not subordinated to the demands of private profit, monopoly can serve to create a social democracy far outstripping in its benefits to the masses our political democracy.

Many years ago someone sloganized this aim by saying "Let the people own the trusts." While the analogy is perhaps not on all fours, this would mean an extension of the forms of socialized monopolies which we now have in the postal system, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the public school system, publicly owned highways, etc., etc., none of which have endangered our democratic government although each was charged with doing so.

Operating in a field of mere regulation and control of privately owned industries, the Federal Trade Commission, whose service to the American public cannot be gainsaid, seems intent upon defying so-called "free enterprise." It would perhaps have been more appropriate for the commission to have left to the authorities which manage our socially owned facilities the expression of opinion as to whether the socialization of our basic industries would be the deathknell of our democratic government.

The opinion expressed by the FTC is a distinct service to the private owners of industry but an equally distinct disservice to the cause of democracy in America.

LEO MELTZER,
National Executive Secretary
Social Democratic Federation.

Strawberry Shortcake

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post deserves a word of gratitude from a long-suffering public for its editorial of March 6, entitled "They Call It Shortcake.' In a way it is a culinary declaration of independence. Its description of shortcake as "triangles of half-baked sponge dough fastened together with a few cold-storage berries" is beyond all praise.

well does the writer recall the strawberry shortcakes of olden times. The cake itself somewhat resembled a soda biscuit, deliciously crackly and brittle, and with an unlimited capacity for absorbing fruit juice. There were two layers of shortcake and two layers of berries were an inch thick. Sometimes a dash of sugar whitened the topmost berries. The fruit was home-ripened, fresh from the garden, and breathing out a rich aroma. This noble conception of the culinary art, half floating in deep juice, resembled a fairy island sailing over a sunset sea. From its nature there was but one way of eating those wonderful shortcakes and that was with a fork, a large soupspoon, and napkin well tucked under the chin.

In the same editorial is a scathing and well-deserved indictment of the so-called clam chowders of the present day, tasteless mixtures of leftover vegetables, thickened with flour and entirely free of clams, so far as either eye or tongue can detect. The old-time chowders were more than 50 per cent clams, or their juice, the large ones cut up a little as an old clam is sometimes a tough customer. Here and there, one might discover a bit of salt pork, while pieces of pilot bread or seabiscuit floated on the surface.

To many epicures, the clam, hard or soft, has, of all sea foods, the highest perfection of true marine flavor—a flavor that suggests wild gales on the rock-bound coasts of New England, sea-weed and barnacles and the vision of trawlers and ancient tars. Shall these rare and uplifting dishes pass forever from our civilization without one word of protest?

In these troublous times The Post could perform no worthier service than to dig up and republish old-time recipes of how to make clam chowder out of clams, and strawberry shortcakes by using strawberries.

National Auditorium Site

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has gone on record, unanimously, in favor of the downtown site for the proposed National Auditorium. The Hotel Men's Association has done likewise. Mr. Van Duzer has shown, clearly, that the traffic can be handled infinitely more efficiently at the downtown site than over on the Anacostia River; an expert of the Capital Transit Co. has borne out Mr. Van Duzer's arguments, insofar as the street cars and buses are concerned; the public and private buildings committee of the Washington Board of Trade has voted overwhelmingly (almost unanimously) in favor of the downtown site!

The Park and Planning Commission has a plan, which is to be shown to the directors of the Washington Board of Trade on Monday, I believe, which shows the advantages of the downtown site in a graphic way and this plan—if its reproduction might be permitted—would furnish an appropriate "opening gun" for your campaign, if you might be willing to undertake such a campaign.

Hagar

THE SILENCE in the front seat was deafening as we left Memphis behind. Ordinarily I am tractable enough, but good nature has its limits. To be encumbered with a stray cat and her sickly kitten just as we were leaving for New Orleans was too much.

Milord had brought the dismal creatures into the hotel room in a paper bag, and how he ran the gantlet of clerks and bellhops was beyond my comprehension. The cat and kitten had wandered into the radio station just before his departure, and in some unaccountable way he seemed to feel responsible. Of course the logical solution was to leave them at the Animal Rescue League, but we were in a hurry to get off. So here they were, bedded down on the back seat, and on their way with us.

Diminishing anger is a boresome thing, and being too garrulous to maintain an endless silence, I suggested that we had better stop somewhere and feed the animals before malnutrition became fatal. We pulled up at the next country store and watched Hagar (named by common consent) lap her milk while we drank coca-colas. Then she settled herself back in the car and began to feed Ishmael. I took my turn driving and my husband played "Oh, Susanna" on his harmonica.

We had often made the trip, but this time there was an indefinable difference. It may have been due to the smug mantle of righteousness that descended upon us, or perhaps Hagar's utter contentment communicated itself to the front seat. But the road seemed less dusty, the plate lunches more appetizing and the young leaves on the trees were greener.

The next day in New Orleans we were convinced that Hagar was responsible for our phenomenal luck, for we found an apartment much too charming to exist out of the pages of a guide book and moved in before the fluttery little landlady could get around to excluding pets. I had bought a tin tub and a cake of flea soap on the way in, and presently cat and kitten emerged from their bath a respectable, if somewhat rangy pair. As I unpacked I reflected that they did more to create a homelike atmosphere than the few lares and penates we allowed ourselves to carry.

Our luck held, for toward noon a young colored girl knocked on the door, explaining that she usually worked for the different tenants in the house, and the landlady said I might need help. She had a gentle voice and exquisite manners, and I found later that she had been trained in the kitchen of the Dominican Convent.

I left her pressing clothes and petting Hagar, and set out to do my marketing. Turning down Esplanade for a few blocks, I caught enchanting glimpses of gateways and walled gardens, and dark-haired children playing on the sidewalk in noisy abandon. New Orleans is a lovely place in the spring. The winter mist is gone with Mardi Gras and the sun seems to shine a warm approval upon the season of penance.

I stopped a moment beside the gates of a cemetery that reminded me of a giant chess board, with its stately cross-topped mausoleums and square tombs that took on the fancied shapes of kings and queens and rooks and pawns. Here and there an obelisk rose like a bishop in his mitred hat. The sunlight filtering through the golden dust made me feel as if I were walking in a dream.

A little beyond I crossed the canal and pulled myself away from the entrance of the park. After all, the oaks would last until tomorrow, and food must be bought. An hour later I was sitting on a kitchen stool watching Artemese peel shrimp for jambalaya while Hagar looked on from the floor with round, solemn eyes.

Every few days there was another cooking lesson as Artemese led me through the mysteries of bouillabaisse, gumbo and crab bisque, with Hagar witnessing my triumphs and eating my failures. Like ourselves, she developed a taste for garlic and herbs, and on Sunday morning listened with us for the bugle of the waffle man. One day she and Ishmael were caught broadside by a half yard of bread tossed on the top step by the bread boy, and thereafter they discreetly awaited entry on the walk. They grew plump and sleek in this best of all possible worlds. Our neighbor upstairs, a sea captain's wife, often came down to watch the kitten romp, and even the landlady declared that for once the house was free of mice.

In the evenings Hagar purred the hours away, rubbing against our legs. My husband would mark the place in his book with a forefinger, knock the ashes out his pipe, and remark that a cat was as good as a hanging crane for creating an air of contentment.

June was settling down and the air became stifling and listless. We closed the shutters during the day to keep the dim old rooms as cool as possible, and opened them wide at night, but the hot air crept in and smothered us in our sleep. We would soon be leaving.

The next trip would be short jumps of indeterminate length, so it was out of the question to carry the cats. The sea captain's wife offered to take Ishmael, and Artemese wanted Hagar. As we left the little maid stood by the gate with the tabby placid in her arms, while the kitten stalked a bug in the grass.

Ishmael is probably large and middle-aged now, yowling the nights away or replenishing the neighborhood with her kind—whichever was foreordained in the beginning. Hagar is very old, but I hope she is still where she can watch Artemese peel shrimp. For I have a deep and abiding sense of gratitude toward Hagar and her child. They helped us make a home of a temporary lodging, and any creatures that have had a part in the making of a home have earned a shining place in memory.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

A Beneficial 'Vice'

IN ONE OF his orations on the duties and derelictions of the press, Harold Ickes, the little Joe Goebbels of the New Deal, insisted that dishonest motives and not objective editorial judgment caused a majority of the newspapers to dead-hook a story about cigarettes which, in the words of an authority that he quoted, was sensational enough to "make tobacco users' flesh creep."

I am not going into that argument again, because those who believe that the story was suppressed and not merely spiked will continue to believe that the editors who omitted it did so out of consideration for those who buy space to advertise cigarettes. There is no proof by which to unconvince them.

However, it follows that if Mr. Ickes regards the cigarette as a great menace to health he must favor the abolition of the industry and of the trade in other forms of tobacco as well, the other forms being only slightly less poisonous than the cigarette.

Even Roosevelt Might Be Aroused

HE DOES NOT press that point, however, and if he were to do so he probably would catch a swift pop in the mouth from the mild and friendly Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, who last year collected in taxes from the manufacture of tobacco, including cigarettes, more than half a billion dollars.

Even Mr. Roosevelt, a cigarette smoker himself, might reach across the table and whang Mr. Ickes one with the crook of his stick at the next Cabinet meeting, for the tobacco habit is one whose abolition would wreck not only the New Deal but rattle the United States.

The Treasury, which must find the money that Mr. Ickes spends, would lose $568,181,000 a year, vast areas of tobacco land in nine States would become a fresh problem to poor Henry Wallace, thousands of tobacco-field hands and factory workers employed not only in tobacco manufacture but in dependent operations would be thrown onto relief or WPA, and there would be ghastly consequences in many other directions.

Tobacco Industry Maintains No Lobby

THE $500,000,000 of taxes on cigarettes and tobacco manufacture is about half the size of the Treasury's loot from the individual income taxes and about half the size of the corporation income tax revenue. Moreover, individuals and corporations in the tobacco trade are large contributors to the individual and corporation income tax, and if their income were cut off those totals would drop sharply. It is impossible to estimate how much.

Very oddly—and here is a tip for some alert lobbyist in search of a rich client—the tobacco industry maintains no lobby here comparable to the liquor lobby and may have none at all.

I have searched patiently, if not too skillfully, being not a very good figure-digger, for an authority who could give me collected figures on the number of retail tobacco stores in the country, and the figure that I discovered—about 15,000—seems hardly worth reporting.

There must be that many in New York City alone.

Think Of All The Indirect Benefits

SO, TOO, of other data. Sixteen States have license taxes for dealers, but I can't find out how much they collect. Many States and cities have sales taxes.

Tobacco stores pay real estate taxes, consume heat and light, employ thousands of clerks and require the services of not readily calculable number and variety of workers along a line extending back to the plantation fields and along sidelines into the paper box, packet, label, cellophane, ink, art, writing and typographical trades.

The cancellation of all cigarette and tobacco advertising would break many papers and magazines whose margin between profit and loss is no greater than their income from tobacco copy. The editorial, mechanical and advertising staffs then would be on the street.

Other papers and magazines, losing their income, would have to fire workers proportionately, and the load of their support would be shifted almost bodily to the Government, which simultaneously would lose that $500,000,000 and an unknown sum now received in income taxes from persons and firms in the tobacco trade.

Our Vices Seem To Pay Their Way

LAST YEAR Hugh Johnson went into South Carolina, checking information on the attitude of tobacco growers toward crop or acreage curtailment, and discovered one grower who had called on the local WPA office and announced that the minute his acreage was shrunk he was going to dump 97 colored fieldhands onto the WPA's doorstep.

Tobacco and liquor pay in the form of direct Treasury taxes alone more than a billion a year, which is more than one-sixth of the total receipts.

So what difference would it make if the story that was likely to make the users' flesh creep was suppressed or just omitted? This country supports itself largely by its vices and would preserve its arteries and stripes at the sacrifice of its existence as a Nation.

Oxford Indiscretion

By Perry Kimball

A General Spills The Beans

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Oxford, England, Feb. 24 (by mail.)

A GENERAL, some indiscreet remarks and a jittery government officialdom upset Oxford's academic torpor last week in no uncertain manner. Speaking before a hush-hush meeting of the Oxford Officer's Training Corps, Maj. Gen. Sir Ronald F. Adam, deputy chief of the Imperial General Staff, dropped a barrage of supposedly secret information that in no time at all leaked into the channels of common conversation.

Since then the war ministry with the enlisted help of the university proctors has been engaged in a frantic effort to keep the information out of the public print. And, at this writing, not a single word has yet escaped into the columns of the Oxford or London press.

Although the unfortunate brasshat showed small discretion in his discussion of some of Britain's latest developments in offensive armament, what really has the big-wigs worried was the nature of some of his political remarks. With brutal frankness unbecoming in a high official in His Majesty's armed forces, Gen. Adams talked straight and to the point about the foreign policy being pursued by His Majesty's government.

Munich, he stated, had struck a vital blow at Britain's strategic position in the continent and unless the current trend of Mr. Chamberlain's plans were quickly reversed it was of small use for the Empire to bother about an army at all. Speaking for the army high command, the general indicated a practically unanimous hostility to the ideas of the Conservative government as to how the vital interests of the Empire should be defended.

General Reveals Plans Re Spain

EVEN MORE embrassing to the Cabinet which was then negotiating the delicate matter of the recognition of Franco Spain, was the general's confession that up to the last moment two British expeditionary divisions had been fully equipped for instant transportation to the Pyrenees. It was the official intention of government army strategy, Gen. Adams stated, to land these forces the moment that any incident should arise over the drive of the Italian legionaries toward the Republican-French border, although not a word of such preparations had been heard in any of the Parliamentary reports of the Chamberlain government to the members of the House of Commons.

When the news of these revelations became known to the editors of the four Oxford undergraduate periodicals they received a hasty summons to the chambers of the university proctors who regulate the rules of undergraduate discipline. The proctors, acting under the request of the War Ministry at Whitehall, ordered that no report of this speech or any comment thereon should be printed, under pain of immediate suppression. At the same time, it was understood, a similar order went out to Fleet Street, with the result that the story was killed by every metropolitan daily.

BECAUSE the British press is notoriously sensitive to governmental requests for news suppression and because of a healthy respect for England's peculiarly stringent official secrets act, it is not likely that the British reading public will ever know about this confession of cleavage between the foreign office and army command or receive any inkling that preparations had been made to send British soldiers to foreign soil without consulting the views of Parliament.

In this connection it is also interesting to recall that similar measures of news censorship have been taking place in England ever since the Munich crisis. It is well known that during the hectic days of September at least one large London daily was approached by the foreign office to modify its accounts of the real nature behind Chamberlain's flying visits to Germany. Shortly after the Munich agreement an American newsreel account of those visits, in somewhat unflattering terms, was forbidden to be shown on British screens.

Foreign Spies Active in Britain

ALTHOUGH great care is taken to protect British subjects against exposure to disquieting news reports, indications are that foreign agents working in Great Britain enjoy a large amount of information.

Not long ago a former American diplomatic representative in a central European capital made an off-the-record speech to an Oxford undergraduate club in which he made some uncomplimentary remarks about Signor Mussolini. Within a week the former diplomat was informed in his London home that "in view of remarks which you are reported to have made at Oxford, you will no longer be permitted to pass the Italian frontier."

Not long afterwards an official of the Polish Legation in London made a similar speech in Oxford in the course of which he indulged himself in some rather lavish remarks in praise of Adolph Hitler. Questioned further in private, the speaker admitted that he did not believe in the sentiments he had expressed, but that it was a well known fact in London that members of foreign legations were tabulated and recorded in the German Embassy according to the reports on their utterances received from Nazi agents.

ACCORDING to the testimony of a prominent American journalist stationed in London, English government officials are practically inaccessible these days except to representatives of English, pro-government newspapers. Under the official secrets act, this foreign correspondent reveals, anti-government journals are in effect barred from any material emanating from the civil service. For, under this act, civil service employes are open to prosecution for the revelation of any information that can be construed as vital.

It has become the practice of the government to apply the terms of this legislation to information used by opposition papers only. Even the editors backing the Chamberlain administration, however, tend to omit such news for fear of running afoul of the act.

Hampered by extraordinarily severe laws of libel, appealed to constantly in the name of "patriotic duty," limited by the small space available for news stories (the London Times rarely exceeds 20 pages), and badgered by an official policy of suppression of vital facts, English newspapers are having a hard time keeping their subscribers abreast of home and European affairs.

As a result, the American man in the street is better informed as to what is going on in England than are most Britishers on their native heath.

Federal Debt

By Ernest K. Lindley

Comparison With England

THE "ECONOMY BLOC" in Congress is getting ready to take a stand against increasing the authorized Federal debt limit by $5,000,000,000, to a total of $50,000,000,000. The President says this is unimportant.

Certainly it is not of much immediate importance. Unless the tax revision that is now in prospect results in greatly reduced revenues, or unless appropriations greatly exceed the budget requests, the Federal debt on June 30, 1940, the end of the next fiscal year, will still be safely within the present authorized limit of $45,000,000,000. Before then Congress will have met in another session. It can decide then whether the debt limit needs to be raised for the following fiscal year—the one ending June 30, 1941.

In the meantime the Treasury might find itself handicapped in one respect. Under the present debt limit it can issue only $30,000,000,000 in bonds. The other 15 must be in short-term securities; securities which mature in five years or less. The Treasury may, and very probably will, find it wise to convert part of the present short-term debt into bonds. As it now has outstanding nearly $27,000,000,000 in bonds and will have to borrow about $4,000,000,000 of new money in one way or another before June 30, 1940, the allowance left for turning short-term securities into bonds is very small indeed.

Is Federal Deficit Near Danger Point?

ALL THIS is trivial detail, however, in comparsion with the question: "Is the Federal debt nearing the danger point?"

According to some spokesmen for economy the debt is at the danger point—and has been ever since it passed $30,000,000,000 or thereabouts.

Nobody knows how large a Federal debt the United States could support. Theoretically the debt could be almost any size if it were owned within the United States and enough taxes could be levied to pay the interest charges. But there is no need to indulge in theory. Certainly no sensible citizen wants to run the risk of pushing this country into a disastrous inflation.

The present Federal debt is somewhat less than $40,000,000,000. This is a little more than $300 for every person in the United States.

A debt is large or small, of course, only in relation to the income or earning capacity of the debtor. The total income produced by the Nation last year was about $62,000,000,000. This year it may run up to $68,000,000,000 or $70,000,000,000. So our total Federal debt is roughly between 57 per cent and 63 per cent of our national income.

United Kingdom Owes 35 Billions

ACROSS THE Atlantic is another nation with an economic system similar to ours, a nation long experienced in public and private finance and one which has not suffered from inflation, Great Britain.

The United Kingdom has a national debt of $35,000,000,000, excluding the war debt owed to us and debts which it owes to other governments. Last year the United Kingdom had a total national income of about $25,000,000,000. So its national debt was about 140 per cent of its national income.

If our national debt were as large in relation to our income as the United Kingdom's debt is in relation to its income, it would be between $89,000,000,000 and $98,000,000,000—instead of $40,000,000,000.

Our States and localities have total debts of about $19,000,000,000. You can add this to our Federal debt to obtain a total of almost $59,000,000,000 of debts for our Federal, State and local Governments.

Interest Charges Lower in U. S.

LOCALITIES in the United Kingdom have a total debt of about $9,000,000,000, according to the latest figures available, making a total public debt, national and local, of about $44,000,000,000. This is 176 per cent of the national income of the United Kingdom. If the combined debts of our Federal, State and local Governments were 176 per cent of our national income, they would total between $109,000,000,000 and $123,000,000,000—instead of $59,000,000,000.

The interest charges on the national debt of the United Kingdom amount to 4 per cent of the national income.

The interest charges on our national debt amount to about 1½ per cent of our national income.

Moreover, the British economic plant was operating almost at capacity last year, while ours is working at only two-thirds capacity, or a little better. On a national income of $80,000,000,000 we would need a total public debt—Federal, State and local—of $140,000,000,000 to match the British.

The experience of the British should be a conclusive answer to those who fear that our public debt is nearing the danger point.

The Dictators' 1939 Plans

MR. HORE-BELISHA'S statement in the House of Commons to the effect that in case of war the British government would envisage sending 300,000 men to France sounds sensational, but is logical and inevitable should a general European war break out in which one or more continental powers contend with Britain and France.

Great Britain cannot defend herself on her own ground. The British Isles are too small and too vulnerable to make any such program at all feasible.

If there should be war the best thing that Britain could do and the least costly in lives would be to move as many men to the battle line as quickly as possible and assure a quick and victorious outcome.

I am inclined to think that Mr. Hore-Belisha's statement—although a prognosis of fact—was intended again as a warning to the Nazi and Fascist governments.

For there is not the slightest doubt that these governments, following the incredible capitulation at Munich, had outlined a grandiose program for 1939.

Whether this program has been abandoned or modified is, of course, a matter for speculation.

Bonnet Disclaimed Earlier Revelation

BUT THE Journal des Debats presumes to know what the program of the axis powers is, or was. A sensational article appeared in that paper this week. Its publication is the more significant because only a few days before the French woman journalist, Genevieve Tabouis, in an article in L'Oeuvre, had revealed in more vague terms what is now precisely stated in the Journal des Debats.

Mlle. Tabouis' article brought her into sharp conflict with M. Bonnet, the French foreign minister, who had the article denied, naming Mlle. Tabouis and denouncing her in such unmeasured terms of reprobation that the press association protested. But L'Oeuvre is a left-wing paper, hostile to the Daladier-Bonnet policy.

The Journal des Debats cannot be so described. It is generally regarded as the organ of the Comite des Forges, the most powerful French industrial group. It has been pro-Bonnet, pro-appeasement and pro-Munich. The author of the article is a well-known journalist, M. Bernus.

The Journal des Debats insists that it is in possession of documents of indisputable validity which set forth the plans adopted by the axis powers for 1939.

It says that the success of these plans depends on a surprise attack. Therefore, the Journal des Debats published them in the belief that the mere fact of their being known, provided that they are taken seriously by the French and British governments, may act as a preventive measure against their being put into practice.

Axis Powers' Plan Of Campaign Bared

THIS PLAN of the axis powers consisted in the first line of creating all sorts of difficulties for the western democracies on as many fronts as possible.

The occupation of the Island of Hainan by Japan was one move in this campaign.

The Italian campaign against France is another. Under the plan Italy would enormously reinforce her troops in Libya, looking toward French Somaliland, and the agitation in Palestine and Syria would be pushed, if possible, to the point of revolution. Italian general mobilization would immediately follow.

Joint action was envisaged for a date as nearly as possible following the end of the Spanish civil war. At the agreed-upon moment Italy would officially formulate claims in Africa and in Europe, and these would be unequivocally backed by Hitler in a speech in which he would set forth German claims in the form of an ultimatum.

These would be accompanied by a lightning operation which, in the mind of Hitler, would bring immediate capitulation by the western powers. This operation would consist of a brusque attack against Holland and possibly Switzerland.

The German army would seize positions in these countries as "territorial pledges" under the pretense that the move was not for conquest but only a "provisional occupation" taken for purposes of "defense." (If this interpretation of what constitutes defense seems fantastic to us let us remember that the controlled German and Italian press has repeatedly defined "aggression" as resistance to just and right claims, with the axis powers determining unilaterally what claims are right and just.)

Hitler Should Be Warned, Article Says

WITH GERMAN troops in Holland and possibly Switzerland threatening further action, Hitler would then list his demands and ask Britain and France to give immediate satisfaction.

The Journal des Debats insists that it is necessary that Hitler should be warned immediately that his plans are known, his calculations are wrong, and the outcome of any such move will be catastrophic for Germany.

The Journal des Debats editorializes that the first gain will be made if Hitler knows that the benefit of surprise is lost, and it urges the governments to inform Hitler that they are aware of his intentions.

The article concludes with the words, "we are not in the habit of launching sensational information without proof, and we hope that this article will be taken seriously."

It is the belief of this column that the plan here envisaged exists. The Dutch and the Swiss have displayed the greatest apprehension in the last months. The Swiss borders are being fortified with a ring of steel. The tension in both countries has been enormous.

German Citizens Sullenly Resist

But it is also the belief of this column that the sullen resistance of the German public since Munich to any further adventures and the exceptional solidarity shown by resistance to just and right claims, already given Hitler serious reasons to reconsider.

That the plan has been permamently abandoned, however, is not in the least likely. It will be actual again the moment the western democracies go to sleep.

And in this connection it is greatly to be hoped that Congress will not indulge in any action which might at this time give comfort to the axis powers.

For the result of such a program as envisaged here would be either war or another capitulation. And the eventual end of this systematic aggrandizement will be, again, either war or general revolution. We ought either to repeal the neutrality act or let it stand as it is. But we certainly ought not to present to the world at this moment the spectacle of a Nation divided on foreign policy.

Sports Interview

Q.—Mister Commissioner, can it be true that a meeting between Tony Galento and Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship will be permitted?

A.—Positively.

Q.—On what grounds?

A.—On the grounds the public will stand for anything.

Q.—Is it not an ordinary rule of procedure to require that an opponent of a heavyweight champion be in the same class as the champion as a trained athlete?

A.—Don't talk like that. It dates you.

Q.—On what basis does Galento rate as a suitable opponent for the champion?

A.—He gets the necessary publicity.

Q.—But what about skill, condition, speed and ability?

A.—There you go again talking like an old-timer.

Q.—Galento makes a practice of swigging large quantities of beer while training, does he not?

A.—It seems so.

Q.—He poses for newspaper pictures drinking beer out of the bottle?

A.—Quite true. He is one of the best beer drinkers in America's athletic life.

A.—Skip it.

Q.—Isn't a boxing bout supposed to be a match between two trained athletes in the best of condition and equally matched?

A.—It seems to me I read something like that in a book once.

Q.—Hasn't the boxing business spent years trying to divorce itself from the picture of brute force, dissipations, sordid associations, et cetera?

A.—Must you bring that up?

Q.—Hasn't much time and money been spent to create in the minds of a critical public the illusion that the prize ring had been elevated from its low estate, that high rules of sportsmanship are being enforced by State commissions, and that the splendid condition, conduct and skill of the athletes constitute a good example to the youth of America?

A.—Not so loud. Somebody may hear you

Q.—Hasn't the boxing industry been battling for years to demonstrate that boxing is a matter of physical perfection, skill, intelligence, quick reactions and clean living?

A.—Shush! There's a man over there listening.

Q.—Haven't laws against prize fights been repealed, the opposition silenced and the welfare of the game greatly benefited by those pretentions to sportsmanship and fair play?

A.—I think you're right there, mister.

Q.—Has Tony Galento ever been in perfect physical condition for a fight?

A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Has he ever trained without emphasizing the beer angle?

A.—You've got me there, buddy.

Q.—Isn't it conceded that Mr. Galento is fat, awkward, out of shape, ludicrously slow and far from an athletic type?

A.—Uhuh.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that Joe Louis rates as the fastest, best-conditioned, deadliest punching and cleverest fighter of our times?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Then why is this match sanctioned?

A.—It's all done by mirrors!

Speaking of Mr. Dewey, his boom for the Presidency continues. But it would make a flat campaign. Not a crook in the country would have the courage to vote more than twice

Ruhland Gets Control Of Gallinger

Agreement on Rule Reached by Heads Of 2 Universities And Commissioners

Health Officer George C. Ruhland was granted ultimate control over the major wards at Gallinger Hospital in an agreement approved yesterday by the District Commissioners and involving the two local medical schools.

Culminating a year's controversy between the schools and Dr. Ruhland, the agreement provides for the appointment upon recommendation of Dr. Ruhland, of a superintendent of medical services.

Five chief resident physicians who last July Dr. Ruhland placed in command of the departments now will be responsible to the head of the department and the chief of service, who are selected from the visiting staff physicians from the medical schools.

At the same time, Dr. Ruhland said he had asked Dr. Walter Bliedern, chief of staff at the hospital, for a report on all visiting staff physicians.

"Be Weeded Out"

It was learned all "incompetent visiting staff physicians will be weeded out." It also was understood the schools will provide clinical professorships to the chief resident physicians.

The controversy arose last July at the time of appointment of the resident physicians. Prior to that time the visiting staff physicians were in control at the hospital.

The agreement reached early this week between Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, the Very Rev. Arthur O'Leary, president of Georgetown University, and Dr. Ruhland, was accomplished with the aid of several Congressional hearings and the work of Richard Mackenzie, District Commissioners' consultant.

Mackenzie met last week with the university heads and with Dr. Ruhland to attempt to reach an agreement. On Tuesday the group met with Representative Collins, chairman of the House District subcommittee on appropriations, and the settlement was completed.

Before House Group

The United States Public Health Service survey on Gallinger Hospital two years ago specifically recommended a full-time clinical director, or superintendent of medical service, and suggested the appointmen be given to a physician not connected with either local medical school.

It was understood the director's position will be provided in the 1941 District budget estimates which are now before the House subcommittee.

The agreement also provides that: "The preparation and adoption of adequate rules and regulations governing the visiting and house staffs as amendments to the by-laws of the medical staff of the hospital, and the preparation of rules for such of the departments as may be necessary to aid in assuring adequate care of the patients.

"That provision be made to develop and improve the scientific instruction of clinical medicine to medical students and members of the House staff.

"That by July 1, 1940, only those doctors be appointed as Chief of Service who have been approved by the National board of the specialty in which he intends to practice.

". . . it is the duty of the Georgetown and George Washington universities to do all that is reasonable to raise the grade of work of the two medical schools wherever they do not meet the best standards so that the professional care of the indigent sick at Gallinger may have all the benefits the two universities may contribute."

The agreement is subject to change by the commissioners or when Dr. Ruhland and the schools agree mutually to change the agreement.

Hillebrand Prize Given to D. C. Scientists

Gilchrist and Wichers Honored by Chemists For Platinum Study

Drs. Raleigh Gilchrist and Edward Wichers, both of the National Bureau of Standards, last night were presented the Hillebrand Prize of the Chemical Society of Washington for 1938, at the Cosmos Club.

They were the first scientists to evolve a simple method by which the six metals of the platinum series could be separated.

The paper, "A New System of Analytical Chemistry for the Platinum Metals," was presented before the Ninth Annual Congress of Pure and Applied Chemistry in 1934. It was printed in 1936, and the announcement that they had been chosen for the award was made last month.

The platinum metals, iridium, palladium, osmium, ruthenium, rhodium and platinum, itself, are widely used in commerce and their usefulness is not confined to jewelry, as many people think, Dr. Gilchrist said. About 500,000 ounces of the six metals were mined last year with a world market value of $20,000,000, or $40 an ounce. During the World War, the metals sold for $105 an ounce, being extremely important in the manufacture of munitions.

Colleagues of the two scientists said their discoveries would be of great benefit to this country in peace-time, also as many electrical experiments and advancements in the science of gauging the melting point of various metals will be made possible by the facts they gathered.

Dr. Raymond M. Hamm, a member of the society, speaking of the importance of platinum, said: "During our participation in the World War, the availability of an adequate supply of munitions depended in no small part on the forehanded purchase by an American engineer, in Russia, of three-quarters of a ton of platinum which he secretly transported across Siberia and the Pacific, to provide the indispensable catalyst for the production of sulphuric and nitric acids."

Platinum also makes possible the huge synthetic nitrate industry, and when alloyed with other metals provides materials as strong as steel for use by the dental profession.

Ford Quits D. C. Committee; Urges Votes for Capital

District Should Have Representation And Control of Its Own Affairs, Says Californian in Letter of Resignation

Sympathy for the voteless District residents was expressed yesterday by Representative Ford (Republican), California, in a letter of resignation from the House District Committee, addressed to Chairman Jennings Randolph.

Explaining that he wished to devote more time to his own district, Ford said:

"I feel that the matter of the government of the District of Columbia is a very serious one, and one that should have a great deal of attention if it is going to be properly worked out so as to give the District of Columbia a smooth-running, correlated and co-ordinated government, which the District deserves, and which at the same time will give them proper service at a reasonable cost.

"In order to accomplish the above, I feel that a great deal of time will have to be devoted by the members of the committee and I am not in a position to help to properly work out the right kind of program.

"I have always felt that if one is on a committee, he should either devote all that time that is necessary, or get off the committee.

"I am quite sure there are many here who are properly qualified and have the time to do this job as it ought to be done. Therefore, I am making way for one of them.

"I might say that my sympathy certainly goes out to those who live in the District on account of the peculiar arrangement of government they are under, in that they have a very limited control over their immediate affairs. I do not think this is proper and I think, in this enlightened day of representative government, particularly in the United States, these people should have proper representation and control over their affairs, the same as they do in the 48 States."

Ford is the second member to resign from the House District Committee this session, the other being Representative Wood (Democrat), of Missouri. The committee, which has not attained its quota this year, now numbers 15.

Chevy Chase Boy Runs Away; Asks 'Care for My Dog'

Leaving a note requesting his family to "take care of my dog," a 15-year-old boy disappeared from his home in Chevy Chase, Md., early yesterday and became the object of a wide hunt in Maryland, Virginia and the District.

The boy, Robert Charles Eyer, son of Wilton Eyer, of 6522 Ridgewood avenue, rode away on his bicycle. A note pinned to his dresser said:

"Goodbye . . . I'll be all right. Take care of my dog."

Dartmouth Men's Services Valuable, Alumni Told

Dartmouth men are contributing valuable services to the communities in which they live and frequently fail to receive recognition for their activities, Henry P. Blair, attorney, last night told the Dartmouth Alumni Association at a dinner in his honor.

George Maurice Morris presided.

Curran Calls Roosevelt Savior Of Democracy

President Roosevelt and his Administration have justified liberalism in Government and have promoted and preserved the basic rights of democracy, Judge Edward M. Curran, of police court, declared last night.

"When the history of this era is written," he told the Michigan Democratic Club," President Roosevelt will be . . . clearly revealed not only as the friend of human justice and social progress, but as the prtector and defender of our accredited form of government . . ."

President Edward J. Hayes, of the club, presented Judge Curran with a life membership in the organization and Miss Mary Jane Rabaut, 21-year-old daughter of Representative Rabaut, of Michigan, received a bouquet of roses from her father's constituents. Miss Rabaut is vice president of the club.

Missing Bomber Lands

San Diego, Calif., March 9 (AP).—A naval patrol bomber which became separated from its Seattle-bound squadron in a rain squall off Point Conception, Calif., returned safely to its North Island base today.

Citizens' Group Opposes D. C. Merger Bill

Congress Heights Unit Against Any Voteless Proposal

Members of the Congress Heights Citizens Association last night passed a resolution opposing the Griffenhagen report for reorganization of the District Government. They refused to give the association's support to any plan that does not include District suffrage.

Meeting at the Congress Heights School, the members drafted a letter to District Attorney David A. Pine, opposing the sale of any magazine that is barred from the United States mails.

They also reaffirmed their support of the building of a bridge across the Anacostia River at South Capitol street, and made plans to ask for a recreation ground at Fourth street and Oxon Run intersection southeast. The site will be known as Oxon Run parkway. The association voted to ask for the recreation area some time before summer "as the neighborhood is sadly in need of a safe place for its youngsters to play, during the school vacation."

Northwest Council

Citizens associations of the northwest section have formed a Northwest Citizens Council, composed of presidents of the associations, Donald M. Carpenter, president of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association and first vice chairman of the new organization, said last night. The council held its first meeting and elected officers February 20 and will meet March 20 at the home of Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, president of the Forest Hills Association.

Besides Carpenter, officers of the council are Henry Colman, president of the American University Park Association, chairman; C. B. Chamberlain, president of Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Association, second vice chairman, and J. B. Dickman, president of North Cleveland Park Association, secretary.

Carpenter said the new council will take up immediately questions of association boundaries, a library branch for the Northwest and other matters affecting the area.

Half of Americans Malnourished, G. W. Forum Told

Nearly half the people of the United States are malnourished and are unaware of the necessary corrective measures. Dr. John R. Cavanagh, chairman of the Public Health Forum of Georgetown University, declared last night.

The cause is more lack of knowledge and deliberate neglect than poverty, Dr. Cavanagh said, although he estimated 40,000,000 people are living on less than $800 a year incomes.

Miss Catherine Leamey, chief nutritionist of the State of Maryland, led the discussion last night on diets in relation to children. She claimed the best approach is through the mother, who first of all should be properly educated in the value of balanced and nourishing foods.

3-Week-Old Baby Dies On Way to Hospital

Jack O'Neal Dennis, 3 weeks old, was found unconscious in his crib yesterday at 824 B street northeast, by his father, O'Neal W. Dennis, police reported. The boy, taken to Casualty Hospital, was pronounced dead.

Capital News In Brief

No longer does Alexandria police headquarters ring with soulful quacks. Their source was claimed yesterday by its anxious owner.

A week ago Policemen James W. Baber and Richard M. Sparks spied a large, white domestic duck waddling at large in Jefferson Park. They took it to headquarters where it was given bed and board in the boiler room.

One thing puzzled the force, which daily and nightly listened happily to the monologue from the boiler room. There are no duck experts among the Alexandria force and nobody knew if this duck was really a duck—or a drake. It settled the matter in its own way.

It laid and egg.

Hurt by Rock-Thrower

While driving in Rock Creek Park yesterday, William N. Smith, of the 5400 block of Barnaby street northwest, sustained a possible fracture of the left shoulder when he was struck by a rock thrown by a 13-year-old boy.

Motorcycle Policeman Edward Commingore captured the boy who was released in his parent's custody pending Juvenile Court action.

Cards Sought for Blind

The Braille Corps of the D. C. chapter, American Red Cross, yesterday appealed for donation of playing cards to be brailled for use of the blind. Cards of the 2½-inch size, rather than the smaller bridge type, are desired. They should be brought or sent to the chapter house, 1730 E street northwest.

Numbers Ban Up

A regulation applying to both police and firemen forbidding them from playing the numbers or making bets with bookies will be considered today by the District Commissioners.

It is understood the Commissioners will place the new rules in the departmental manuals. The service men will also be forbidden to visit gambling joints except when in line of duty or face dismissal.

States Hostile To Transients; D. C. Suffers

Travelers Aid Chief Tells of Influx Caused by 'Frontiers'

The plight of destitute wanderers who have lost legal residence in their native States and are denied "opportunity and rights of citizenship" by "frontier" laws elsewhere, was described yesterday as raising increasingly critical and complicated problems for the District.

Mrs. Margaret Ford, director, also reported at the annual meeting of the Travelers Aid Society, in the Y. W. C. A., that "because of continued failure of Community Chest drives and decreasing public funds much less of a permanent nature can be accomplished" to aid transients.

The society had 4,866 cases "under care" during 1938, she reported, and furnished information or directions to 18,938 persons.

Unanimously elected to the board of directors were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Albert W. Atwood, Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., Edward W. Merrill, Dion S. Birney, Col. Robert H. Fletcher and E. H. Bunnell.

"Your Town," a dramatization of the society's activities, was presented by a cast of Civic Theater and Western High School players.

5-Day Week Too Much for Ramspeck

Representative Says People Back Home Think U. S. Workers Pretty Well Off

Long champion of the Federal worker, Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, last night balked at a five-day week for Government employes, already "pretty well off."

Ramspeck told a crowd of 2,000 at a mass meeting sponsored by the United Federal Workers of America he wasn't "too excited" over proposals to shorten the work week because many of his people back home felt Federal employes were doing rather well. Those here, he pointed out, now work 39 hours a week compared with as much as 84 hours for some Capitol Hill employes, and "that's not enough to hurt anyone."

Harrison Stand Opposed

The meeting, at which Ramspeck was one of six speakers, was called to draw attention to Federal employe legislation and the recent economy speech of Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi. Harrison's stand is opposed by the U. F. W. A.

Replying to Ramspeck, James Carey, secretary of the C. I. O., said the question was how many hours a man should work by way of protecting the national economy. And to Ramspeck's observation that a Congressman has to watch public opinion in pressing Federal employe legislation, Eleanor Nelson, U. F. W. A. secretary-treasurer, replied that the U. F. W. A. membership should appeal not only to Ramspeck but to all the Congressmen to push enactments favorable to the Government workers.

Ramspeck said he did not hold with overtime and thought "it a shame" that the Government's insistence on maximum hours for private industry left many Government employes unprotected.

Back Roosevelt

A resolution adopted by the C. I. O. audience that filled the Labor Department "warmly (congratulated) President Roosevelt for initiating conferences of the (C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.) to the end of unifying the American labor movement and indorses wholeheartedly the C. I. O. program as expressed by President John L. Lewis for achieving unity by bringing all members of all organizations into one great labor federation."

amendments to the national labor relations act at this session of Congress; another opposed any blanket reductions in the administrative appropriations which would result in large-scale dismissals, pay cuts and furloughs "and would constitute only a false economy in that the entire administrative function of the Gove.. ment would be seriously impaired in efficiency."

The history of the labor movement in America was discussed by Senator James Mead, of New York.

Mrs. Walker, at 95, Would Like Room to Do All Her Laundry

MRS. SUSAN MATHILDA WALKER

Wishes Hearing and Vision Were Better So She Could Go Back to Teaching School; Keeps Busy Doing Household Chores

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross.

Mrs. Susan Mathilda Walker, a dainty little woman who was born 95 years ago today, was busy at her ironing when her suite was invaded by the "Life Begins at 75" department.

"Oh, no one wants to read about me," said Mrs. Walker, excusing herself while she went into the kitchen to pull the plug out of the iron. "I don't do anything except try to keep house."

Yes, all Mrs. Walker does is prepare the meals for her son and herself, wash and iron those things which she won't entrust to a laundry, make the beds and perform most of the other chores incidental to keeping an apartment in order. She and her son, Frank A. Walker, live at 2551 Seventeenth street northwest.

"It's my son who deserves the credit for our housekeeping, not I," says the white-haired lady of Suite 107. "Why, my eyes are getting so that I could hardly see to make this apron I'm wearing."

If her hearing and vision were a little better, she would probably go out and apply for a school-teaching job. Three-quarters of a century ago she was a school teacher in Clarksburg, W. Va., and she still treasures the memories of those days.

In good health and possessing abundant energy, she did her own marketing until a couple of years ago when dimming eyesight compelled her to confine her activities to those which could be carried on indoors.

"I simply had to own up to the fact that it was not safe for me to cross the street alone," she says.

Mrs. Walker came here from Independence, Mo., over 30 years ago following the death of her husband. She and her son have lived in the same apartment for the last 19 years.

"You know," she says, "I wouldn't have to give so many things to the laundry if there were more room in the apartment to hang up to dry."

Hill Minstrels Tune Up for Folk Festival

Telegraph Promise To Bring Musical Art to Big Fete

Some people love so-called "mountain music." Others can take it or leave it alone.

But no matter to which class you belong, you'll enjoy the truly traditional mountain music which will be brought to the National Folk Festival next month by the highland folk of North Carolina.

No Kin to Radio 'Hillbillies'

These singers and dancers are no kin to the radio and movie performers who have exploited their art. They are descendants of the first settlers who made their way from colonial coastal communities into the Blue Ridge and Great Smoky mountains, bringing with them their songs and folk tales. Isolated from outside influences, these mountain groups have handed down to their children an art which stands head and shoulders above that of any other section in purity and authenticity.

Assurance that the hill minstrels would take part in this year's festical was contained in a telegram received yesterday by M. J. Pickering, business manager of the festival, which will be held at Constitution Hall, April 27, 28 and 29, for the second successive year. The message was from Fred L. Weede, founder of the annual Mountain Folk Song Festival, held at Asheville.

which will be heard at Constitution Hall includes fiddle tunes, ballads, breakdowns, love songs and hilarious banjo tunes.

Folk Dancing Too

Then, too, there will be dancing teams to present the folk dances peculiar to this mountain region.

Bascom Lamar Lunsford, director of the Mountain Dance and Folk Song Festival for 15 years, will arrive in Washington this month to introduce these folk dances to local groups.

Father Restrained From Selling Land Claimed by Son

Justice Bailey yesterday signed an order restraining Isaac S. Mason, sr., bank official of 1823 Fourth street northwest, from disposing of $100,000 in Oklahoma oil lands claimed by Mason's son, Isaac, jr.

The son, who lives at 136 W street northwest, sued for $175,000 which he claimed was due him from his mother, a Creek Indian, who died when he was 2. He claimed he never was told his father's second wife was not his mother and that when he was 21 the father gave him $21,801 and got him to sign over the rest of the property.

Attorneys George J. Boden and J. Robert Esher argued that the younger Mason did know what he was signing. The father told the court he feared his son would waste the estate.

Gadgets to Aid Hard of Hearing On Display Today

The oldest and the newest in devices to aid the hard of hearing will be displayed at a "gadget show" today and tomorrow at headquarters of the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing, 1116 Vermont avenue northwest. The public is invited to attend the exhibition, which will be held between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. on both days.

Artiquated hearing aids, borrowed from the Army Medical Museum, will be shown in contrast with such modern contrivances as amplified telephones, telephone light signals and an "alarm watch" guaranteed to awaken even the stone deaf.

Honey Murray, tiny blonde dancer, who will return to the Shoreham Blue Room next week

NOVACHORD IN RAINBOW: That uncanny new instrument, the novachord, will soon be installed in Hamilton's Rainbow Room. The novachord looks like a spinet piano, but sounds like dozens of instruments including the French horn, steel guitar, cello, piano and organ. So far they've discovered 80 different tonal effects on it. There isn't a string in it. All of the music comes from some hundreds of little electric vacuum tubes. Composer Sigmund Romberg was the first person to own a novachord and Composer Ferde Grofe is another novachord enthusiast.

Rainbow's novachord will be played by Maestro Milton Davis, who is a-dither about it, practices all day long. We accepted this statement with two dozen grains of salt—until we heard him play his new novachord. It's really wonderful.

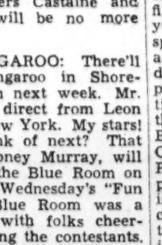
Rainbow's novachord will be installed about March 15 and will involve considerable change in the afternoon cocktail hour. Milton will play concert music on the novachord from 5 to 6:30 and dance music will be in order from 6:30 to 8:30. Supper dancing from 10 to 1 as in the past.

PALL MALL IS OPEN: Raleigh's Pall Mall Room opened last night again, after taking that one night out, account of the strike. Everything's going full speed ahead with Mario de Polo's music, singer Belle Smith and dancers Castaine and Barry. There will be no more closing.

BOXING KANGAROO: There'll be a boxing kangaroo in Shoreham's Blue Room next week. Mr. Kangaroo comes direct from Leon and Eddie's in New York. My stars! What'll they think of next? That sweet dancer, Honey Murray, will also be back in the Blue Room on Monday. P. S.—Wednesday's "Fun Night" in the Blue Room was a practical panic, with folks cheering and applauding the contestants. Miss Pauline Knauff won a bottle of champagne for pinning the tail on the donkey, Randolph Burrus (Post photographic staff) did almost as well, winning a round of potent refreshments for his big party.

POLITICAL CABARET: A New Dealers' cabaret, of all things! It is the Washington Political Cabaret which will hold Saturday night parties over Childs, Pennsylvania avenue, beginning March 18. This is the site of the old Gingham Club. A stage has been installed, satiric skits and songs on the State of the Nation will be offered. Food and beverages will be served. Leading spirits of the Political Cabaret are Nicholas Ray, in charge of theater in the WPA recreation division, and Bernard C. Schoenfeld, chief radio script writer of the Interior Department.

UPTOWN TENOR: There's a splendid new singer in the Uptown cocktail lounge. He's Karl Addison, a Washington boy who's been singing at spots all around the country. His tenoring reveals a rich and well trained voice and a delivery almost exactly like that of Bill Brady who recently sang for weeks at the Shoreham. Then we discovered that Bill and Karl went to school together here, later sang duets over WOL when they first went in for professional singing.



ADDISON

MONDAY DEBUTS: "Tiny" Meeker's trio to play for dancing in Cafe Caprice. It will include singer-saxaphonist Russ Cullen, accordionist Eddie Whitesell. "Tiny" will do his steaming "trucking" specialty, —if you ask him.

Pete Macias' new band at the Lounge Riviera. Pete will play the piano for the first time in too long, considering that he's one of the best dance music pianists ever, can whack the ivories until they turn pink.

The Frances Allis dancers at Lotus. They've been with Horace Heidts at New York's Biltmore. Also, the Merenvilles, ball room dancers, and acrodancer Pete Marconi.

The new museum of weapons at the Pirate's Den. Musketoons, cutlasses, arquebuses, sabres, daggers, horse pistols—hundreds of murderous antiques, all guaranteed by Capt. Don Dickerman to have been used in modified or aggravated homicide.

New dances, new acts,—but the same pretty faces of the "Dance Cocktails" revue at Bamboo Gardens.

COMPOSING BILL: Bill Barry (King Cole Room) is a composer, and we mean a composer. He wrote "Little Sweetheart of the Mountains" and he's also collecting royalties on "Parting of the Way."

HITHER AND THITHER DEPARTMENT: There's going to be an "aquarium bar" in the new Neptune Room. . . . The Mayflower Lounge has been overflowing with dentists all week (from the dental convention). . . . Whenever you can't find the Biltmore Boys in Shar-Zad, you'll find them in some other night spot. They're inveterate runarounders. . . . Metronome Room dancers insisted on Paul Kain's boys playing "Little Rock Getaway" four times the other evening. Paul uses the "L. R. G." arrangement made by Bob Zurke, pianist with Bob Crosby's orchestra. . . . "Chuck" Palmer of Hi Hat's Red Jackets, plays one of the wickedest clarinets in these parts, but he gets really comical when he goes to work on that little tin toy clarinet. . . . When it's closing time at Mayfair, little Beverly Stull likes to accordion "Better Get Some Shut-Eye". . . . Al Simmonds (Brown Derby) likes to play croquet. . . . Matt Windsor's (Anchor Room) new song, "No, No, My Mamma Says No," will be presented by several important radio orchestras. . . . Adelita Varela (Madrillon) was born in the cathedral of San Jose de Gracias in Mexico City. Caramba!

Senate Farm Body Approves 12-Cent Cotton

Smith Bill Permits U. S. Subsidy Up to 5 Cents a Pound

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday unanimously approved a bill guaranteeing cotton producers 12 cents per pound on their 1939 crop in a plan to increase Southern income and reduce the 12,000,000 bale carryover from other years.

The committee reached agreement on the measure, which was written by Chairman Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, as cotton farmers pressed for Government aid to guarantee them the cost of production.

Smith said the bill authorizes cotton farmers to make withdrawals from the 12,000,000 bale surplus, on which the Agriculture Department has been making loans, in lieu of planting cotton for the 1939 season. Withdrawals would be limited to 75 per cent of an individual farmer's acreage allotment under the agriculture adjustment administration program. The farmer would be required to pay the Government 3 cents per pound for cotton he withdraws from the loan stocks, in which the Government has 8.3 cents invested for each pound.

The bill, Smith said, provides for a maximum Federal subsidy of five cents per pound and guarantees the farmer a subsidy of the difference between 75 per cent of parity—12 cents per pound—and whatever is the prevailing market price.

Agriculture department statisticians pointed out that the 1938 cotton crop of 11,850,000 bales would have entailed a subsidy of $240,000,000 if the bill had been operative at that time and had failed to boost prices.

Smith's contention is that acreage control, plus dimunition of the loan stocks, will bolster prices and eliminate necessity for payments of anything like $240,000,000.

Another provision would permit the farmer to withdraw loan cotton for sale on the market when the price is sufficient to pay off the full Government loan, plus handling and interest charges.

He said that since the death in January of his wife he no longer wanted to occupy any of the homes they had lived in.

Seafood Dishes Win Post Prizes

Bouillabaisse Takes $3 Award; Oyster Rabbit, Oriental Novelty Described

By Alice Clayton
The Post Food Editor.

WASHINGTON cooks seem to be responding to a surge of patriotism in their kitchens. This week's sea food contest unravelled many secrets from such noted watering places as Coney Island and Boston. There was a savory and inexpensive clam chowder named after the gay, if noisy, New York amusement island. A sumptuous lobster dish came from the more snooty Boston environs. A whitefish recipe from Hawaii was so spicy with herbs, almonds and pineapple juice that it came near taking one of today's prizes.

Despite the very meritorious culinary trend toward "The American Way," one of today's prize winners, was a simple sweet and sour fish dish, derived originally from the Chinese.

Culinary Celebrity

Mrs. Doyle

Known for many years as one of the most choice of the entree dishes, bouillabaisse has won many national prizes for its excellence of flavor and nutriment values. It is said that connoisseurs from all parts of the world seek out certain small French waterfront restaurants merely to inhale the goodness of this spicy, haunting sea food dish. Mrs. Mary Doyle, 3435 R street northwest, wins first prize of $3 for her bouillabaisse version.

Bouillabasse

Saute 1 chopped onion, 1 sliced leek and 1 crushed clove of garlic in ¼ cup of olive oil or butter in a frying pan over a high heat until brown. Add 1 cup of tomatoes, 1 cup of water, 1 teaspoon of minced parsley, a pinch of powdered saffron and ½ bay leaf, a little salt and black pepper and 6 cloves. Cook in water to cover, adding a 1-pound steak fish cut in cubes and 1 pound of scallops or oysters. Add fish and broth to mixture in frying pan. Add 1 pound of cooked shrimp and ½ pound of lobster meat, which has been cut in pieces. Add ½ cup of sherry wine. Thicken with a little flour and cook over a low heat for 15 minutes. Serve in deep bowls and sprinkle top of each bowl with a little grated cheese.

Chic Combination

The hostess who is perplexed over finding an entree which is both subtle and satisfying can end her search here. Mrs. J. H. King, 1623 Thirty-fifth street northwest, has been awarded a $2 second prize for her tartly flavored rabbit. This recipe will probably soon be clipped from The Post and added to the smartest local kitchen files.

Mrs. J. H. King

Oyster Rabbit With Crab Meat Garnish

Drain 1 pint large oysters; add thin cream to oyster liquor to make 1 cup. Blend 1-3 cup melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon white pepper in double boiler; add liquor. Cook about 20 minutes, stirring the first few minutes of cooking. Add ¾ cup grated cheese; stir until melted; add oysters which have been cooked over low heat until edges curl. Serve on hot platter garnished with 5 tablespoons minced parsley and breaded crab meat, as follows: Remove tendons from ½ pound crab meat, keeping pieces large; season with ½ teaspoon salt; dip in mixture of 1 slightly beaten egg, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; roll in toasted crumbs; let stand 5 minutes; brown in butter or salad oil. Serves six to eight.

Three in One

Winners of a $1 prize is Mrs. Mable Thompson, 829 Quincy street northwest, whose fish formula is a perfect three-in-one supper dish. Its combination of potato balls, glazed onions and fish savories is an inexpensive and delicious one. It is also rich in iodine and consequently eaters. Here is Miss Thompson's fish dish.

Miss Thompson

Salmon Savories With Potato Balls and Glazed Onions

Combine ¼ cup of salad dressing with ½ teaspoon of horseradish, ½ teaspoon of scraped onion, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon of salt, a dash of celery salt and cayenne pepper, 2 cups of flaked salmon and 1 tablespoon of cream. Mix well and shape by hand into individual servings, formed into fish shapes. Outline heads and tails with thin pimiento strips, placing a slice of stuffed olive on each fish for an eye. Place on a baking sheet and bake for about 15 minutes. Serve on a hot platter or as individual servings surrounded by sauted potato balls and glazed onions, with a few sprigs of parsley. For potato balls, cut with a vegetable scoop, and parboil for five minutes the desired number of balls. Brown in hot fat. For glazed onions, melt 3 tablespoons of butter and 2 tablespoons of sugar. Cook for one minute. Add desired number of onions and move them about until all are well coated. Cook for 15 minutes. Pass tartar sauce, if desired.

Oriental Novelty

A highly original dish is the Chinese sweet and sour concoction submitted by Miss Maria Weisbacker, 4423 Eighth street northwest. So novel and distinctive is the tang here that Miss Weisbacker has been awarded a prize of $1 for her skill with flavor blends. This is also a very quick and inexpensive method of preparing a variety of seafoods.

MissWeisbacker

Chinese Sweet and Sour Fish

Have one 2 or 3-pound white fish cleaned and split. Make 3 or 4 incisions across it. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper and 2 teaspoons or ¼ cup of soy sauce. Brown in ½ cup of butter or margerine. Remove to platter. Blend combined 2 teaspoons of sugar and 2 tablespoons of flour into remaining shortening. Gradually stir in 1 cup of vinegar, ½ cup of water and the remaining soy sauce. Cook until slightly thickened. Serve fish over rice with fluffy steamed rice and candied fruit garnish.

Spawn of the North

Planked shad has long been considered a delicasy by fish fanciers. When shad is combined with its offspring, it becomes doubly inviting. Mrs. Louis Harris, 216 Spruce avenue, Takoma Park, Md., has won a prize of $1 for her loyalty to the appetizing shad and its roe. Her recipe is made interesting by her additional garnishing tricks.

Planked Shad With Creamed Roe

Cover a shad roe with boiling water, adding 3 tablespoons of dry wine or lemon juice and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Simmer for 5 minutes. Drain it and remove

Decoy Children Into the Kitchen

Psychologists might say you're taking advantage of your child's desire to dress up just like mother by tieing her, not to yours, but to her own apron strings. Despite the conspiracy, if your darling daughter can be lured into the kitchen to begin her own cooking lessons early in life, such a decoy seems pardonable. Both child and mother wear identical rubber aprons in delicious colors. Quite as delicious are their matching oyster pies

Honey Used In New Ways

Try honey in these exciting new ways:

Pour strained honey over cut grapefruit and fill in the spot where the core was removed; then broil until lightly browned. Delicious for breakfast, luncheon or as a dinner dessert.

An unusual sweetening for beverages is gained from honey.

Honey flavors sandwich fillings delightfully—blend with cream cheese, nuts, raisins, celery, peanut butter, or dates. The honey also keeps the sandwich moist.

Whipped cream remains delightfully smooth and creamy if sweetened with strained honey.

Baked ham is glorified by pouring honey over the ham before browning. It gives a delicate brown color and a delicious flavor.

Ironing Curtains

A little starch in the rinsing water used on curtains will make the curtains easier to iron. When rinsed in slightly starched water curtains also will stay in place better and soil less easily.

Some Suggestions For Laundering

Experiment and research and the combined experience of hundreds of thousands of women have taught many new facts and given many new practical hints for getting the wash cleaner, with less work.

There are always certain things which must be planned and done before the washing is begun. If the right things are done in the right order, even the heaviest wash with the fussiest pieces will come out blithely and without backache with the help of our laundering assistants.

Sorting and stain removal are preliminaries to the actual washing. The back-saving way is to sort from hamper or clothes bin (placed at non-stooping height) onto a large table.

Don't try to economize on soap by buying inferior brands. A two-inch standing suds shows there is sufficient soap in the water for the regular wash.

The temperature of water is important. The hotter the water, the whiter the clothes.

'Tis a Grand Idea, Paddy and Pig As St. Patrick's Party Centerpiece

Bubble Contest With Clay Pipe Is Suitable for Children's Fete

By Louise Bennett Weaver.

YOU were thinkin' of a party for the young ones this St. Patrick's Day, no doubt. But, if ye weren't, mayhap we could put the bug in your ear; 'tis a gr-r-and idea.

Indeed, it is that. Take the colors ther' he made for gayety; the symbols are just what youngster likes. And a St. Patrick's party is no trouble at all for mothers who enjoy having their children's friends in for a good time every now and then.

There should be costumes, of course. You can let the guests provide their own—but be sure to warn them on the invitations. Or perhaps it's better for you to have costumes for them when they arrive. They're inexpensive: Green, white and orange capes, aprons, ties and hats fashioned from crepe paper will do well enough.

Clay Pipes, Too

Nobody thinks of an Irishman without a clay pipe, now, do they? Well, pipes cost only a penny or so; get one for each guest (and have some extras for decorations, too). Your youngsters won't smoke them, but they're just the thing for bubble-blowing.

While you're putting the last touches on the refreshments, let the kids frolic around the blowing bowl. Here's a way to make good bubble suds: Dissolve soap flakes in boiling water and then whip them into a fine froth with your egg-beater. Add a teaspoon of glycerine for each three cups of water and the bubbles will fly much longer before they burst.

Make it all the merrier by offering a prize for the best bubbles. A long-stemmed clay pipe, autographed and dated by the hostess, isn't a bad idea. It would make a fine trophy for a youngster to put up in his room.

Sandwich Loaf

What for refreshments? What more natural than a St. Patrick's sandwich loaf? Maybe two or three loaves, if you're having a lot of children. Here's a recipe that will cut into 16 slices:

Remove the crust from a large-size sandwich loaf and cut it into four lengthwise slices. Butter each slice then spread tuna salad on the first—make it about half an inch thick. Cover that layer with a slice spread with egg sandwich filling and top that one with the third slice, spread with a chopped lettuce and yellow cheese filling. Top it all with the fourth slice and you're ready to frost the loaf, this way:

Mix, until creamy, one and a half cups of white cream cheese, a fourth of a cup of cream and a dash of salt. Cover top and all sides of the loaf with the mixture, wrap it carefully in waxed paper and a damp cloth, and chill it.

Serve the loaf on a platter, decorate it with shamrocks cut from green pepper, and surround it with glistening watercress.

Green Ice Cream

Hot chocolate is the best drink to go with this loaf. And a fine dessert would be ice cream or sherbet, colored green, and individual cakes sprinkled with green and orange gum drops.

For a holiday centerpiece, how about Paddy and his pigs? You can fashion a little Irishman, shamrock, pipe and all, out of crepe paper, if you're handy about such things, but you probably can buy a little figure to serve the purpose. Use pig banks for the pigs, or fashion your own out of small potatoes and toothpicks.

Another suggestion is to have a big Irish hat in the middle of the table, full of favors. (Don't forget the clay pipe tucked into the hatband!) Then let the guests pull their own favors out of the hat.

Little clay pipes, as droll as those that the wee people of the emerald isle might smoke, encircle the beautiful cake, above. It is a true angel food cake for its lightness of texture and gentleness of flavor make it as airy as cherub's touch. A green vegetable tint and plate decoration of fernery give it a Celtic aspect. Good St. Pat himself would have approved the icing of sweetened whipped cream, garnished with green shamrock candies

Dressing for Chops

For an unusual flavor, brush French dressing over fish or chops while they're broiling. Try the same idea with veal during the last hour of roasting.

Mixing Knives Most Common Error at Table

Half a Chicken Also Presents Its Problems

New York (AP).—The error in table manners that Americans make most often is mixing up their knives, says the Austrian head waiter at a well-known New York restaurant.

The wide variety of designs in butter knives helps to confuse a diner, he admits, but, he adds, "Why don't people look at the knife blades? Certainly they can tell the difference then."

He makes these two suggestions: Never use a steel-bladed knife as a butter spreader unless, of course, you only have one knife for the whole meal. If there is a row of knives at your place, use the smallest silver-bladed one as the butter spreader.

The entree that seems to give the average American most trouble at table, our head waiter finds, is half a spring chicken. But tackle it properly, he says, and it's simple. Like this: Cut the second joint from the breast, then eat the breast. Then work on the second joint and finish up with the drumstick.

Here are some more of his observations:

Many Americans avoid fish because they find it difficult to eat. That's too bad; you can always have the waiter remove the bones by asking. But it's simple: Run the blade of the fish knife (a small silver-bladed knife, too) through the fish as if you were splitting a roll. Then just lay the top half to one side and lift out the back bone in one or two sections.

It's still proper to tip the soup plate away, too, when you get down to the last spoonful. Oyster crackers may be dropped into soup, but larger crackers or melba toastt should be eaten separately.

Home-Made Candy

To make candy rolls, shape beaten penoche or old-fashioned caramels into a one-inch roll. Sprinkle the roll with cocoanut, chocolate shot or broken nuts and cut it to one-inch slices. Fancier rolls may be made by flattening the candy, and spreading it with nuts or other confections before rolling.

Boys Drink More Milk Than Girls

Questionnaire Reveals Parents' Example Is Best Habit-Builder

Why do children drink milk? What effect does age have on milk consumption? How much influence do parents have on the milk-drinking habits of young people?

In an attempt to answer these and other questions, an unusual psychological study has been made by the Milk Research Council and the University of Newark Research Center.

A questionnaire on milk-drinking habits was answered by 5,227 boys and girls between 11 and 18 in three New York high schools. An interesting point revealed by the answers to the questionnaire is that more boys than girls drink milk for practically each meal except breakfast. The occasions at which milk is taken most are when the children come home from school or when they have lunch at home. Boys drink 2.7 glasses of milk and girls 2.2 glasses in an average day.

Milk in the School Lunch

Of all the regular meals, it is lunch in school at which the greater number of children do not take any beverage. On the other hand, lunch at home is one of the occasions at which the greater percentage of children drink milk. This indicates the great need for health education programs directed toward increasing the amount of milk in the school lunch. It is important that a child's lunch should provide one-third of the day's food requirements, and an ideal lunch includes at least one glass of milk. Since the child's lunch is eaten at school five times a week, emphasis on milk in the school lunch is especially important.

Average consumption of milk by children varies directly with the consumption of milk by parents. The girls follow especially the example of their mothers; the boys that of their fathers. Parents may also influence their children's milk-drinking habits by direct interference; but their influence is greatest by their own example.

Significance of Study

The results of this study of milk-drinking habits reveal the necessity for more nutrition education, says the National Dairy Council. An especial need is indicated for increased emphasis on the school lunch and for education of parents on the importance of milk in the diet. Milk is an essential food for growth, and scientists recommend a quart a day for every child.

Cleaning Hint

Get a large tray, shallow box or a small basket and keep all your cleaning utensils in it—soap, powder, rags, brushes, etc. You'll always have them together and can carry them about the house easily for any cleaning job.

Egg Dishes Theme of Recipe Contest

Perhaps more contest themes have been suggested omit and acted upon by Mrs. Barbara Lipscomb, 934 New York avenue northeast, than by any other contest follower. Her competition themes are always practical and usually prove popular. This week one of her most inviting Lenten suggestions is being acted upon. Mrs. Lipscomb has asked for unusual egg dishes and her request will serve as the new contest theme.

Any type of egg dish is eligible for one of five cash prizes. First award is for $3 second is for $2, and there are three additional prizes for $1 each. All entries must be mailed to Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor, before March 18. Recipes must be neatly written and kitchen tested and a photograph, for possible publication of prize winners may be enclosed.

Use as much imagination, plus practicality, in your recipe entries as you wish. Your egg preference may lay in the direction of omelets, puddings, sauces or creamed entree dishes. Eggs Benedict may be your choice. Or brightly tinted eggs Florentine may be your idea of a truly satisfying dish. Whether you prefer to use your eggs as a sandwich or to shir them delicately with sausages and livers en ... this cash award competition at once. It may make you a winner.

Indian Styles Inspire Film Stars

Hollywood, Calif.—The American Indian is the current darling of Hollywood's stylists.

In Palm Springs young vacationers follow the example of Priscilla Lane, who copies her play clothes from the Navajo women. She combines a pink calico blouse, having low neck and puffed sleeves, with full gathered skirt of printed blue calico. Although Mrs. Navajo prefers a long skirt Priscilla's barely hits the knees.

A skating costume worn and loved by Bonita Granville was conceived by Milo Anderson in supple degrained leather dyed to resemble a warrior's natural buckskin. Navajo blanket jackets are bright splashes on the ice rinks frequented by film folk.

Cheese, Tangy Lenten Food, Is Rich In Proteins Which Build Muscle

Cook in Slow Oven or Over Water to Ward Off Leatheriness

By Alice Clayton

The Post Food Editor.

ONE FOOD that is sure to mount in popularity during the meatless Lenten season is cheese. Tart and tangy or mild and bland, whichever school of taste you belong to, you probably will eat more of this rich, satisfying dairy food in the next month or two than at any time of the year. Cheese is one of the few protein-packed milk foods that does not irk when served meal after meal during Lent.

This variety of flavor in cheese dishes may be due to the vast varieties of cheeses purchasable in the bountiful cheese family. Time was when newly made cheeses were believed to be difficult of digestion, while the stately ancient patriarchs of the cheese family were said to be both nutritious and highly digestible. With the shining modern wheels of dairy business speeded up for greater sanitation for blend and maturing of flavors, there is no wonder that the tender and modest cream cheese today is every bit as digestible as the more keenly edged Roquefort.

Casein-Conscious Cheese

Casein, the principal element in cheese, is the chemical equivalent of the white of an egg, the fibrin in meat or the gluten in wheat. This may not mean so very much to the homemaker who has too little time. It does mean something to her, however, to know that the nitrogenous properties contained in cheese dishes will help build muscle and good health in her children. Homemakers, who are not already aware of cheese tinged meatless entrees, will find Lent the best stamping ground for experimentation. The cheese luncheon dish below might serve both imagination and palate.

Frozen Cheese Salad

Frozen cheese salads offer sophisticated service for March parties. They are appropriate to many luncheon and supper purposes, even acting as an entree for light bridge refreshments. Buffet suppers use them in small portions as appetizers, and luncheon menus with light entrees correctly assign them to the regular salad course.

Frozen cream cheese salad to serve eight portions requires one-half pound of bulk cream cheese—obtainable at the delicatessen—to 1 cup of heavy cream. The cream is not whipped, but blended thoroughly with the cheese until it reaches a smooth consistency. Seasoning consists of salt and onion salt to taste, with a dash of Tabasco sauce. Fold into the cheese mixture 1-3 cup of ripe olives, sliced from the pit, two pimientos cut in fine strips, and ¼ cup of finely cut celery. Freeze for two or three hours without stirring in an automatic freezing tray or until the mixture is firm.

The dish, above, was especially designed for devotees of light but nourishing foods. This agreeable combination makes a delightful variation for observers of Lent. The little balls are fluffs of grated American cheese, deep-butter fried, and stuffed with preserves. Braised parsley makes the garnish

Slice and serve on lettuce with French dressing.

Cooking Suggestions

The following basic cooking tips on cheese are offered by the Home Economics Bureau of The Department of Agriculture:

Cooking cheese is simply a matter of heating it slowly until the fat in the cheese melts and blends in with other ingredients. Cheese should be cooked at low temperature—over water or in a slow oven—because of its protein. Intense heat makes the curd tough

Whenever possible in cooking, combine cheese by first blending it into a sauce. In making macaroni and cheese, for instance, the cheese may be melted into a white sauce—then poured over the macaroni. Cheese added in layers or put atop the dish will not get so well mixed throughout.

Welsh rabbits, if made by mixing the cheese first into a white sauce mixture before combining with the egg will present none of the usual curdling problems. Of course, the temperature must remain low throughout.

outer membranes. Mash the roe. Melt in a saucepan 2 tablespoons of butter. Add 1 tablespoon of finely chopped onion and saute for 5 minutes. Add the roe and stir in 2 tablespoons of flour and ½ cup of cream. When hot and well blended remove from fire. Stir in 2 egg yolks, a little salt and pepper and 2 tablespoons of dry white wine or lemon juice. Keep this hot. Place a boned shad of about 4 pounds, laid open, skin side down, on a well greased plank, broiler rack or oven pan. Broil gently for about 20 minutes after the fish has been seasoned with a little salt and pepper and brushed with melted butter. Remove from oven and spread with bread crumbs. Return to broiler and brown evenly. Serve at once on a hot fish platter or plank. Pipe a border of well-seasoned mashed potatoes around, add mounds of green peas. Garnish with thin lemon slices, a sprig of parsley pulled through each.

Stuffed Grapes One of Many New Appetizers

Chutney and Bacon, Raw Cauliflower Gain Popularity

COCKTAILS and appetizers should be as carefully planned as the dinner menu, not treated as a hasty afterthought. If they seem to lack originality when they are served the cause may be hostess-inertia!

If the hostess feels a sense of guilt about canape carelessness and wants a little gentle prodding into using her natural ingenuity we'll point out a few new tricks.

Let the toast be crisp and of a size so tiny that it can be popped into the mouth in one luscious bite. Crispness is accomplished by cutting out rounds of bread, placing them on a cooky sheet and letting them get dry before toasting under a slow broiler flame If they're dry all the way through, they won't get soggy unless they have to stand for hours after they're spread.

If you dote on caviar—and there doesn't seem to be any middle ground, one either loves it or loathes it—suppose instead of the usual sprinkling of chopped egg, you go Russian and top it off with a globule of sour cream, into which has been infused the breath of an onion.

Bacon With Chutney

For another canape chop together chutney and bacon—a good big tablespoon of chutney, juice and all, to four slices of crisp bacon. Spread on toast rounds and pop into the oven a minute or two before serving. The heat adds a lovely glaze and improves the flavor. Omit decorations.

Grapes stuffed with cream cheese make you feel as exotic as anything. Moisten the cheese with a little sweet cream and throw in a very small sprinkling of chopped chives. Remove the seeds from tart green grapes and with a pastry tube, fill them with the cream cheese mixture. Use the cream puff technique.

Speaking of cream cheese, here's a canape that doesn't sound at all prepossessing, but it invariably brings forth favorable comment and requests for the recipe. Add bovril to cream cheese until the mixture is a nice rich beige, and spread on rounds of toast. A sliver of chutney on top of each canape adds a subtle touch.

People are usually intrigued or amused, or both, by the "dipping" appetizers—those of the shrimp-on - a - toothpick - and - Russian dressing school. One of the most tantalizing combinations is potato chips, with cream cheese which has been thinned with sweet cream to the consistency of mayonnaise and flavored with just a whiff of grated onion. Put the dressing in a small bowl in the middle of the biggest plate you can find and fill the encircling space with potato chips. Let each guest dip his chip according to his taste.

Cauliflower Hint

Raw cauliflower is beginning to make itself felt as a smart delicacy. It's surprisingly delicious.

Select a very firm snowy head. Separate it into tiny flowerets. Soak the flowerets in ice water until they are crisp. For the dressing add about one tablespoon of prepared mustard to a cup of mayonnaise. Give the cauliflower a mild dash of paprika to relieve its pallor and arrange the flowerets on toothpicks around a small bowl of dressing. Incidentally, if there is a dearth of small bowls at your house, finger bowls are the answer. They are the perfect size.

If you happen to have a chicken liver about, try this one. Saute the liver for a few minutes in plenty of butter and then lay it out in a chopping bowl with a hard cooked egg and a small onion. Chop until the three are as one. Season with salt and pepper and blend in the melted butter that is left in the pan. Spread on toast rounds. Here is a variation on the same theme. Do the liver the same way, only instead of adding the butter, mix in enough mayonnaise to moisten. Form into small balls, roll in chopped pickled beet and serve on a toothpick.

Try, also, a jelly roll arrangement of cold boiled ham and cream cheese. The combination is tremendously effective in spite of its bread-and-buttery sound. Have the ham sliced about an eighth of an inch thick, spread each slice with a generous coating of cream cheese and roll up like jelly roll. Cut into inch lengths and impale each length on a toothpick. These can be done a couple of hours ahead and kept in the ice box.

A Sunday Supper That Has Zest

Would you like to serve a personality plus supper that will make your guests "perk-up" with surprise? Here's how you can do it easily and economically: Use a checked or rough linen cloth on the table. For the centerpiece take a new head of cabbage and level it off at the core so it will stand firmly. Then scoop out a small hollow in the top of the cabbage, cutting the cabbage carefully. Into this hollow empty a jar of prepared mustard. Then when ready to serve stick toothpicks into the ends of tiny heated frankfurters and attach porcupine fashion into the cabbage.

Many Foods Produce Necessary Vitamin Required in Daily Diet

Many Foods Produce Necessary Vitamins Required in Balanced Daily Diet

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE RADIO boys are away ahead of us newspaper health columnists on the vitamins—you know, the fellows who plug the products during the intervals in which the tenors, the comedians and the charm girls are temporarily hushed.

It has seemed to me lately that there is just the slightest little tinge of exaggeration in what the radio has been claiming for the vitamins. When the vitamins first came out, they moved on an intellectual plane which was somewhat removed from the radio vision, but those who discussed them admittedly found in the idea of these stimulators and protectors of the body, an inspirational idea which led many into prophetic enthusiasms. There were many who doubted if it by would just completely reform drooping humanity as was claimed. And this attitude has been gaining ground in scientific circles. But the radio boys have just got around to whooping up the vitamins as the things to give you pep, to prevent colds, to cure arthritis, neuritis, phlebitis, anemia, uremia, salt rheum and about everything else.

Analyze Case

One must analyze a single case to get a more judicial attitude on the situation. Let us take the case of vitamin B. Vitamin B1 (vitamin B1 and vitamin B2 and G and PP are all found associated in nature) is found in many of the ordinary foods that we eat—in yeast, in wheat, in most cereals, in milk. When it is left out of the diet, the circumstances are most unusual, and what results is a form of neuritis and paralysis which is called by its Far Eastern name, beri-beri. Deficiency of vitamin B1 in the diet also produces other symptoms, perhaps some heart defect, and some tendency to arthritis.

But the question arises whether, when vitamin B1 is contained in so many foods constantly used, it should ever be necessary to furnish it in concentrated or crystallized form. Fears of such a thing are frequently held over the heads of the people.

Opinions Conflict

Akroyd, an English physiologist, has said that, "There is really little reason to believe that the average English or American dietary contains insufficient vitamin B1 for health." Yet, an American observer says, "During the past decade it has been shown that beri-beri exists in the United States in endemic form."

This is a surprising statement because beri-beri is fundamentally a disease of the Far East—Japan and the Malay State—and occurs only when a group of the population lives exclusively on rice which has been milled so that the vitamin B1 shell has been removed from the rice grain. As it exists in endemic form in the United States, it occurs in people who limit their diet for one reason or other—alcohol addicts, secluded people who live on a monotonous diet, etc.—or those who have digestive upsets so severe as to prevent them from absorbing food.

Under ordinary circumstances our ordinary diet contains 20 per cent more vitamin B1 than is actually required to provide us safety.

Young Rockefeller Wins $100 From Father's Competitor

New York, March 9.

THIS TOWN has been having some hearty chuckles lately thanks to the fact that Winthrop Rockefeller, one of the handsome sons of John D., won a credit of $100 at the night club El Morocco, as half of the handsomest couple present on a recent Sunday evening. The other half of the team was Mary Martin, the Texas cutie who has won many a local heart by singing "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in a current musical show.

cutie who has won many a local heart by singing "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in a current musical show.

The thought of a Rockefeller winning was just too much for the risibilities of the village. An added giggle arises from the fact that Winthrop's own daddy is in the business himself as proprietor of the Rainbow Room in Radio City. I suppose the dashing Winthrop can sign all the tabs he pleases at the family place and then he goes and wins a prize at an opposition spot.

All in all, that was a very gay evening . . . old El Morocco. The place was packed with well known names and faces while the learned judges pondered their choices. Among those noted at the ringside were Mrs. James Roosevelt, looking her loveliest in a gray dinner dress, and Lady Peel, who is well known as Betrice Lillie, lady clown.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: Cafe society here goes its superficially merry way whatever the season, but the Old Guard behaves decorously during Lent. In the last two weeks these fine old cliff dwellers have limited their public appearances to such things as a performance as Bach's Mass in B Minor at Carnegie Hall. Large numbers of this conservative gang go in for sewing classes during Lent, as well. The ladies get together and run up garments for various charitable enterprises. All of which merely proves that a good number of our ladies do not devote their time to competing in rhumba classes at this time of year.

The girls who performed so nobly in Clare Booth's epic of cattiness, "The Women," now are performing in various other enterprises. Betty Lawford, who took the famous bubble bath on the stage in the Booth show, is now in the company supporting John Barrymore in "My Dear Children;" Margolo Gillmore will soon be seen in the new Sam Behrman play, "No Time for Comedy," and Audrey Christie is rounding out a year's work in that musical comedy smash, "I Married An Angel." These are all nice jobs of work, and it is fine to see the girls doing all right.

Today our peppery little mayor, with Mrs. LaGuardia and their two children, sets off for a visit to the exposition at San Francisco. My advice to the boys out there on Treasure Island is to lock up their pet secrets, for Hizzoner is very keen and alert, and after all we are supposed to be opening a little show of our own in another six weeks . . . I am one wrist watch richer since I was a member of a radio quiz team which delivered a sound beating to a battery of male sports writers. Pretty Dorothy Kilgallen was also on my side, and we did right well.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Working Girl's Memorandum

I.

I must remember to call up about my manicure,

And stop by Sailem's for that cream that guarantees allure.

And send my old spring coat off to the tailor,

To have it shortened; and hunt up last season's sailor

To have reblocked; and at noon run in some downtown store

To get new stockings to replace the ones I tore,

And maybe a bright flower to give my winter dress some dash,

And some new spring perfume to add a touch of pash.

II.

I must remember to get washing powder and vaseline,

Cleansing tissues, waving lotion, and a little benzine,

New tin curlers, darning cotton and powder puffs,

White thread No. 60 to fix my collar and cuffs.

Some camphor, peroxide, idoine and court plaster,

Skin lotion to make my face look more like alabaster,

Soap and talcum powder at the drug store sale,

A new birdie for my old hat, and maybe a new veil.

III.

I must not forget to get my niece a little box of candy,

And sometime in the afternoon if the boss is not too handy,

Dash off a letter home, also send my thanks so hearty

To Mrs. Gink from my home town whom had me to her party,

And send some flowers to Margie Nitt, who's just received the stork,

And for Hazel's wedding present find a handsome salad fork,

And sometime in between go and get my vitamin shot,

And notify my dentist I'll be there Saturday on the dot.

IV.

I must be sure when I get home tonight

To sew the underarm rip that's now in such plain sight,

And catch up my glove finger where it's begun to split,

And do something about the snags in my little knit;

And when I've washed my stockings and step-ins with the lace,

I'll brush my hair and work with cold cream on my face,

And reach and stretch and bend down to the floor,

V.

And then I must not fail before I go to bed,

To dip into the latest book that everybody's read,

Glance briefly at the headlines, also note the state of art,

For if I don't, I may be ranked as not quite smart;

And I must put my hair in net and take my capsules and my pills,

To save my job I must ward off the grippe and current ills.

When will I ever finish?—Oh well, I'll do the best I can,

How very simple life would be if I'd been born a man!

Pastels Prevail In Dinnerware

New pastel shades are the outstanding style note in dinnerware and other pottery, this season. This is revealed by a survey just completed by the Du Pont Style News service, based on current offerings by American manufacturers.

The trend toward the use of pastel colors is a definite development in the market, affecting not only pottery but dress fabrics, decorative accessories and other materials, resulting in unified color schemes. On dinnerware, the new pastels are noticeably clear; even the more delicate tones have a subdued brilliance. Solid-colored ware and banded rims are favorite treatments.

Rubens Hailed As Master in His 21st Year

Noted Flemish Painter Also Was Skilled Diplomat

This is the third in a series of weekly articles in which Miss Boykin discusses art in the home with special reference to pictures suitable for the average household.

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

PETER PAUL RUBENS (1577-1640) was a Flemish painter, son of a druggest, who happened to be a man of considerable learning. Rubens started out in his boyhood as a page in the household of a countess. Later he was allowed to study painting and worked under various important painters.

He was recognized as early as 1598 as a master, and shortly thereafter became a painted in the service of the Duke of Mantua. This Italian experience became important in his development.

Studied in Spain

Later he went to Spain and studied in Madrid for a year—in fact until the recent war two of his paintings of this period were hung in the Madrid Gallery. He returned to Antwerp in 1608, and soon was made an official court painter with various honors as well as a stipend attached to the appointment. Here he painted some of his great sized canvases and was commissioned to do large compositions, ceilings and other vast and ambitious types of paintings, many of them on religious, mythical or allegorical themes.

A man of great activity, Rubens not only managed a studio employing many other artists, but engaged also in diplomatic business which took him to Paris as well as to England and Spain. On this second trip to Spain on diplomatic business, he also did much painting and there met elazquez with whom he had much in common. Later he went to England where he was knighted and where he did more painting.

Rubens Remarries

Four years after the death of his first wife, when Rubens was 53, he married Helena Fourment, who appears in a good many of his later works. Few painters of any period were more prolific than Rubens, and few have achieved on canvas such a vital interpretation of the human figure and such fine living flesh tones. His scope seems almost incredible when we realize that he seemed to depict animals with quite as much vibrance and sympathy as he gave to the dynamic abundance of his human figures.

One of the most appealing of his portraits is the one illustrated today of "Helena Fourment and Her Children," now hanging in the Louvre in Paris. His paintings are in most of the great galleries of the world; in America there are examples of his work in museums in New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Detroit and Boston.

Bachelors Draw Retort From Charming Young Lady Who Spends Many Evenings Alone With the Moon

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can it be possible? It is actually true that right here in Washington, where there are five women to every man, that three perfectly desirable bachelors are still running loose at the ripe old age of 26? Really, that letter, signed "Three Bachelors," published in your column of March 7, almost bowled me over! Why? For the simple reason that I, who am a charming young woman, spend many evenings (including last Sunday) admiring the moon all by myself. I resent it. As "Three Bachelors" say, there must be something wrong with the social law of supply and demand. My demand is for a man—and there is no supply forthcoming!

I have a job that I don't particularly care for. However, I have stuck to it and meantime worked my way through school. That should speak for character. As for morals, I have been exceedingly lonely, but have refrained from "picking them up"—an overworked practice in Washington, which I consider contemptible, to say the least. I am 5 feet 3, have lovely eyes and reddish brown hair.

I have worked to preserve that schoolgirl complexion, to avoid that cosmetic skin, to combat "b. o.," and to provide double-insurance against halitosis. I polish my shoes and lux my lingerie daily, whether they need it or not—and, in fact, have been faithful to all those advertised devices which guarantee success in snaring the unsuspecting male. Moreover, I have read nearly all the best sellers, both fiction and non-fiction, which fact I mention merely to prove that I am not an imbecile.

I can count the cost of beans; can even prepare them so that they are most delectable to the human palate. For the Southerner, I should cook them dry, with a piece of fatback, and for his Northern brother I would make them juicy, with a bit of cream poured in at just the right moment. But wait. Don't think I am applying for a job of housekeeper. That is far from the case. I am simply looking for a man to love.

Perhaps I am too critical about men. All women have their standards of masculine perfection. I am no exception. My ideal man must, first of all, love me. We must have enough in common to be good companions. Beyond that, I should not care if his ears stuck out and he had a proboscis like Jimmy Durante's. I should like him to have a certain amount of pride, to be courteous, and to have irreproachable manners. He could have money or not. I am not searching for riches, but for the more abundant life. If it is not asking too much, I should like him to be presentable in a bathing suit.

Now, Miss Haworth, my trouble is that I never manage to meet any desirable, unencumbered young man. Won't you please point out one of the elusive creatures to me? Or do something to save a 28-year-old gal from the unenviable fate of being either a spinster or a bachelor girl? Accept my best wishes for your continued success. An old-fashioned,

MODERN GIRL.

Indignant at Bachelors

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Those "Three Bachelors" who cannot find any girls they would care to marry, make me sick. I am one of a group of girls all of whom are indignant at their absurd letter. Can't find anyone in whom they could be matrimonially interested, indeed! Do you know why? Because they are looking for perfection, which does not exist.

So they want girls with "character, a sense of humor and a knowledge of the value of money." Most of us have all three. Let me give you an example: I am 19, good-looking, have many friends, do not drink, smoke or "pet," and belong to a cultured family of limited means. No one knows better than I do how many dimes there are in a dollar. I have been taught to cook, sew, keep house and make others comfortable . . .

But I, and many girls like me, are forced to accept the attentions of the "love-them-and-leave-them" type of men, for the reason that we never meet the kind who are matrimonially minded. These three bachelors may think they are looking for wives, but in reality they are desperately afraid of being led to the altar before they have the luck to meet some girl who has the looks of Loretta Young, the voice of Jeannette MacDonald, the social background and contacts of a duchess and the ability to prepare a meal for 20 cents that would compare favorably with grandmother's culinary achievements.

My advice to these three disconsolate gentlemen is to face the fact that they can't have everything; that beauty and social background aren't half so important in a life partner as the qualities of loyalty, gentility and grace; and that they ought to look for the girl who has a genuinely affectionate disposition—whose heart goes out to everyone—children, elderly people, pets and so on. Such girls probably are to be found among their circle of friends, but they simply don't see them because of their foolish "far-sightedness!"

DOMESTIC NINETEEN.

Sainthood Vs. Health

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was reading your advice (of March 8) to "Mr. Confused," whose ideals concerning premarital continence—no doubt based on a well-meaning mother's story book notions—don't correspond to the conduct and ideas of his associates. The poor chap seems to be headed for plenty of trouble.

You're in pretty deep water here, aren't you? Quite obviously you are a very intelligent person, but one wonders where you got your ideas on the psychology (not the ethics) of human behavior. Also, have you ever come to grips with the question of whether you're going to help people be saint-like, on the one hand, or happy and healthy, on the other hand? The two aren't necessarily the same, you know.

My unasked-for advice is that you acquire a copy of Dr. Karl Menninger's, "The Human Mind," use it as a kind of Bible, and lock your other books up in a trunk. And this is really good advice.

SINCERE KIBITZER.

Huzza for "Mr. Confused!"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our college-age daughter called my attention to your sensible and understanding advice of March 8 to "Mr. Confused." We feel sure that there are many such fine young men from splendid homes, and are sorry that he must associate with persons of different standards. May he heed your splendid advice and keep his self-respect and the approval of worthy girls!

It is gratifying to women and girls to know that there are such men, younger and older, who live by honorable standards in relation to all women. Let's hear from more such through your column . . .

Your Figure Madam

Mary Eastman, Radio Singer, Eats Energy Foods But Remains Slim by Exercise

SOME OF YOU seem to be uneasy about the future. You have, one gathers, direful premonitions that if you are to stay streamlined forever after, all your meals will have to be scanty in calories.

The prospect of always having to keep tab on the calories is evidently not a pleasing one. So, I am delighted to tell you about Mary Eastman, the scintillating radio singer, who took off some 30 unnecessary pounds more than a year ago and who stays so svelte that it's a shame television isn't in!

Miss Eastman stays trim at 103 pounds, which is perfect weight for her, and does she starve? Well, hardly! To hear her tell it, keeping slim is the easiest thing about reducing. This is all there is to it: trim off the fat from the meat; allow only one pat of butter and never more than two slices of bread to a meal, and take desserts no oftener than every other day.

Eats Well For Energy

With those exceptions, Miss Eastman avows, anyone can eat just about as she pleases without a flicker of the scales. It probably occurs to you that these little exceptions are played up as the main restrictions in a carefully balanced diet, and that is exactly the kind Miss Eastman followed.

No faddy menus of one or two foods for her! Such an ambitious young singer needs plenty of energy to see her through long hours of rehearsals and coaching and she had to have menus containing liberal quantities of lean meat and vegetables. While on her diet she had learned to like the foods that make for strength and not to miss the ones which go to fat. That's the main reason staying slim is no bother.

But to top it all off, the singing star looks and feels so marvelous that nobody could pay her to let the scales go up more than 3 pounds. "Take care of the first 3 pounds," she says with a gleam of mischief, "and you won't have to worry about any more."

Another clever suggestion is that you have a favorite belt which fits you exactly. As soon as it shows the slightest strain, it's time to step on the scales.

Flabby Muscles Worst

Exercise is as necessary to keeping slim measurements as it is to bringing the figure to symmetry, and Miss Eastman knows it. Flabby muscles, she thinks, look even worse than too many pounds, and she never skips her daily dozen.

To keep up her interest, she occasionally switches to new exercises and here are two for the waist and hips which you will find out of the ordinary:

Lie on the face on the floor, arms crossed under the chin, and knees flexed. Raise alternate knees high off the floor, and let them fall back down with a whack. Keep the knees flexed throughout the exercise, and raise legs from the hips, high in back. This exercise is a general workout, but it does wonders for the hips.

In the second exercise, roll over on the back with the legs together and straight down on the floor and the hands on the shoulders with elbows on the floor. Try to hold the hips flat on the floor as you twist at the waist from one side to the other or touch the elbows without taking hands off the shoulders. When the weight rests on the right shoulder, bring the left elbow down to touch the right elbow, which is on the floor. It is difficult, but excellent for trimming the waistline.

Mayfields Are Hosts To Peruvian Colleen

Grandfather Came From Dublin, Explains Maggie Conroy, but All Her Other Forebears Derived From Spain

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

SHE LOOKS AS IF she hailed straight from the Emerald Isle and her name is Irish as a shamrock. Yet Maggie Conroy (she was christened Margarita but nobody ever calls her that) comes from South America and is known far and wide as one of the outstanding women of Peru. Her blond hair, blue eyes and fair complexion hark back to a grandfather from Dublin, "but all my other forebears were Spanish," she will tell you.

HOPE R. MILLER

It's no wonder she is being widely feted during her brief stay as the house guest of Capt. and Mrs. Irving Hall Mayfield. She has visited in this country before and has flocks of friends wherever she goes. So she had no sooner arrived here than she was plunged into a continual round of parties that will go right on up to the minute she leaves on Sunday. She expects to return later before sailing for her homeland the middle of May, but meanwhile she will slip down to Florida for a short visit; then go from there to San Francisco to see the fair; and then come back to see the New York fair.

Miss Conroy recently arrived in this country from Europe where she has spent several months, and her visit here will round out a year of travel outside her native land.

Last evening, the attractive visitor was guest of honor at a dinner given by Capt. and Mrs. Mayfield at the Chevy Chase Club. Capt. Mayfield met Miss Conroy a number of years ago when as a midshipman he took his first cruise to South America. Later, when he was stationed as United States Military Attache in Santiago, Chile, Mrs. Mayfield and Miss Conroy came to be close friends.

Among other guests at their dinner last evening were the German Naval Attache and Frau Witthoeft-Emden, Admiral and Mrs. J. O. Richardson, Admiral William G. Du Bose, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Jack Fletcher and Merritt Swift.

Mrs. Keyes Gives Luncheon for Visitor

Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes (Frances Parkinson Keyes) entertained at luncheon yesterday in compliment to Miss Conroy, whom she has known for a number of years. The two met in 1922, to be exact, when the "pretty Peruvian with Irish eyes" came to this country as a delegate to a woman's Pan-American conference and Mrs. Keyes covered the meetings for a magazine.

Reminiscences were very much in order yesterday as the luncheon moved merrily along. A few years ago when Mrs. Keyes was in South America she had the house in Santiago that had been leased by Capt. and Mrs. Mayfield, and on frequent trips to Lima, she became a close friend of Miss Conroy.

Mrs. John M. Enochs, who recently returned from Lima, had much to discuss with the guest of honor; and topics stemming from their brief bit of conversation blossomed into a number of fascinating stories told by Miss Conroy before the party was over.

Table Talk Centers On South America

Since South America was up for discussion more than once, Senora de Alfaro, whose husband served Panama both as President and as envoy to the United States, made some interesting contributions to the round of talk. Others in the luncheon company included Miss Katharine McKiever and Miss Irene Wright.

Miss Conroy will be the luncheon guest today of Mrs. S. A. Taffinder, wife of Capt. Taffinder, U. S. N., who will take her to the exhibition ride at Fort Myer this afternoon. There is a dinner on Miss Conroy's calendar this evening, and tomorrow she will be feted at a luncheon given by the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel Freyre y Santander. A small, informal dinner given by Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Olendorf tomorrow evening will round out Miss Conroy's social calendar on this visit. But she will be back again before she sails for Peru in a couple of months.

Margaret Hanna To Return Soon To Home Here

Miss Margaret Hanna, who is retiring as United States Consul at Geneva, will return soon to her home here after an absence of several years.

Miss Hanna has been on leave since January and recently returned to Geneva after a trip to Cairo with Mrs. E. H. Sothern, who rose to fame a generation ago as Julia Marlowe, the actress.

Also making the trip to Cairo were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ramsay, formerly of Washington. Mrs. Sothern and Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay will remain in Cairo until the spring. Miss Hanna returned to Geneva by way of Palestine, Greece and Italy.

The Fotitches Give Dinner

The minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Constantin Fotitch entertained at a dinner last evening. Ranking guests were Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, and Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone. Count van der Straten-Ponthoz, the Belgian Ambassador, was not able to be present because of illness.

Covers were laid for 22.

R. H. Reed to Wed Miss Martha Ivie

Of special interest in Washington is the announcement of the engagement of the great-granddaughter of Commodore Oliver Hazzard Perry, of the battle of Lake Erie fame, to a descendant of Roger Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Perry Ivie, of Athens, Ga., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha Louise Ivie, to Robert Harris Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Waldo Reed, of Takoma Park.

The wedding will take place on April 9 in the Takoma Park Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Miss Ivie was educated in the Southern Junior College in Collegetwa, Tenn., and at Montevelle College in Alabama. Mr. Reed is a graduate of Washington Missionary College commercial department and McKinley Tech.

Members of Society Turn Out for Luncheon

French Envoy To Visit West

The French Ambassador, Count Rene Doynel de Saint Quentin, expects to leave later this month on a trip to California.

Last evening the envoy entertained at another in the series of dinners which he had been giving this winter. The guests were the Latvian Minister and Mme. Bilmanis, the Charge d'Affaires of the Soviet Embassy and Mme. Oumansky, Senator and Mrs. Scott Lucas, Senator Arthur Capper, Representative and Mrs. Luther Johnson, Representative and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George S. Messersmith, the Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army and Mrs. George C. Marshall, and Gen. and Mrs. Maxwell Murray.

Others were the Director of the Export-Import Bank and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alling, Mrs. Howell Moorhead, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Miss Eunice Willson, Mrs. Herbert Howard and, from the embassy staff, the counselor, Jacques Truelle, the Military Attache and Mme. Lombard, and the Second Secretary, Baron Baeyens.

Spanish Envoy To Be Joined by Brother-in-Law

The Spanish Ambassador and Senora de los Rios expect to be joined in this country shortly by the latter's brother, Bernardo Giner, who, since the setbacks suffered by the loyalist cause, has taken refuge in Paris.

Senor Giner, former minister of communications, and his two sons, with Senora de los Rios, the Ambassador's mother, arrived in the French capital recently from Toulouse and expect to sail shortly for the United States.

Senor de Giner, mother of Senora de los Rios, has been at the embassy here since the Ambassador's arrival over two years ago.

Smiths Are Hosts at Southern Tea

Governor and Mrs. Maybank Senator's Guests of Honor

Southern in atmosphere, decorations and menu was the tea given yesterday afternoon by Senator and Mrs. Ellison Durant Smith and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alfred Lawton. With the Governor of South Carolina and Mrs. Barnet Maybank as guests of honor and a company of 200, in which South Carolinias predominated, the party was one of a number that have been planned for the distinguished visitors.

The event took place in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Lawton at 2701 Connecticut avenue. The spacious rooms, decorated with palmettos, sent up from Charleston, and masses of red roses and iris, were lighted entirely by candles, in keeping with a custom that has long been observed in the South.

Guests were ushered in by Douglas, who has served the Smith family as butler for 20 years, and was very much in the picture yesterday afternoon as he invited arrivals to "rest their hats and wraps" in his care.

The long tea table was centered with a bouquet of roses and iris, flanked by two huge cakes, each of which was decorated with miniture palmetto trees. But the featured item in the dining room was the wild turkey served from the lavishly laden table that also boasted enough beaten biscuits to go around several times.

As Senator Smith told a number of the guests, the wild turkey came up from South Carolina, and was the result of one of his own hunting trips.

The guests of honor, Senator and Mrs. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawton, received in the drawing room. Mrs. Smith had chosen a shirt-waist frock, made with a white embroidered blouse and a floor-length skirt; while Mrs. Lawton appeared in a filmy dress of white chiffon, made with long sleeves and a flowing skirt. Both hostesses and Mrs. Maybank wore corsages of camellias ("we call them japonicas down South," said Mrs. Smith).

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Millard Tydings, Mrs. Walter F George, Mrs. John L. McMillan, Mrs. Carlton Pierce, daughter of Senator and Mrs.

Party Held at Home Of Legislator's Son-in-Law Here

Smith, and Mrs. Farley Smith, their daughter-in-law.

The house party had a distinct family accent, with all three daughters and both sons, as well as their two sons-in-law and their daughter-in-law present. One of the most stunning ensembles there was worn by Mrs. Farley Smith Smith who was trimly turned out in a frock made with a white chiffon blouse, and a striped taffeta skirt, full and floor-length, set off with a bright red sash and red clog sandals—all of which were very becoming to her dark hair, blue eyes and fair complexion.

Among the guests were the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. John Monroe Johnson who entertained Gov. and Mrs. Maybank last evening at a dinner at the Chevy Chase Club, where Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins also had some of the spotlight; Edgar Morris, president of the South Carolina Society, and Mrs. Morris; Senator and Mrs. James F. Byrnes, who will fete Gov. and Mrs. Maybank at a buffet supper tonight before the reception and dance of the South Carolina State society tonight; and many, many others.

Gov. and Mrs. Maybank will return to their home in Columbia, S. C., tomorrow.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

THE REASON she always has two orchestras at her parties, says Elsa Maxwell in the latest in a series of articles on "Society: What's Left of It," appearing in a national magazine, is because the art of conversation in the set she leads is "utterly and irrevocably dead."

The vocabulary of an average member of cafe society, she continues, consists of less than 250 words. She names the following as the backbone of their vocabulary: Divine, lousy, grand, okey-doke, thrilling, intriguing, colossal, sex appeal, prince, heel, stunner, swell, nuts, complex, gorgeous, devastating, inhibition, bully, a dozen or so unprintables, and a score or two of French words, invariably mispronounced and totally unnecessary because of the existence of wholly English words of the same meaning.

Miss Maxwell continues to make fun of the set with which she has been so prominently identified by telling of a woman who has dined with every crowned head in Europe and still calls "petit point" chairs "petit pois" chairs. This same hostess confesses to a fondness for "Muriel" paintings.

As a climax to her commentary on the people who make the New York society pages day after day, Miss Maxwell tells the story of a shopping expedition this woman made in London to buy a gun for the hunt-loving former King Alfonso of Spain. The dealer showed her an expensive one and mentioned that it was second hand. 'What's wrong about that?' she replied. "After all, he's a former king, isn't he?"

While there are many Washingtonians (nonforeign) who are addicted to French phrases, and some whose vocabulary is just as limited as Miss Maxwell's friends, at least we can smugly say we don't have much in the line of cafe society here.

RICHARD SOUTHGATE'S traveling days did not end with his recent resignation from the State Department. In his new capacity as European representative for Pan-American Airways, he will leave soon with Mrs. Southgate to reside either in London or Paris. With the proposed trans-atlantic air service about to start—though we hear passengers won't be carried before the end of this summer—Mr. Southgate's job will certainly be an interesting one. He and Mrs. Southgate will be much missed in Washington, where both have loads of friends.

Nancy Leiter will return from Palm Beach in time to head the junior committee for this year's thrift shop benefit party. This annual event will be a dance to be held Friday, April 14, at the usual place, the Sulgrave Club.

ONE of Washington's most prominent attorneys recently had the experience of being "frisked" by the Secret Service men. On a recent sojourn in Key West, he set out to play golf and took the road along which the President was to come. As he was standing waiting for the procession to go by, he reached in his pocket for a package of cigarettes. Immediately practically the entire Secret Service sprang at him and pionioned his arms while they went through his pockets as he protested in vain.

ODDS AND ENDS: Mrs. J. L. Houghteling will give a small tea April 23 for Cornelia Otis Skinner. Both are Bryn Mawr graduates, and Miss Skinner's opening night here in "Candida" will benefit the scholarship fund of the Bryn Mawr Club of Washington. . . . Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge has gone to Florida to get rid of the cold which prevented her attending her recent concert in honor of the Friends of Music. . . . Maxine Davis, the writer, is making a swing around the country to gather material for some forthcoming articles. . . . This next month will see some new State Department arrivals in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. George Acheson have been transferred from Peking, and "Tommy" Thompson will arrive from Geneva.

The Post Club Editor.

The average person doesn't need to diet if she will eat intelligently, Ida Jean Kain told members of the D. C. Dietetics Association last night at a meeting at the Dodge Hotel—and she said they should be shining examples of the results of such a course. Miss Kain, author of the column "Your Figure, Ma-dame!" which appears daily in the Woman's Page of The Post, bore streamlined testimony to the fact that she adheres to her own receipts.

She is a little person—one of the 65 per cent of American women whom she says are less than 5 feet 4 inches tall—but she did not fit into the rest of the description she gave them as "bordering on buxom." She wore a cloud grey gown with a fitted waist and a skirt flaring from the hips. At the left corner of the square neckline was a nosegay of flowers in fuchia shade and she carried a chiffon handkerchief to match.

Her discussion of eating and exercise was designed to encourage those who were overweight to change their ways, and made it seem sensible and easy to do.

Not all persons should be streamlined," was her reassuring dictum. "Weight standards vary for different individuals. Some are meant to be slim and some stocky. Normal weight is in keeping with the structure. It is 105 to 110 pounds for a basic 5 feet of height and 5½ pounds for each additional inch. If the bone structure is large it should be 10 per cent over that.

"But there really is no justice, the shorter you are, the more weight you are likely to have for your height and the harder it is to get thin. The short, dumpy girl has a hard time keeping her weight normal while the tall, thin type can eat twice as much and stay slim without trying."

Streamlined World Is Dessertless

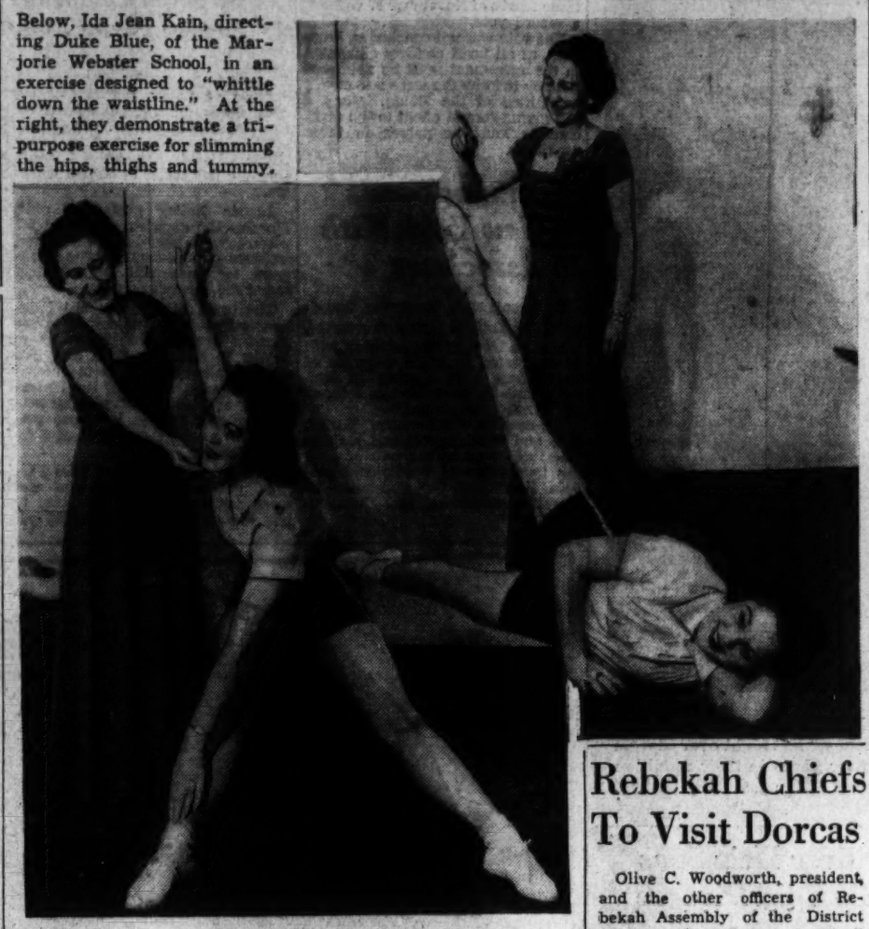
There is no room for desserts in Miss Kain's three meals a day and we mean desserts! An "intelligent eater" may have fruit for the dessert course, she concedes, but nothing of the devastating consistency of pie or cake.

"Show me the person who does not eat desserts and I will show you one of normal weight," she said, advising her audience to learn to like foods which were not fattening. The only difference between a reducing menu and a normal, balanced diet is in fats, which mean cereals, bread and desserts.

She instructs members of her reducing classes put their whole families on a basic balanced diet. And here it is—what everybody shoul have every day: Lean meat, a liberal serving or two small ones; an egg; three cooked vegetables; raw vegetables and salads, with a measured amount of French dressing; two fresh fruits, one citrus; two glasses of skimmed milk or buttermilk for the dieter and whole milk for a person of normal weight; three pats of butter and three slices of whole wheat bread.

From diet she went to exercise and gave rules for rolling, kicking, twisting and bending, demonstrated by Miss Duke Blue, a senior in the Physical education department of the Marjorie Webster School.

"Dieting reduces weight, but you have to exercise to be streamlined; for exercise takes it off in the right places," said Miss Kain.



Below, Ida Jean Kain, directing Duke Blue, of the Marjorie Webster School, in an exercise designed to "whittle down the waistline." At the right, they demonstrate a tri-purpose exercise for slimming the hips, thighs and tummy.

"Unless you are more than 10 per cent overweight, you don't need to diet. Exercise gives a perfect figure, but exercise in itself is not reducing."

She showed where to measure the figure for symmetry, giving Hollywood rules.

Urges Truth In Advertising

Miss Kain closed her talk by urging that members of the American Dietetics Association take action to refute statements of advertisers which claimed certain foods and drinks to be definitely reducing, when they are not. She also urged that the association refute spectacular claims for fad diets for the protection of the gullible public, eager for a get-thin-quick method.

Miss Kain was introduced by Miss Helen Burns, chief dietitian at Walter Red Hospital, president of the local association. Others at the head table were Mrs. Ann Sullivan Hagen, home economics director for the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, vice president; Mrs. Lennice A. Sartell, assistant dietitian at St. Elizabeths Hospital, treasurer; Miss Rowena Latson, chief dietitian, Children's Hospital treasurer; Miss Rowena Roberts, chief dietitian at Sibley Hospital; Miss Marjorie Webster, head of the Marjorie Webster School and president of the Women's City Club; Miss Eva Marks, chief dietitian at Gallinger Hospital; Miss Mildred Parker, chief dietitian at St. Elizabeths, and Miss Grace Bulman, chief dietitian for the Veterans' Administration, all past presidents; and Mrs. Faith Rasmussen, program chairman for the Home Economics Association, who is with the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers.

Child Stars Must Learn R's, Club Informed

Pass or Don't Act, Mrs. Grosvenor Tells 20th Century Gorup

If little movie stars don't pass in the "three Rs" and the rest of their school work, they don't act, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor revealed yesterday in a discussion before the Twentieth Century Club, of home instruction as part of the school system. Mrs. Grosvenor, who recently returned from an extended trip which included Hollywood, told of having met Shirley Temple and of having been present when her teacher arrived to "hold school."

In California, home instruction is included in the set-up in order to make the compulsory education provision of the State law effective, she said. It applies also to children who are crippled or ill.

The news of what is done in California was incidental to a discussion of conditions in the District after a talk by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Baord of Education and chairman of the committee appointed by the board to study the problem of instruction for handicapped children here.

Mrs. Doyle explained the committee was studying the situation in six divisions, as it involved children who were crippled or had heart ailments; those blind or partially sighted; deaf or partly so; tubercular; mentally handicapped, and those excluded for social diseases.

She called on Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, also of the board and a member of the club, to tell of the visits the committee had made to the Baer School in Baltimore which is equipped with a pool and a solarium and that to the Gallaudet School here. Through long-range planning, said Mrs. Doyle, the committee hopes with the advice of physicians and laymen to find the best possible means of educating the handicapped children economically and efficiently. The purpose will be to prepare them to take up work in the regular classrooms as soon as possible and to be fitted to earn a livelihood.

Mrs. Doyle was introduced by Mrs. Frederick Kerby, chairman of the civics and education section of the club, before which she spoke.

53-Piece Orchestra, Two Glee Clubs on Post-WJSV Program

An all-musical program by 179 boys and girls, members of the Students' Radio Guild of McKinley High School, last night was the sixth in a series of "Students' Radio Workshop" shows over Station WJSV.

The programs are offered every Thursday night by students of the District's ten senior high schools, under joint sponsorship of Station WJSV and The Washington Post.

Highlight of last night's production was the 53-piece Tech Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dore Walten, member of the McKinley faculty. The orchestra gave an outstanding performance of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" Fantasie.

Two Glee Clubs Sing

The concert group of the boys' glee club, the girls' glee and the two organizations of 117 voices singing in combination, sang several selections.

These included the school's traditional song, "There's Something About McKinley," by the 45 members of the boys' glee club concert group, who also sang "Pale Moon," Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer" by the girls' glee club, and the two groups joined in Kreisler's "The Old Refrain."

Senior, Teacher Speak

Student and faculty member talks, regular features of "Student Radio Workshop" programs, were given by Thomas Mattingly, senior at McKinley High, and E. H. Krehbiel, teacher of chemistry.

The program was produced under the direction of Miss H. C. Derrick, of the English department; Mrs. B. B. Thompson, director of the boys' glee club, and Harman Nicodemas, director of the girls' glee club. The boys' concert group was under the leadership of William McCall and Loretta Bombara accompanied the singing selections.

Text of Talks on 'Student Radio Workshop'

Pupil Attacks Lack Of Suffrage in D. C. Science Is Defended

Thomas Mattingly, McKinley High School senior, in his talk on "The Voteless D. C.," said in part:

MATTINGLY

"Article XV of the Constitution of the United States on the question of suffrage says: 'The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, sex, or previous condition of servitude.

"According to the Constitution, we should have the right to vote, but we don't—therefore, we're not citizens. And if we are not citizens, what are we?

"In practically every State in the Union, the only ones denied the right to vote are criminals, the insane, paupers in institutions and some aliens. But aliens may become naturalized and the insane declared sane, thus gaining the right to vote. Citizens of Washington, if we may call them citizens, cannot ask for appropriate legislation in the District, because Congress as a whole votes on legislation pertaining to the District of Columbia.

"As one of the greatest democratic nations in the world, the lack of suffrage in the Capital of this Nation is just what our country sought to abolish when it went to war with England in 1776—Taxation without Representatin.' . . .

"It is inconceivable that a city of over 700,000 inhabitants within a democracy is run without voice in its government . . . If we are to be a democratic Nation in the true sense of the word, the government of the Capital of this Nation should be democratic, not autocratic.

"Two things in life are inevitable: Death and taxes. People outside of the District of Columbia are permitted to vote on at least one of these."

In his talk entitled "Science As a Vocation," E. H. Krehbiel, teacher of chemistry at McKinley High School, said in part:

KREHBIEL

"In 1879 Charles Dickens made a trip across the United States, and in his book, 'American Notes,' he makes this comment about us: 'Their good fortune is more in their fields, forests and mines than it is in their brains.'

"At the time the statement was made, it was painfully true, but that phase of our national existence ended about 1915. . . . The importance of science began to be recognized in American industry. . . . Today there is not a city of comparable size anywhere in the world wherein so many men are dependent upon science for their livelihood as in this City of Washington.

"For this reason, we of the science department of the public school system do not regard our courses as just another credit toward graduation. We feel that it is our duty to interest talented young people in science as a profession.

"At the McKinley High School we offer a year of physics. . . . We offer two years of chemistry. . . . We offer a year of biology. . . .

"Science has altered our manner of living more in the past half-century than in any previous five centuries. There is no reason for supposing that we have reached the end of its possibilities.

"The demand for more scientific men probably will continue for many years to come. It is the hope and the aim of the science departments in the local high schools to meet that demand."

U. S.-Canada Trade Pact Approved in Commons

Ottawa, March 9. (Canadian Press).—The Canadian House of Commons tonight adopted a motion of Prime Minister Mackenzie King approving the Canada-United States trade treaty of November 17 without a record vote.

The vote was not conclusive, however, as all tariff changes embodied in the agreement must be approved item by item by the ways and means committee of the House. Then a bill giving formal effect to the tariff changes must be passed in three readings.

Application of honesty, purity, love and unselfishness and making "the fulfillment of the will of God the touchstone of public and private life," are the substance of moral rearmament, Dr. Buchman holds.

C.I.O. Defends Labor Dept. In Steel Wage Scales Suit

Union Says Injunction Sought By Seven Companies Would Menace Pay of 500,000 Men

The Steel Workers Organizing Committee yesterday went to the defense of Labor Department orders which fix wage standards for iron and steel workers. The union said an injunction asked by seven "little steel" companies would threaten pay scales of 500,000 workers.

Justice Bailey postponed until Monday the decision scheduled for yesterday, to hear Joseph Kovner, assistant general counsel of the Congress for Industrial Organization, argue for the interveners.

The companies, which are independent producers operating in the Eastern area, asked the court to enjoin Secretary Perkins and five other Cabinet officials from enforcing orders authorized by the Walsh-Healey act, which provides for setting up wage scales for those getting Government contracts of $10,000 or more.

The companies claimed Miss Perkins' orders were too broad and were arbitrary. They said that to pay the wages provided would put them at disadvantage in bidding for Government work. The Government argued that no right of the companies could be invaded until they were awarded contracts, so that they had no standing in court.

The plaintiffs were Lukens Steel Co., Coatesville, Pa.; Alan Wood Steel Co., Conshocken, Pa.; South Chester Tube Co., Chester, Pa.; Central Iron & Steel Co., Harrisburg, Pa.; Harrisburg Steel Corporation, Harrisburg, Pa.; Eastern Rolling Mill Co., Colgate, Md.; Atlantic Wire Co., Bramford, Conn.

Mrs. Taft to Cut Birthday Cake For Girl Scouts

With Mrs. Robert A. Taft, wife of the Senator from Ohio, as honor guest, Girl Scouts from the District and Prince Georges County will meet at the "Little House" tomorrow to celebrate 27 years of Girl Scout history.

A large birthday cake, bearing 27 candles, will be cut by Mrs. Taft, who has been interested in Girl Scout work for many years. Mrs. Frederick H. Brook, national president, will be present.

Twenty-five girls from Prince Georges County are planning the program. The Fourth District Choral Club, directed by Carolyn O. Green, will sing.

Leaders who will receive Mrs. Taft include Mrs. Henry H. Flather, chairman of the National Little House Committtee; Mrs. William F. Crosby, commissioner of the District of Columbia Council; Mrs. W M. Kiplinger and Mrs. Edward S. Johnson, deputy commissioners. Mrs. Proctor L. Dougherty, chairman of the public relations committee; Mrs. Garrit S. Miller, jr., former commissioner and chairman of the Juliette Low Memorial Fund; Mrs. Maury Middleton, program chairman, and Miss Dorothy Davidson, director for the District of Columbia.

Wheat Denies He Will Retire

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the District Court, yesterday scotched rumors that he proposes to quit May 3, when he would be entitled to retire on full salary of $10,000 annually.

"I have no intention of retiring," the 71-year-old jurist declared, "as long as my health will permit me to go ahead."

Justice Wheat has been ill for several weeks since the Christmas holidays, but is able to be back on the bench.

Silver Heir Sues To Void Divorce

Bridgeport, Conn., March 9 (I.N.S.).—Homer Weidlich, $1,000,000 silver manufacturing heir, brought suit today to void the Reno divorce of "Nicki," his socially prominent wife.

He charges "Nicki" never established the necessary legal residence at Reno. Weidlich recently sued his parent-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Volkhardt, charging they alienated the affections of his wife.

Japan to Bar U. S. Trade In China, Chamber Hears

The Chamber of Comerce of the United States yesterday published advices from China that developments there "indicate the Japanese are determined to eliminate American business from North China."

The chamber of commerce at Tientsin reported the Japanese-sponsored government had adopted export embargoes and restrictions and exchange controls to the disadvantage of American business men.

Jury in Negligent Homicide Case Inspects Scene

A jury in a negligent homicide case was taken to the scene of a fatal traffic accident yesterday afternoon for the first time since the act enabling that charge was enacted in 1935.

Judge Walter J. Casey at the request of Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart allowed the jury to travel to Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest, to view the scene where George Watt, 75, of 637 Maryland avenue southwest, was killed January 4 in a collision between his automobile and a street car. The jury, composed of four women and eight men, seemed to have difficulty picturing the circumstances surrounding the accident, Hart said, and he believed a visit to the intersection was necessary.

The jury left Police Court in a bus shortly after noon. When they returned trial was resumed and will be continued this morning.

ST. JOHN'S AND GONZAGA ARE WINNERS

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 9.

To Whom It May Concern:

Bucky Harris has threatened to fine any Nats who indulge in name-calling against the Cuban colony on the Washington club . . . "They're all good boys, these foreigners, and the first punk who shows any resentment will get a fine slapped on him." . . . Shortly after that proclamation by Harris, he was astounded to hear Senor Roberto Ortiz speak his longest English sentence to date . . . when Rookie Catcher Al Evans dropped a couple of Ortiz's pitches, the Cuban shouted: "These Washington catchers no gude; Lopez, he gude catcher." . . . if, perchance, Ortiz and Alexandra make the grade as big league pitchers, major league scouts will beat a track to Havana next winter . . . Forced by Judge Landis to abandon its St. Augustine franchise in the Flordia League since buying the Orlando club, the Washington team will turn the franchise over to the city.

POVICH

Kayak II's victory in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap recalls the statement made two months ago by Gene Normile, Jack Dempsey's former manager, who is now a turfman on the Pacific Coast . . . at a time when Kayak II was 30 to 1 in the winter books, Normile said: "Kayak II can beat any horse in the race except Seabiscuit." . . . Before Bull Lea won the $50,000 Widener last Saturday, beating Stagehand, Trainer Frank Kearns was telling all his friends at Hialeah: "Bet on Bull Lea. He can't miss." . . . to Kearns, at least, the defeat of Stagehand was no upset . . . Hialeah is the only track in the country that maintains a tennis court . . . jockeys have discovered that tennis is better than roadwork for taking off weight . . . Top tennis players among the jockeys are Eddie Arcaro and Wayne Wright . . . A lively campaign is being conducted in a Chicago newspaper, designed to prevent Jockey Don Meade from being licensed on Illinois tracks.

Joe Engel Is Loser in Dog Fight

Joe Engle, former scout of the Nats, is nursing wounds on his hand suffered when he tried to tear his pet bulldog away from the throat of a hound . . . He was bitten for his pains . . . "If I find I've got rabies, I'm going to bite a couple of club owners and at least one league president before they destroy me," cracked Engle . . . Bill Terry, who has watched Zeke Bonura play first base on the silver standard—on a dime—in practice, is already beginning to wonder if he made a smart deal with the Nats . . . it is Bonura's ill luck that Terry is his boss, for the Giants' manager was a great first baseman himself and apt to be a harsh judge of others . . . Bonura is now in a curve ball league which may not help him . . . fast-ball pitching was his dessert . . . Al Simmons will bat in the clean-up position for the Boston Bees.

When Joe Stripp's Orlando Baseball School team beat Joe Cambria's St. Augustine School team, 4 to 2, the other day, Cambria lost a bet to Stripp . . . they had wagered a hat, and at the finish of the game, Cambria dropped a five-dollar bill into Stripp's lap . . . "Hey," yelled Stripp, "I wear $10 hats." . . . Said Cambria: "I wear five-dollar hats, so take that five spot or leave it." . . . Stripp did not leave it . . . Bucky Harris estimates that the small man who normally hits .285 would be a .320 hitter if he were bigger . . . "Little men who hit the ball just as squarely on the nose as the big fellows, lose hits because they don't have the power to drive them through the infield fast enough, or to hit the fences." . . . The Cleveland club has not received a nibble for 36-year-old Earl Averill who is non grata with the Indians front office and who is on the block.

Al Schacht in Heavy Dough Now

Al Schacht, according to his advance bookings for his clowning stunts, will make more money in 1939 than any player in the big leagues . . . he will earn about $35,000 . . . Schacht's salary as a coach was never more than $5,000 . . . If the Red Sox are serious pennant threats by mid-summer, Tom Yawkey is expected to announce that Manager Joe Cronin's contract has been renewed for 1940 . . . A scout from the Detroit camp reports that Rudy York is hopeless as a catcher or an outfielder, but that he can play first base . . . which he will not play because in Hank Greenberg the Tigers happen to have the No. 1 first baseman in the league . . . When Lou Gehrig, who was hitting .180 for the first month of the season, asked Manager Joe McCarthy how a guy should shake a slump, McCarthy said: "You came to the right man, Lou. I'm an authority on slumps. Was in a slump for 15 years. Never hit .300 in my life."

Hundreds of racing dogs are given away at the finish of each dog race meeting in Florida . . . because they develop distemper and are useless for further racing . . . The pet of Greyhound, the champion trotter, is, appropriately enough, a greyhound . . . With the Pimlico track now operating under the guidance of Alfred Vanderbilt, the Dixie Handicap has drawn a field of entries which may make it the year's best race . . . Bull Lea, Stagehand, Kayak II and every other top handicap horse is entered . . . "Uninterested," was the comment of Clark Griffith when it was announced that Connie Mack was seeking help for Third Baseman Bill Werber, stubborn holdout . . . prodded again, Griffith said simply: "We've got a third baseman." . . . Jimmy Wasdell, the Nats' first baseman, was fired as a scorecard seller in the Cleveland ball park when he was caught shooting dice underneath the grandstands.

On the Line

With Considine

New York, March 9.—Just as the solvency of the amateur net game in England once depended upon him, the well-being of America's professional tennis game now depends on Frederick John Perry, the pipe-smoking glamour boy who meets Don Budge tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

CONSIDINE

The match, which opens the second chapter in the professional life of Budge, can strengthen the New York public's shaken confidence in pro tennis, or forever break its skull. The Vines-Budge engagement in January was such a monumental bore, and, so far as the $7.70 customers were concerned, such an unpardonable gyp, that the Budge-Perry thing becomes a test case to prove whether or not there is any room for this sport in the dossier of dignified muscling.

Vines won only five or six fewer matches than Budge did during their recent tour, but his lackadaisical manner in many of the more important cities inspired many blind disciples of tennis to ask, for the first time in their lives, whether the thing was a Barney. A lot of times it looked like it, for the boys roomed together and had a way of getting done with their little business in time to catch the 11:49 sleeper. The suspicion was pardonable, and, to my knowledge at least, Vines rarely exerted himself in an effort to prove the probable truth of the matter: that the late lamented tour was strictly on the up and up.

Potent Package of Muscles, Skill

It is just as well for the blokes who have money tied up in the pro game that Budge's next opponent is Perry. The Englishman is one of the great competitors of our age. The fellow, at 29, is a potent package of muscles, reflexes, co-ordination and intense skill. He has more will to win than America's first ten players, and in his British way he has a little of the gas house gang technique in him. He'll give you what's coming to you, and nothing more, and if you want to play rough, okay. He is one of the few tennis players who'll "scramble"—which means that he'll dive head first into the bleachers to return a ball.

He has what precious few tennis players ever had, and that is "color," as the average sports fan understands the word. The average sports fan can't stand a tennis player. He looks upon him as an eccentric. Only a handful of tennis players have ever had any mob appeal. The first was a fellow named Maury McLaughlin. He probably did more for tennis than any one man, though he wasn't much of a player. But he had red hair, a way of throwing himself up to the net after nearly every serve and the rhythm and strength to hit an overhand smash harder than anybody before him had ever hit one.

He had sock, and he made millions look at the game as something less than the physical manifestation of a thwarted and warped human appetite.

There were a couple of fellows who followed him, who could draw spectators in pretty fair numbers. One was named Dick Williams. He had a strange game, so far as America was concerned. He learned it in Switzerland. He started back home on the Titanic, and, too weak from exhaustion, saw his old man slip beneath the heaving black bosom of the frigid Atlantic as he clung to a log after the ship sank.

Perry's Type Rare in Tennis

Another color guy was Bill Johnston, who never weighed 120 pounds but hit as hard on his forehand as any bigger bruiser ever could hit. He could beat anybody, except the greatest crowd attracter of them all—Bill Tilden.

A lot of people laughed at Tilden, for his prissy airs, but they paid to see him. It was much the same way with Suzanne Lenglen, who had all the color Helen Moody lacked. Nobody liked Lenglen particularly, but she could play like a streak.

Perry is one of those fabled people rare in tennis. He would have made a good boxer, ballplayer or movie actor, for he looks like something out of one of those too, too supine English drawing room tableaux. Budge should win a slight majority of their 30-odd matches, for the fellow is terrific, but the individual contests will never be ridiculous, as must have been his 6—0, 6—1 breeze through vines at New Orleans.

Perry will fight him all the way, for that is the nature of the fellow. He beat Vines at the Garden in his pro debut. We wouldn't be especially surprised if he licked Budge tomorrow night—as he did in 1934 at Los Angeles, in 1935 at Wimbledon and in 1936 at Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

Boxer and Referee Questioned On Death After Fight Here

Amateur Defeated By Close Decision Faints in Shower

James O. Loffin, 19, featherweight amateur boxer and soldier stationed at Fort Belvoir, died yesterday afternoon following his defeat Wednesday night in a bout in the annual District A. A. U. boxing tournament at Turner's Arena.

The youth never regained consciousness, and failed to rally after an emergency operation by Dr. John Sugrue, brain specialist.

Willie Tapp, city 118-pound champion and a member of the Golden Gloves team scheduled to compete in the Eastern championships at New York next week, was Loffin's opponent, and earned a close decision after a fast, hard bout.

Tabb was ordered to appear at an inquest tomorrow morning after he and Eddie LaFond, referee of the bout, appeared at detective headquarters and talked to officers. Tabb was released without bond in the custody of Pat O'Connor, former fighter and local bondsman. Tabb, who is nineteen, is scheduled to go to New York Sunday to fight in the Golden Gloves tournament there.

"I did not think I was in any danger during the fight nor did I think my opponent was in any danger," he said in a formal statement to police. "I did not knock him down."

JAMES O. LOFFLIN

LaFond, a veteran official, was deeply shocked at news of the boy's death.

"I can't understand it," he said.

Griff Denies Trade Plans; To Stand Pat

Nats' Owner Sticks to Plan of Building on Youth; Talk of Travis Deal Tabbed Bunk

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 9.—Loudly denying that he is attempting to swing any training-season deals, Clark Griffith declared today that he is willing to stand pat with the talent now on the Washington roster.

Asked for comment on the widespread report that the Cleveland Indians are the latest club to make the Nats an offer for shortstop Cecil Travis, Griffith said:

"Somebody's crazy. Cleveland has never made me an offer for Travis. I wouldn't trade him anyway."

The Nats' owner also denied that the trade talk involving the Washington club and the Tigers last winter, with Travis as the pivotal figure, has ever been resumed.

"I wouldn't accept the Detroit offer then, and they've never made me another. My price on Travis is too high for any club in the league," he said.

Wants Young Talent

Then the Nats' owner launched into his oft-repeated speech anent his determination to build his club on a youthful foundation. "I'm serious about it. I don't want any more old-timers. I don't want Joe Glenn, the Browns' catcher, as the papers have reported. I've got a collection of young ball players who will put Washington in the first division this year and improve after that."

Griffith made only one exception in discussing trades. "I'll take Earl Averill if the Cleveland team asks waivers on him. But I won't trade any of my young fellows for him. A few months ago the Indians had Averill on the waiver list. He's 36 years old, and he might help a club for a year or two. But he is not the sort of player a club-owner could build with."

Particularly was Griffith emphatic in denying that he was seeking to engineer a trade that would bring the Nats Joe Glenn, former Yankee catcher, now with the Browns. "We don't need catchers. There's nothing the matter with Rick Fer-

Rockville's Girls In Tourney Tonight

Champions Risk Title and Great Victory In Post-A. A. U. Tournament; REA Is Foe At Eastern Gym; D. and H. in Debut

Games involving appearances of the crack Rockville Girls, and the Delaware & Hudson teams and a rousing suburban clas are on tonight's program of the District A. A. U. championship tournament, being sponsored by The Washington Post at the Eastern High gymnasium. Four point-for-point struggles, and "kid upset" always lurking close by, will be offered basketball bans for 25 cents, the admission price that will prevail for night games throughout the tournament.

Both Rockville and Delaware & Hudson are champions of other tournament years. The Montgomery County girls have reigned for two years and have a winning streak as well as their title hopes to defend when they meet the Rural Electrification Administration girls at 8 o'clock. Delaware & Hudson, now involved in the play-off for the Heurich Amateur League title, has taken a number of court championships in other years when playing under the banner of Rinaldi Tailors, Sholl's Cafe and Regal Clthiers.

D. & H. has drawn the Georgetown Boys Club unlimited team as its opponent tonight. The players from the West End are not frightened by the reputation or the big names of the D. & H. club and will be ready to go down fighting, if they go down.

Suburban Clash Booked

The night's all-suburban clash, slated for 9 o'clock, should be a hummer. From over in Maryland comes the Greenbelt Athletic Club with its rooters to uphold the prestige of that community in a struggle with the McLean Athletic Club from Virginia. The Old Dominion club has been doing some titular playing in its own section and will be ready for anything Greenbelt has to offer in a basketball way.

The Rockville Girls haven't lost a game in almost three years and have taken down two District A. A. U. titles. Last year they won 36 straight games after being undefeated during the previous season. This year they have won 15 games and have averaged 43 points to 15 for their opponents. Rockville numbers among its victims the Hagerstown Girls, who won the South Atlantic A. A. U. title last year.

Rockville's chief scoring is done by Margaret Lanier, Margarite Howard and Audrey Nusbaum. The club has three fine guards in Edith Koiner, Nellie May Norris and Gene Smith. The last named was

G. W. High And Devitt Defeated

Two D. C. Fives Move Into Second Round of Annual W. & L. Cage Championship

By Bill Burnett.
A Staff Correspondent.

Lexington, Va., March 9.—A smart brand of basketball along with a reasonable amount of luck brought two of the four Washington schoolboy basketball teams through the first round of the South Atlantic Scholastic Tournament here at Washington and Lee University today.

St. John's, trying for the third time in three years to capture the elusive crown, opened Washington's winning streak with a hard-earned 23-20 victory over Hargrave Military Academy, of Chatham, Va., the issue being settled in the last few minutes of play. Gonzaga Prep, which has furnished St. John's its bitterest rivalry this season, followed its Catholic Prep mate onto the Doremus gym floor and literally eked out an 18-17 triumph over Richmond Academy, of Augusta, Ga.

Devitt Is Beaten

Playing in the first game of the fifteenth renewal of the W. and L. event, George Washington High, of Alexandria, had victory almost in its grasp but faltered to allow Fork Union M. A. a 25-18 triumph. Devitt Prep played the last game of the afternoon session and was battered hopelessly by Monroe A and M., another Georgia representative, 32-14.

The defending champion and pretourney favorite, Durham (N. C.) High, came through the first round unscathed, edging out a plucky but slightly outclassed Staunton Military Academy five, 45-39. It was a brilliant showing for the cadet team which held little hope of bouncing out the power-ridden Durham crew. Though his team was beaten, Johnson, of Staunton, was the high scorer with 14 points. At half time Durham held only a 20-17 advantage.

Danville Military Academy scored the major upset of the first day's play and became the second round opponent of Gonzaga, of Washington, when it was off to a fast start and beat Spartanburg High, 28-22.

John Marshall High, with the second team working much of the game, took an easy 30-12 decision from the local representative, Lexington High. A powerful contender for the title was uncovered in the final game of the night when Greenbrier Military Academy smashed Benedictine High, of Richmond, Va., 30-17.

Bob Hood Checked

St. John's came through its opener, earning a shot at Fork Union in the tomorrow's rounds, in exactly the same manner that it has run up a brilliant record of 15 victories this season. It trailed at the half by 14-12, sliced Hargrave's lead in two at the third-quarter rest, and won with a rush down the home stretch.

Joe Gallagher tallied 4 points under fourth period pressure and Charley Batchelder scored 2. Gallagher, playing for the third straight year in the tourney, was the favorite of bleacherites as he turned in a total of 10 points for honors.

Besides his point manufacturing, Joe limited Hargrave's highly touted forward, Bob Hood, to a mere 6 points, though the latter has been credited with a game average of over 16 points while his team took the Virginia State prep title.

Hoping to season his first team for another tourney, as well as in an effort to win the game, Coach Gene Augusterfer used the same five men throughout. The Johnnies accepted a bid to the Eastern State Catholic tourney in Newport, R. I., yesterday, bringing their total to three this season.

George Washington plainly had no taste for the tough going, exhibiting the same lack of heart in the pinches that lost its first-round encounter in the Metropolitan tournament after leading by 15 points. The Presidents, however, turned in another fine performance for three quarters.

Nowland High Scorer

Ed Nowland, outstanding center of George Washington, was high scorer for the team with 10 points, tying for game honors with Miller, of Fork Union, but Stan Heflin seemed the headiest of the Alexandria contingent. He started the scoring, kept fighting when most of his teammates had given up in the final session, and was the best all-round floorman.

For three periods G. W. seemed a certain winner. It was behind, 6-3, after the first eight minutes, but fought for a 14-9 advantage at the half. Even in the third quarter the game was a toss-up, but that seemed the limit of G. W.'s staying power.

After only a few maneuvers, Gonzaga appeared an easy victor over the slower Georgia five. It led, 6-3,

Wolverines Lose Champion Coach; Hoyt Joins Yale

Ann Arbor Mich., March 9 (U.P.).—Charles B. Hoyt, University of Michigan track coach who has guided the Wolverines to 11 out of 16 possible Big Ten Conference titles, announced tonight he is resigning to become head track coach at Yale.

The university athletic board announced that it has accepted the resignation and named to the vacated position Kenneth Doherty, Hoyt's assistant for the past nine years. The resignation will become effective at the end of the school year.

He said in his formal announcement that "it has been a real privilege to serve at Michigan and the decision to leave had been difficult to make.

"The new position has so many attractive features and possibilities that in fairness to my family and whole future I cannot refuse."

Maryland Boxing Team Is Honored At Dinner Here

Maryland University's undefeated boxing team was honored at a dinner-dance last night at Bamboo Gardens. Miss Clay Keene Bernard, 4-year-old mascot of the Southern Conference champions, was honored guest.

Team members present included Capt. and National Champion Benny Alperstein, Conference Champions Newton Cox and Frank Cronin, and George Dorr, Bob Bradley, Bod Lodge, I. Leiter, M. Steinbach and Henry Raisin. Manager Warren Steiner and Assistant Managers Bob Wilson and Cliff Henley were also present.

Guests included Athletic Director Geary Eppley and Mrs. Eppley, Coach Heinie Miller and Mrs. Miller, Assistant Coach Capt. Maglin and his wife and Mrs. Lucille Bernard.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

We had been going along having our annual flu in the usual quiet, orthodox fashion—fever, aches, cough, etc.,—and without any fuss or feathers when a total stranger dropped in with a needle.

RUNYON

He muttered good morning, eyed us in a somewhat disinterested manner, then suddenly jabbed his needle into the tip of the middle of our right finger and before we had stopped yowling he had muttered good morning again and was gone with a seidel of our good rich, red blood.

Well, the next thing we knew the doctor was around murmuring that a hospital seemed indicated. It appears that our blood showed some incredible returns. It was higher than Mr. Roosevelt's last plurality. We gathered from the doctor's remarks that a blood count that high generally suggested the presence of something quite sinister, indeed.

We said, "All right, then, tell Horsethief Burke to get the dogs ready, and to be sure and bring the playing cards and the portable radio and plenty of cigarettes."

The doctor said, "Get the dogs ready! For what?"

We said, "Get them ready to go to the hospital, of course."

We were a little surprised by the doctor's question. He had seen us through our annual flur for years, and he knows very well that the dogs go with it. As a matter of fact, we would not enjoy our flu without the dogs. They serve to keep a fellow warm when the chills hit.

Must Have Horsethief

It is true that one of them, a toy Peke, is little better than a good warmer, but Satin, a broad-beamed cocker spaniel is as good as a thick blanket. A small cocker puppy called Sister has not had much experience with flu patients, but

Co-Sport Shatters Track Record in Feature at Tropical

Clips Second From Old Mark; Dnieper Takes Place Money By Three Lengths

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., March 9.—Bert Friend's Co-sport, regarded as a sprinter, caused a surprise here today when he stretched his blazing speed over the mile and 70 yards distance and easily won the Homestead Purse. With Ira (Babe) Hanford scoring a double on his back, the cohort gelding breezed past the wire a four lengths victor in new track record time of 1:43 4-5, clipping one second from the mark established the previous day by Dark Beau. This distance replaced the former mile and 60 yards distance at this meeting since the finish line was moved about 30 feet nearer to the first turn.

Mose Goldblatt's Dnieper took the place by three lengths, while P. L. Kelly's Prince Derek easily ousted Go Home, the favorite, from the show position. The latter weakened in the final quarter mile.

Pays $14.80 Ticket

Co-sport, in earning his first triumph out of six starts this year, paid $14.80 for $2. Among the seven starters were some possible candidates for the $10,000 added, 1 1-16-mile Tropical Handicap of closing day. Nominations for this fixture will not close until March 18.

B. F. Whitaker's Mythical King, which had been the advance favorite, was withdrawn early because of soreness.

Co-Sport broke in front, disposed of Fairy Dale in short order, then opened up an unbeatable lead. He never was in danger. Dnieper showed early speed, dropped back temporarily, then came again in the stretch. Prince Derek lacked early foot. He found his racing legs leaving the far side and ran over Go Home. The latter moved up after a quarter mile, only to falter when the important running arrived.

Exhilaration attracted the bulk of the play in the sixth event and won by two lengths with Maurice Peters sitting snug in the saddle. Black River came with a late rush to head Glenbroom out of the place money.

MEXICO CITY, off slowly, worked his way up on the outside in the early stages, came through between the leaders with a determined challenge at the furlong pole and outlasted ROCK HIGH in the final drive. ROCK HIGH, well up and slipping through on the inside all the way, took command entering the stretch, but was unable to stave off the winner's bid. FRANK H., slow to begin, improved his position while circling the field midway around the turn, and closed fast through the stretch, but could not overtake the leaders. FLETUS, in close attendance of the race, faltered in the stretch run.

SWIFTNESS, away alertly, went in close pursuit of the pace on the outside under steadying restraint, responded gamely when the final issue came and drew clear at the end. OKLAB, vigorously ridden took a short lead rounding the turn, came out entering the stretch, but then faltered in the final drive. DIANAPAT broke well, but was pinched back in the opening furlong, gained steadily on the outside and, closing with a rush through the stretch, was wearing the leaders down.

KAI-HI broke forwardly, went close to the pace while racing on the outside and responded gamely through the stretch to win going away. DARBY DALLAS, shuffled back after the start, was taken around the leaders in the final quarter mile, finished gamely and wore BRILLIANT GOLD down in the last strides. BRILLIANT GOLD began fast, drew clear in the opening sixteenth mile and saved ground the remainder of the trip, but faltered in the stretch run.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEEBAG, $12.90, $5.20, $3.90; MYRNA LEE, $4.40, $3.30; RACEAWAY, $4.80.

WEEBAG, in the thick of contention throughout, closed gamely on the outside in the final furlong and wore MYRNA LEE down in the last strides. MYRNA LEE raced CANTOVINO into defeat in the early stages, drew clear on the stretch turn, but faltered in the stretch drive. RACEAWAY, vigorously urged all the way, contested with good courage and held HOLIDAY TEA safe at the end. HOLIDAY TEA, buffeted about and repeatedly blocked, finished fast when clear.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:00. Off 4:01½. Winner, B. Friend's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CO-SPORT, $14.80, $7.90, $6.50; DNIEPER, $9.70, $5.40; PRINCE DEREK, $5.20.

CO-SPORT held his opposition safe for speed and, rated in front until midway around the lower turn, opened up a winning lead when called upon, but was ridden out briskly to the end. DNIEPER, eased off the early pace, improved his position steadily while saving ground the last three furlongs and finished going gamely. PRINCE DEREK moved around the leaders with a bold challenge leaving the backstretch, but faltered in the final furlong, yet held the remainder safe.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 4:28. Off 4:31½. Winner, Mrs. George H. Strate's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EXHILARATION, $8.20, $3.70, $3.30; BLACK RIVER, $5.60, $4.10; GLENBROOM, $5.80.

EXHILARATION, a keen factor all the way, swung around the leaders entering the stretch, assumed command while bearing over and drew out in the last sixteenth mile. BLACK RIVER gained steadily while going around the leaders and wore GLENBROOM down in the final drive. GLENBROOM, prominent on the inside, made a bold bid entering the stretch, but faltered as if short. MARPEU broke forwardly, but dropped back and, taken behind horses in the early stages, finished with a belated rush through the stretch and was probably second best.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:58. Off 5:01½. Winners, Mrs. J. M. Black's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAONA (dead heat), $5.10, $4.90, $4.50; VICUNA (dead heat), $4.50, $4.60, $4.00; BAKED BIBESCOT, $6.70.

GAONA, prominent contender in the early running, took a short lead under vigorous pressure rounding the lower turn and, responding gamely through the stretch, withstood VICUNA'S challenge. VICUNA, crowded back going to the first turn, saved ground after entering the backstretch and gained steadily, made a bold effort and just failed to overtake the winner. BAKED BIBESCOT, shuffled out of contention at the first turn, improved his position steadily after entering the backstretch and, closing with a rush through the stretch, would have won in a few more strides and was probably the best.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:30. Off 5:35. Winner, Larch Hill Stable's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THAT ONE, $87.70, $23.10, $13.70; INACTIVE, $7.30, $5.60; MAEBEAU, $14.40.

THAT ONE, a forward contender on the outside, was eased off the pace leaving the backstretch, moved up gamely when placed to pressure and wore MAEBEAU down, but just lasted long enough to withstand INACTIVE'S bid. The latter assumed command rounding the first turn, was pinched back leaving the backstretch, came again under extreme pressure and would have won in another stride. MAEBEAU, rushed into a long lead while circling the field, saved ground thereafter, but faltered in the final drive. GOOD WINE continued with good courage in the stretch run. LUCKY STAR dropped out of contention after going about a half mile.

At The Post

Dear Al,

I received a letter from one of Clocker Mike's pals. After telling me that he hadn't seen Mike since Charles Town, he came through with a few lines that I'm passing on: "If you have a load, let me in on it. The Mrs. was laid up with the flu and the croker took a half yard for his trouble. Thanking you in advance always at your favors you friend ——." What he means is that if I have plenty of money he wants me to send some. "The croker" is the doctor and a half yard," in his parlance, is $50. He doesn't know that I'm in the "hotel stakes" which means I owe a hotel bill. Now that Bowie is opening two days early and running until December 2 at the fall meeting, I can understand why the officials at that track did nothing about the ice situation that halted the session there last fall. They probably had been informed that the four days would be made up this year. The West Virginia Racing Commission has ruled against Charles Town conflicting with any Maryland track during the regular season. However, Bowie by taking two days in December would be muscling in on Charles Town's dates. Just what will come out of that, remains to be seen. Don't be surprised if Gulfstream doesn't get in on a few choice dates in Florida next winter. If the Maryland mild winter holds out it looks as if the horses that wintered in the North will be able to hold their own with those who raced in Florida, Canada, Arkansas and California. I had a letter from a Maryland trainer who says he has hardly missed a day galloping his horses and that they will be fit and ready when the Bowie gong rings if the snow and ice doesn't come up between now and March 30. Bowie is getting several large shipments of horses from Hialeah, several owners having passed up the Tropical meeting to rest up for the Prince Georges County session. One thing is certain, Kayak II will not race in the Maryland stakes at 110 pounds and how he can carry weight remains to be seen. I wish Charles S. Howard would forget about trying to make Seabiscuit break Sun Beau's money-winning record and retire the horse for good. If any horse took a beating during his racing career it was Seabiscuit. We expect selling platers to get the worst of it but Seabiscuit, with his hopping from track to track, certainly has earned a rest. But he probably will be patched up and sent back to action.

BILL.

First race—I'm going to give Gold Knightess another chance. She has the speed for a sprint of this sort, and if Maloney can get her away winging she probably will hang up a set of brackets. Combatant, first on the "also eligible" list, is a threat if in action. Laddie Stone to take care of the others.

Second race—Addis, despite the top assignment of 116 pounds, deserves the call in this field. Donoso will do the riding, and I see no reason for mistakes. Muggins is well placed and is dangerous. Bosonia for the show end.

Third race—Here's another that I'm going to give another opportunity. Predestined is slated to have Meade up in this field of maidens and likes the short sprint route. It looks like now or never for this one. Huskie Queen has speed and should be a keen factor. Rosepillar comes from a good stable.

Fourth race—Welding seems the best of the maiden juveniles gathered for this event. Wright will be ready for one of his right rides. Atum Re got some education at the other track. Boy Baby is said to be a good one.

Fifth race—Isaiah is a tough one to beat, as recent races suggest, and this looks like a spot for another winning effort. Patsey Begone was never better, and I understand Meade will do the riding. Cruising should gain a money position.

Sixth race—Learner gets in action here with a feather of 103 pounds, and the wake-up signal may be given. Pascua breaks off the rail, but has early foot and should be close. Red Time recently scored and deserves attention.

Seventh race—Exhort seems well placed in this cheap company and needs only good handling from Jockey Snider. Learned is a threat on best races. John Doe was close at long odds the other day and should do a lot of running.

Eighth race—Candy Hero could awake with a bang in the finale. Schmidl knows how to ride when the chips are down. Chatterfol has been threatening and will be dangerous. Ravenna likes her weight and the route.

Best bet—Addis.

Patty Berg Loses 1st Match of Year; Miss Dettweiler Bows

Miss Kirby, Mrs. Vare Golf Victors

Bellair Invitation Semifinals Bring Pair of Upsets; Scores Are Close

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Belleair, Fla., March 9.—Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta schoolgirl, upset National Champion Patty Berg here today in the annual invitation tournament by a decisive 3 and 2 count for the latter's first defeat of the winter campaign. Miss Kirby qualified as an opponent for Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, who defeated Helen Dettweiler, Washington, on the final green.

Miss Kirby gained the winning margin on the second nine in the unexpected triumph over Miss Berg, who had things her own way in the previous tournaments on the present swing. A short chip shot on the tenth, a trap on the eleventh by Patty, and a birdie putt by the winner on the fourteenth provided the winning margin.

Many regard the Atlanta girl as Patty's most likely successor and her play today proved she is almost ready to hold her own with the Nation's top rankers.

Miss Berg won a medal-play tournament at Augusta, Ga., in December and moved into Florida to register victories in the Miami Beach and the Florida East Coast at St. Augustine.

The champion defeated Miss Kirby, 1 up, in the 36-hole finals of the Miami Biltmore tournament.

Mrs. Vare, six times winner of the National Championship and the Maryland State titleholder also, waged an even battle for the first half of the match, Mrs. Vare then went three up and finally closed the match on the eighteenth hole.

Miss Dettweiler won the first hole, the match was even on the second and perfect approach shot gained the D. C. girl another one-hole lead on the fifth. The next three were halved and Mrs. Vare evened matters on the ninth as Miss Dettweiler drove out of bounds. They both turned in 38.

A short approach and trapped drive also cost the Maryland champion two holes on the back nine, and Mrs. Vare went three up as her opponent was again out of bounds on the fourteenth. The fifteenth was halved, and the Capital entrant rallied with a pair of pars, one via a 20-foot putt to send the match to 18 where the hole was halved in pars and the match was over.

Dr. Murphy No Match For Londos

World Champion of Some Places Wins 31-Minute Battle

Jim Londos returned to Turner's Arena last night in the wrestling feature and scored his usual triumph, a 31-minute victory over Dr. John Dropkick Murphy before 1,500 fans.

For the first 28 minutes of the bout for Londos' present title, Jeem was getting the worst of it, but he applied the crab hold and his famed airplane spin within the next three minutes, and Referee Cyclone Burns sent Murphy to the showers.

Bibber McCoy tossed Wee Willie Davis in 17 minutes with a flying tackle, while Red Ryan won his bout with Jack Carter when the latter was disqualified for fouling after 15½ minutes.

Ben Slolom made short work of Jim Wright, applying a body slam after 9 minutes of action, while the usual draw was between George Pencheff and Babe Zaharias, who roughed it up for the regulation 30 minutes.

Pencheff and Zaharias apparently failed to settle their differences in the draw and mixed it in the ring for more than five minutes following the end of the bout. Police and spectators stopped it before anyone was hurt.

City Bank Out To Kill Jinx Protecting Cup

No. 1 Team, Is Loop Leader, Now Facing The Old Voodoo

City Bank No. 1's pace-setting pinmen are apparently on their way to breaking the jinx that surrounds the Joshua Carr Trophy in the 20-year history of the Banker's Bowling League. The leaders stretched their advantage to six games in a double-header last night at Arcadia, by winning four out of six.

When the circuit was organized in 1919 Joshua Carr presented the teams with a trophy, to be retired only after three consecutive pennants in league play. And for 20 years pinmen are seeking to own it. No team ever has bested the tight competition for more than two straight seasons.

In the 1936-37 race, American Security & Trust No. 1 pinmen, winners the two preceding years, were leading into the final night's play, and were virtually assured of the trophy. But City Bank No. 1 got hot and won the title on total pins—as the teams were tied in games—and went on to repeat last season.

Now with six weeks of play remaining, City Bank No. 1 leads by six games, and apparently is headed for the Carr Trophy. But Paulie Harrison, floor manager at Arcadia, reports the other teams are conceding nothing—they're out to protect the Carr Cup—and out to get City Bank.

Bill Mehler has kept the leading quintet together over the three-year span, with Jim Hayden as the top-average pin-spiller. They were nearing another mark with 17 straight victories until the two losses in the twin bill.

Riggs copped the honors, however, for the two sets last night. Pardoe rolling third high game of the year, 172; Jim Bridges second high set, 406, and Riggs tied high team game of 612 and rolled second high team set of 1,777. City Bank No. 1 posted a game of 610 that is second high of the year.

Hamilton is in second place in the standings, with A. S. No. 1 third.

Hockey Promoter Wants Clubs to Return To Riverside Rink Next Tuesday; Plans Summer Boxing Schedule

Not only organized ice hockey but a new boxing and wrestling club appeared assured for District fans last night as Ray Alvis, promoter of the Rover-Orioles match Wednesday night surveyed the past and gazed into the future with mounting enthusiasm. The initial venture in puck-pushing was a complete success in every respect, and Alvis is confident the city will support regular league matches.

Alvis, meanwhile, hopes to bring back the Rovers and Orioles for a return match Tuesday night, after it was revealed that the New Yorkers offered to meet the Baltimoreans on a winner-take-all basis. A heated argument followed Baltimores' surprising 4-3 victory over the highly touted Manhattan sextet.

Tomorrow night the Riverside team will meet Georgetown in a special match at 8:30 o'clock, with tickets selling at popular prices. Raoul LeMat, former Scandanavian Olympic hockey coach and an expert strategist, is coaching Riverside's team and expects his boys to take the Hoyas in stride. Next season LeMat will be in charge of a program embracing a District collegiate as well as a city amateur league.

Alvis yesterday disclosed that he has an option on an Eastern League franchise, and probably will take it up next season. Although he refused to mention any names, he intimated that ample financial support was available to install the sport here. Chris Heurich, jr., who sponsored an American League basketball team, and S. G. Loeffler, builder and owner of the rink, were said to be interested in the proposition.

Eddie Ross, prominently identified with boxing a quarter of a century as trainer, manager and promoter, will act as matchmaker for the Riverside Stadium this summer, and plans to inaugurate popular price boxing. Ross' program will call for 40 rounds of boxing at prices scaled from 40 cents to $1.65.

"Name" fighters—the best available—will appear in featured bouts, with home-town and nearby club fighters in preliminary matches. Wrestling will see middleweights and light-heavyweights, rather than heavyweights featured, which avoid all conflict with Joe Turner's program.

Turner and Ahearn, meanwhile, will continue at Griffith Stadium in both boxing and wrestling, thus it looks as though the fans will profit by the new arrangement. With two clubs running, Turner and Ahearn on Monday night, and Alvis and Ross on Friday night, the public can take its choice.

New Mexico Aggies, Bradley Complete Card at Garden

New York, March 9 (AP).—The field for the second annual invitation basketball tournament sponsored by the Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association was completed today with bids to Bradley Tech, of Peoria, Ill., and New Mexico State Aggies.

The four other teams in the tournament, invited previously, are Long Island University, Roanoke College, of Salem, Va.; St. John's, of Brooklyn, and Loyola, of Chicago. In the draw, made up today at the wrtiers' meeting, Long Island will meet New Mexico and St. John's will play Roanoke on Wednesday night, March 15, in Madison Square Garden.

Colorful Western Five May Visit Washington

Representative Jack Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, said here last night he was endeavoring to have the colorful New Mexico Aggies routed through Washington on their way to New York. The Aggies, who travel in cowboy outfits, averaged 59 points a game in 1938, Dempsey's office said.

Second-Place League Tie to Be Broken

Department of Agriculture courtment meet GAO in the first half of a double bill in the United States Government League tonight at Bolling Field. Procurement and Army Medicos meet in the second game at 9:20. Both teams in the first game, plus the Medicos and F. B. I. are deadlocked for second place. Tonight's games will break the four-team deadlock.

Baering Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

The Government has 11,000,000 bales of cotton that it must ease on the market without disturbing anything. That's like a fat man getting into a filled bathtub without making a ripple or losing a drop.

If you are going to lock your goats up for the night with the carrots, peas, beans and greens, you will have goat milk but you will never have vegetable soup.

The doctor contemplated the dogs awhile as if he had never seen them before, though they had been greeting him with cheerful outcries every morning for a week and had been showing every disposition to assist him in his ministrations to us. Finally he said he guessed we would have to dismiss the idea of the hospital, but that we really should have a trained nurse.

We asked him as man to man if we could hurt Old Horsethief Burke's feelings at this stage of the game by getting a nurse when Horsey has nursed us through more spells of the flu than anybody has fingers and toes? We said where could we find a better sick room rummy partner than Horsethief? Or where a better ashtray emptier?

We said where could we get a trained nurse who would know how to reach a bookmaker in a town where there was not supposed to be any bookmaking and who would know just what hour to turn on the radio and find out if any of those parlays won?

We said it was true that Horsethief might occasionally fall down the stairs with a tray from stepping on his own feet, and that he might occasionally give us the wrong medicine, but that in the main his nursing suited us all right.

The doctor wanted to know if we meant that fat fellow he had seen around with us for years? We said, Yes, that was the one. Eleven years to be exact.

However, he said he did not want to interfere with our regular flu routine so he permitted us to retain Horsethief as our nurse on condition that Horsey did not leave us day or night so we could not have an excuse for getting out of bed.

This developed some complications, as Horsethief is a fellow who likes to do a flock of sleeping. He can sleep as long and as loud as any man that ever wore pajamas. The arrangement was that he was to retire for slumber to a room adjoining our's when his patient dozed off for the night, and there being no bell to arouse him in case of need, we hit on the good old expedient of having him tie a string to his big toe, the other end of the string being placed alongside our sick bed.

The first night we had no occasion to summon Horsethief. Indeed, we slept soundly and awoke without fever and coughing abated to such a degree that the doctor complimented Horsethief on his efficiency as a nurse. The second night we broke slumber athirst for a cooling dram. In the distance we could hear Horsethief going "Haw-a-haw-a-hunk-a-haw-a-haw-a-hunk"—just like that. We gave the string a good tug.

There was a loud crash in the next room as Horsethief fell out of bed. Our alarm over this raised our pulse ten beats. The noise aroused the dogs and they went leaping about in panic. Losing their warmth gave us a chill. Horsethief Burke staggered in and told us he was dreaming he was riding a horse in the Preakness when we yanked the string and winning at a price of 100-t-1.

We got so excited by his story of the finish that it gave us more fever and that is why we still are in bed as you are reading this.

Three Events Scheduled At Brower's

Point-to-Point Event To Be Run Over Five-Mile Course; Stars Will Compete

Local fox-hunters will turn out full force tomorrow for the point-to-point races, to be held by the Potomac Hunt on the farm owned by Mrs. Paul Brower, just off Bradley Hills boulevard on the Seven Locks road in nearby Maryland.

Thre races make up the card, all to be run over a course about 5 miles long that includes more than 20 fences. The country is semi-flagged and permits spectators to see almost the entire course from one vantage point. Horses entered in the races must have been regularly hunted during the current season with the hunt from which they are entered.

The events are: Open race, for members of all hunts, with an additional trophy presented to the first rider to finish who rides at 180 pound; or over; pair race, for teams consisting of two riders, at least one of which shall be a lady; the Dunboyne Challenge Cup, for members of the Potomac Hunt (formerly known as the Riding and Hunt Club) or land-owners in their hunting country.

Entrants will include Capt. and Mrs. John Meade, who won the pair race last year; Thomas T. Mott, jr., who scored an easy victory in the Redland point-to-point last week with Brumanna; Harry Semmes and Dr. Fed Sanderson, joint masters of Potomac; Judy Johnson, who will ride John Richards' dark brown gelding, The Boob, the horse that came in lengths ahead of the field at Redland, only to miss the course and be disqualified; Mrs. Marshall O. Exnicios, Laird Dunlap, and many others.

A disappointment to race followers is the absence of Lieut. Comdr. William J. Lee's Try Me, who won Redland's heavyweight race. Try Me ran a nail in his hoof after last week's race and is now on the disabled list.

Judges at the finish will be District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Maj. Henry Leonard. The first race is called for 2 p. m.

Amateurs Join In 5-League Ball Circuit

Following a meeting held last night, officers of the newly-formed District of Columbia Amateur Baseball Association announced that the circuit at present is composed of five leagues with a total of 25 teams enrolled. The association's books are still open, according to President Vic Gauzza in extending an invitation to all other unlimited leagues in the District to become members.

The association will operate under the contract system which requires all players to sign up for the entire season. President Gauzza explained:

"This plan will stop the old custom of players starting the season with one team and winding up the year by having played with four or five other outfits. Players will be permitted to make but one transfer during the season and that only after having obtained the written consent of his manager."

Officers of the association in addition to President Guzza include: George D. Riley, honorary president; D. R. Yates, first vice president; Mike Sklar, second vice president; W. P. Griffith, secretary, and Bill Fiester, treasurer. Directors include: George L. James, Chris Heurich, jr., G. A. Belanger, H. J. Brosseau and Edward J. Conover.

Teams in the Industrial League are Heurich Brewers, Old Milwaukee Beer, 7-Up, Russell Motors and O'Donnell's Sea Grill.

Commercial League—Pepco, the defending city champions; Gas Light Co., Union Printers and National Savings and Trust Co.

Departmental League—Procurement Division, Maritime Commission, Interior Department, Bureau of Engraving and District of Columbia Commissioners.

Militia League—Fort Myer, Bolling Field, U. S. Receiving Ship, Army Medical Center, St. Elizabeths Hospital and General Accounting Office.

Herald Government League—Veterans Administration, Railway Mailers, Alcohol Administration, Railway Retirement Board and Internal Revenue.

one of the outstanding players in last year's tournament games.

The biggest day of basketball ever booked on a local court is scheduled for Saturday. Eight games will be played in the afternoon with the 90 and 105 pound clubs getting their first taste of tournament competition for the year. The main floor will be divided to use the half courts for the youngsters and there will be two games going each hour from 1 p. m. until 4 p. m.

The basketball committee has announced that 10 cents will be the admission price for these eight games, giving the young rooters of those clubs a chance to cheer their favorites.

Saturday night, the usual four-game program will be on tap. A battle of the Jewish Community Center and Y. M. C. A. Blues in the unlimited class looms as the feature. On the same program, the tournament's second girls' game is booked with Agriculture's lassies meeting the fair basket tossers who are the Highlanders from Georgetown.

Down in Front

With Richards Vidmer

Miami Beach, Fla., March 9.—It is fairly well established, at least among those who know me best, that I have never been very favorably inclined toward the social aspects of bathing, in fact I've been known to be actually intolerant when pressed to spend a day on the beach under the guise of pleasure.

Of course I've never voiced any objections to a quick plunge in the pool after a round of golf, or even a morning dip in the ocean, if the ocean happened to be conveniently handy. But personally a bathtub always has seemed quite adequate and far less complicated.

This business of spending a day on the beach always has struck me as being an utter waste of time to begin with. Generally it is necessary to arise at some strange hour like 9 o'clock in order to get there at all. And when you get there what have you got? Sand. Sand in your pants, sand in your shoes, sand in your food, sand in your hair. On the beach it isn't just a matter of taking the sand or leaving it alone. It goes with the place.

VIDMER

You lie around in it for hours. That's probably because there's nothing else to do. If you try to play bridge, the wind blows the cards away. If you try to play volley ball your feet get burned. Besides volley ball is hardly worth the effort. If you try to swim the waves interfere, although, of course, the confirmed beach-goers consider standing in the water and jumping up and down swimming.

But for the most part, you simply lie on the sand and let the time pass until everybody else is ready to go home again.

Perfect Set-Up

Consequently when it was suggested that I go to the beach here, my first reaction was one of simple scorn, or being pressed, I explained my position in the matter and voiced my objections in no uncertain terms.

"But it's different here," I was told. "Look, there's the ocean right there, you can see it from your window. It won't take you 5 minutes to change and be in the water, of course there's sand; that's to be expected, but you don't have to take it; you can leave it alone here by simply sitting in front of the cabanas. You can lie around in deck chairs and if you really want to swim you can go into the pool."

Chemical Armor

Still, my objections were of no avail and I was talked into going to the beach, and I must confess it was rather pleasant. Of course there were a few minor matters that stirred my scorn, everyone smeared themselves with lotions and salves and greasy concoctions before they ventured forth. This seemed to me very silly and somewhat vain. I fear I smirked a little.

"Better put some on," someone suggested. But I disdainfully shrugged my shoulders and explained that I had spent so much of my life in the great outdoors that I didn't need any lotions to protect me from the sun.

"I never burn," I said. "Only hothouse flowers turn pink and red. I simply turn brown."

Possibly the nicest thing about it was that I didn't feel as though I were marooned on a desert island, as I always had before. There was my room right up there and I was free to leave any time I wanted instead of being anchored for the day, a slave to a lot of beachcombers.

And I concluded my day on the beach, but I'm not going back again. Not today nor tomorrow nor the next day nor ever. I'm going to lie right here very quietly and keep on soaking myself in all these concoctions of oil and grease and salve and powder until this infernal flame that is burning me to blisters subsides.

rell, who's a better catcher than Glenn, and younk Jake Early may be a better catcher this year than either Glenn or Ferrell."

Chief interest in the Nats' camp now attaches to the first ball game of the training season—an intrasquad scheduled for Saturday between the regulars and the Yanigans.

It will be the first opportunity for such alleged pitching sensations as Walter Masterson and Roberto Ortiz to perform under fire, and Harris is impatient to see how they conduct themselves.

Ortiz, Masterson and a third fastballer, Tom Baker, will divide the pitching for the regulars. Because the regulars' batting eyes have not yet sharpened, Harris will equip the Yannigans with a trio of curveball pitchers, probably Bucky Jacobs, Joe Haynes and Kirby Hayes.

"I don't want any of my veterans up there at the plate against the speed of such as Ortiz, Masterson and Baker," said Harris today. "They've only had a few days of batting and they'd be useless against fast-ball pitching. Besides, they might get hurt."

Today the Nats performed chiefly for a battery of newsreel cameramen who virtually superintended the workout. Fifty-one players were in uniform, the largest number ever assembled in the history of the Washington club.

The Cubans on the Washington team will be a well-publicized lot. A major share of the newsreel cameras' clicking was directed at Ortiz, Estalella and Monteagudo, with Alex Alexandra lending a Central American flavor to the scene.

Two D.C. Fives Are Winners At Lexington

at the quarter, but during the second period scored only twice, two foul shots by Franny Counselman. Richmond's Harry Parrish, a classy forward, scored 4 points and logan 1 to knot the count at 8-8 at the half.

Four of the seven points scored in the third period, were Gonzaga's, giving it a 12-11 advantage. With the count at 16-15 in his team's favor midway of the last eight minutes, Lane O'Donnell rang up a snowbird for Gonzaga, and the lead lasted despite a fancy circus shot by Logan as the game ended.

Parrish, of Richmond, was best of the two men who contributed points to the Augusta Academy's total. He sank 13, while Fred Rice paced Gonzaga with 8. Buddy O'Brien, Rice and Bob Mulvihill starred in the upsetting victory of the Washington five over a team which had compiled a record of 15 triumphs in 20 games.

Despite the former high school stars who sprinkled the lineup of Devitt Prep, it took the worst beating administered in the afternoon round. With the competent shooting Lamar Murphy, Monroe center, paving the way, the team opened up with a barrage of points in the first period and kept firing throughout.

Murphy, for two years high point man in the tourney, registered 13 points for individual honors, while Connolly, Holland and Crawford led Devitt's inept attack with 4 points apiece.

Referee, Boxer, Questioned In Fight Death

Boxer

"Loffin was aggressive throughout the entire bout and lost only because Tapp landed a few more punches. The only thing resembling a hard punch received by him was a right hand uppercut delivered early in the third round, and it did not stagger him. Tapp, as a matter of fact, took the hardest punch of the bout in the second round—another uppercut that staggered him. It was a close bout, one that could have gone either way. I didn't see any punches which would account for serious injury to either boy, and I can't understand what caused Loffin's collapse."

E. Joseph Aronoff, chairman of the District A. A. U. registration committee, and a judge at the bouts, also was dumbfounded to learn of the boy's death.

"I watched every fighter very closely in all the bouts, and I saw no punch landed by either Tapp or Loffin that could have caused a serious injury. A physician was present at the ringside, in accordance with the District boxing regulations, but he left just before Loffin collapsed."

William Mulligan, chairman of the A. A. U. boxing committee in charge of the tournament, and a long acquaintance of the dead youth, was in the dressing room when the two boys came in after the bout.

"I unlaced Loffin's gloves," he said, "and congratulated him on his fine performance. Tapp was standing at his side, telling him how much better he was than the boxer he met in a recent intercity tournament. Loffin stepped into the shower bath and later sat down on a bench. We didn't know of anything unusual until he suddenly slumped forward, unconscious. An ambulance was called immediately and he was removed to the hospital without delay."

Mulligan and other members of the committee last night thought there would be no interruption in the tournament schedule, which calls for bouts next Wednesday, and for two following weeks.

Loffin was well known in Washington amateur boxing circles, having launched his career at the Northeast Boys Club several years ago, fighting under the name of Orville Lyons. He and Tapp were old acquaintances as well as opponents, having met twice before in the ring. Tapp won both decisions and Loffin was eager to avenge those defeats. Loffin was a 90-pounder at the Northeast Club, and appeared only in inter-club bouts.

This year's amateur tournament was designed to guard against similar accidents, and officials segregated all inexperienced boxers in a novice class, while the more experienced youths were permitted to compete in the senior class. Loffin, a good boxer although not an unusually hard puncher, was given a good chance of winning the championship in his division.

Security Act Only a Start, Linton Says

Larger Pensions Are Needed for Elderly Workers, He Declares

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Governmental arrangement for old-age security should be viewed as a program for social welfare rather than a Nation-wide savings plan, M. A. Linton, president, Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co., said last night at the annual dinner of District of Columbia Chapter, Chartered Life Underwriters, at the Carlton Hotel. Mr. Linton, appointed a member of the Social Security Advisory Council by the United States Senate, is a former president of the Actuarial Society of America, and a former chairman of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau.

Addressing the meeting, at which Dwight T. Scott, president of the chapter, presided, Mr. Linton reminded that although provisions of the social security act are valuable for having begun an attempt to provide old-age income for the country's workers, they can hardly be made to work effectively in their present form, adding that unless changes are made providing satisfactory old-age incomes for a larger segment of the population, fantastic plans must necessarily increase in strength and popular acceptance.

"An immediate necessity," the speaker said, "is that larger pensions be paid to workers now about to enter into retirement. Under the present plan far too many workers who have contributed to the fund will receive less than persons receiving old-age assistance through the noncontributory plan supported jointly by the State and Federal Government.

60 Per Cent Coverage

"Furthermore," he explained, "it is estimated that only 60 per cent of the working population is effectively covered under the present provisions of the act. If the act is to work, domestic and farm employes should be included in the system as soon as a practicable plan can be developed. Seamen, employes of national banks and employes of philanthropic organizations should certainly not be debarred.

"Of paramount importance," he emphasized, "is the elimination of the present top-heavy reserve plan which calls for present payments far in excess of current needs in order to build up a gigantic reserve fund to furnish interest to be used to pay pensions many years hence. Although some small reserve is desirable, it should be the aim to collect only sufficient revenue through taxes as will provide comfortably for current pensions. Such funds should be administered by trustees rather than lumped in the general funds of the Treasury. Under the present plan, the reserve fund is such in name only and actually consists of newly created debt of the Federal Government and does not represent a transfer to the reserve account of previously existing debt."

Admitting that difference of opinion is bound to develop with reference to the increase of 50 per cent schedule to be made at the beginning of next year in the pay roll taxes, Mr. Linton questioned: "With Government funds approaching a billion and a half in the reserve fund, why should the pay roll taxes be increased from $600,000,000 to $900,000,000 a year unless the cur-

Break in Coppers Halts Rise in Prices
New Highs Reached in Earlier Dealings
Brazilian Issues Jump in Bond Market

New York, March 9.—Stocks started as strong as Wall Street had anticipated today and in the first hour appeared about to pass the 1939 market highs on a progressive increase in sales volume. During the morning, however, an item appeared on the tickers relating Chilean proposals for a graduated tax on copper metal exports. Wide breaks in some of the metal shares followed. Then the in-and-out crowd decided to cash in on gains of the preceding session and while outside buying continued to flow irregularity prevailed for the rest of the day. The close was above the session's lows with all divisions except the coppers, rails, aviations and steels showing small advances.

The 100 key stocks and components, the 30 rails and 70 industrials were at new highs for the move in early dealings. The close was 0.82 point up with sales of 1,357,865 shares, the largest since January 26, when the turnover was 1,535,890 shares. The utilities, 5 store, 5 food and 25 curb stock groups were at new highs.

Coppers Active

The flurry in coppers placed Anaconda and Kennecott, companies with important Chilean properties, at the top of the active list with net losses of 2⅝ and 3 points, respectively. Turnover for the former was 66,900 shares and for the latter, 51,600 shares. The seven coppers included in the market averages compilation accounted for 144,700 shares, or 10.7 per cent of total big board sales.

The shares most severely affected were down as much as 10 per cent of market value, based on Wednesday's close, at the lows for the session. Support developed when the far-from-definite nature of the Santiago reports was emphasized. The proposal, passed by the lower House by a slim margin, provides for a graduated tax on export copper beginning at a price above 6 cents a pound. Its passage by the Senate of Chile was considered, in copper circles, as unlikely. An inconsistency of the proposed law is that under existing statute, copper tax revenues are strictly allocated to external debt payments, whereas the new tax would be diverted to reconstruction of areas affected by the recent earthquake. While authorities on copper doubted it will pass the Chilean Senate, there was general admission that if passed, the tax would be blighting to the Chilean copper industry which is dominated by American enterprise.

U. S. Steel Firm

Steel common opened on 2,000 shares at 65⅜, up ⅜, closing at that level. Bethlehem, which obtained an order for two warships during the day and which was described optimistically by Charles M. Schwab, chairman, on his return from Europe, was down ½ point. America Smelting and Kennecott were among other issues to start the session on 2,000-share blocks or better, the former showing an overnight gain of ¼ and the latter ½ on improvement in export copper prices on Eurpoean cartel sales and before the Chilean news started metals into reverse. Automobile issues were prominent, with several companies reporting favorably on both sales and production. Warner Pictures was an active feature, its ⅝ point gain establishing a last price of 6⅜.

Defaulted Latin-American dollar bonds sprang into unwonted activity in a generally firm listed market today. Brazilian obligations soared on the Washington announcement of credits to Brazil and an undertaking to resume service on an undisclosed basis by midyear. Other Latin-American issues joined the parade to better levels, and the advances ranged from fractions to more than 6 points. Speculative domestic bonds were a little higher, and the best rated investment issues continued their slow improvement. Turnover in all bonds was $11,430,000, making the session the most active so far this year.

Trading was especially heavy in four issues of direct Brazilian government obligations, more than 700 of these bonds being turned over at figures to 3½ points higher than the previous close. Brazilian state and municipal bonds advanced 1 to 6¼ points. Peruvian and Chilean bonds were better, while others held around former levels. The German group was firm. Polish and Italian bonds advanced in the medium priced interest paying group. Australians were sharply better in the high grade group, and some buying also was noted in Canadian and Scandinavian bonds.

Rail Issues Advance

In the domestic corporate division, secondary rail liens developed further strength, with the advances ranging from fractions to more than 4 points. Borderline rails also were in demand, but the default issues dragged. Holding company bonds were uncertain, but most industrial convertibles continued to improve. Amusement and communications bonds advanced breezily, but the local traction section remained dull.

United States Treasury securities were again prominent in the high grade investment section, with gains to 13-32 point. Another long list of fresh highs appeared in this group. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations were irregular, owing to rumors that fresh agency financing soon may develop. Best rated corporate liens were well maintained.

The selling side attracted local operators, the South and foreign interests for a time after the opening, but when trade support came in volume the tide turned.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, March 9.—Stock prices continued their upward trend today, encouraged by overnight firmness in Wall street and the issuance of several good dividend and earnings reports by larger companies. Chinese liens advancing 4 points. Transatlantics held steady.

Paris—The bourse closed with an irregular tone today. Rentes lost 25 to 65 centimes. Bank of France was down 55 francs and Suez Canal reacted 100 francs. Royal Dutch finished about 50 francs higher.

Liverpool—Cotton futures today declined 4 to 8 points in sympathy with lower American prices and uncertainly regarding release of loan cotton. Wheat futures closed ½d to ⅝d lower with outside support lacking. Liquidation by March longs was due to lower Canadian and Australian offers.

Norfolk&West. Operating Net Half of 1937

$21,722,288 in 1938 Is $10,992,993 Less Than Previous Year

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, March 9.—The net railway operating income of the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. for 1938 was $21,722,288, or a decrease of $10,992,993 from the 1937 figure. President W. J. Jenks reported today to stockholders. Gross operating revenues decreased $17,698,561, or 18.66 per cent under 1937, the report said, "due to the depressed condition of business, particularly in the first half of the year, which showed a decrease of $15,718,046, or 32.71 per cent, while the second six months showed a decrease of 4.23 per cent."

Income balance, after reduction from net income of the regular adjustment preferred stock dividend, decreased $11,782,402, or 38.16 per cent. Dividends of $1 per share quarterly, a total of $4 per share, or $916,500, were paid upon the adjustment preferred stock. Boston Wool Market

Boston, March 9 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Business was very dreary today on the Boston wool market. Scattered sales of mostly small volume were closed at irregular prices. Graded half-blood territory wools in lots containing staple and French combing lengths together brought mostly 66 to 68 cents, scoured basis. Combing three-eighths territory wools were receiving a few inquiries and occasionally moderate quantities moved at 50 to 62 cents, scoured basis, mostly on the low side of the range.

"Private Lives" Gives Low-Down on Robert H. Jackson—This Sunday

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

E. A. Mason, tournament director, is endeavoring to anticipate the problems prospective changes in the scoring will bring about by running test games at the Kew Garden Inn, Kew Gardens.

Among the changes being tried out by Mason in is the abandonment of the vulnerability feature. Concerning it he says:

"There may be some justification for vulnerability in rubber bridge, although I doubt it. But certainly there is no excuse for it in tournament play. In that game players have done nothing to earn vulnerability and the feature merely adds a touch of the bizarre without requiring great exercise of skill."

He is also testing the scoring of suit values proposed by the Association of American Playing Card Manufacturers, 30 points a trick for each of the four suits, 40 points a trick for no trump. He has reduced the small-slam bonus from 500 not vulnerable and 700 points vulnerable to 150 points and the grand slam from 1,000 not vulnerable, 1,500 vulnerable, to 200 points. This drop, which would radically affect rubber-bridge bidding at duplicate, serves merely to eliminate silly sacrifices. Mason explains it this way:

"As the present score stands it is possible for the defending team to take an intentional set of three tricks aganist a vulnerable game. They can even take a seven-trick set against a vulnerable slam. Nobody can tell me that a player knows he is going down only seven tricks and not eight. When a hand is as shabby as that it is a matter of speculation rather than judgment.

"In the scoring we are using in our duplicate games the game bonus is 300 points, part score 50 points and penalties just the same as the non-vulnerable penalties today."

The abandonment of the vulnerability feature would take much of the profit out of sacrifice bids. Take today's hand as an example. Under the present scoring system, East and West, by bidding five diamonds over four hearts, lose 200 points, deducting the 100 points for honors, as against the 620 points they would lose theoretically if they allowed North and South to play the hand at four hearts. At duplicate with match point scoring, the 100 points for honors would not be deducted, but even 300 points is a fine save.

Under the proposed scoring, with the value of the game only 420 points, the value of the save at duplicate, while still profitable, is considerably reduced—300 points as opposed to 420, rather than 300 points as opposed to 620.

While this would not change the efficacy of making a sacrifice bid under the circumstances presented by today's hand, it would mean that East and West would have to be much surer that the set would be held to two rather than three tricks. The fear of being set three—500 points—instead of two, would keep many teams from taking the save.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

A stenographer in one of the big Triangle buildings tells how that nightmare of a stenographer's life—overtime—is created by the boss: she was handed, near closing time, a great sheaf of letters to get out at once. These she typed off. But when the boss saw them, he said, no, you used a 10-point indentation here and I prefer a 7-point indentation. It's just a slight idiosyncracy on my part. Ha, Ha. So, in the dimming afternoon, with everyone else gone from the place, the letters were typed off, 7-point indentation.

THE most desirable of all immediate Federal plums, the assignment to go to the New York World's Fair and attend the Federal Government's exhibits, doesn't seem promising. The National Emergency Council has the jobs pretty well sewed up, not necessarily for its own people but at least for people of its own choosing. One plan is to have Government students in New York schools and universities work at the exhibits. This, it is reasoned, would reduce the per diem expenses since the students would be in New York, anyway, with living accomodations. But it is certain that many of the departments here will send one or two to the Fair, which opens April 30.

THERE is a growing feeling among certain members of the Council of Personnel Administration that in-service training, as harked about in the executive orders of June 24, should apply with as much emphasis to the supervisors as to the underlings. These sources think that the need of training in that upper quarter has equal imperativeness and with the training of the so-called clerks. And, incidentally, the tentative plan for in-service training as developed by the Civil Service Commission is elaborate and would call for not a small expenditure of money.

The question is whether an economy-minded Congress will look on in-service training as a new and unnecessary fol-de-rol that might be had if it doesn't cost anything. The departments and agencies can establish their individual training courses at small cost to anybody. The expense would occur in the proposed co-ordinating by the C. S. C. of these several systems. And without the co-ordination, in-service training would remain what it has been, a haphazard pattern of courses that are not consistently effective.

AMERICA'S several varieties of freedom aren't overlooked by Germans in the United States. This letter has come from a German now living in Hollywood, Calif., to the office of education, Interior Department: "The undersigned, an immigrant who has enjoyed the freedom of our United States for 40 years, and raised children and grandchildren here in sunny California, wishes to express his heartiest thanks for the C. B. S. broadcast, "Americans All—Immigrants All."

AGRICULTURE Department employes are going in for the news in the headlines and will study the implications in a current affairs group, which grew out of a more sprightly-motivated luncheon club. This afternoon at 4:30 the group will discuss "Neutrality," in room 4649 of the South Building. Dr. Esther O. Brunauer, director of international education in the American Association of University Women, will speak. She will dwell on neutrality legislation, a hot topic. Dr. Dorothy Brady, economist in the Bureau of Home Economics, is the chairman.

THE Government radio men who go to the lonely stations, particularly in the West, to signal the mail and commercial planes, complain of the isolation, saying they nearly go crazy when weeks pass with no one to talk with but the other operator on duty. It becomes so that each man can almost foretell a week in advance what the other will be saying in any given circumstance or time. They say Admiral Byrd was right in going out alone.

WANTED: An assistant communications operator (air navigation), $1,620, for filling the position designated junior radio operator, Civil Aeronautics Authority. Applicants must have experience as commercial radio operator on board ship or at a wireless communication station. The age limits are 18 and 50. It is a C. S. open competitive examination.

Bob Burns Says—

I see there's a fella from Omaha made a trip to Washington, D. C., an' put two hundred and thirty dollars in a pillow case at the hotel. He slept on the pillow all night, then got up an' checked out without rememberin' the dough. When he thought of it, some time later, he rushed back to the hotel an' found that his pillow case had gone to the laundry. It looked like "good-by" to his roll of bills but the bozo was lucky. His two-hundred-and-thirty-dollar wad was located, still wrapped in the case, all freshly laundered!

Now this beats anythin' I ever heard of. Boys from the country usually git cleaned out by city slickers. But this man is the first visitor to a big city who ever got a cleanin' without being' cleaned!

Bedtime Story

Longbill Complains

There's seldom anything to gain
By doing naught but just complain.
—Old Mother Nature.

The Black Shadows had come out from the Purple Hills, hurried across the Green Meadows and were now stealing through the little swamp through which flows the Laughing Brook into the Smiling Pool. It was the time of day that certain people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest like best. Bobby Coon is one of these. Jimmy Skunk is another. And of course there are Hooty the Owl and his cousins, not to mention Yowler the Bobcat. And there are others. It is surprising how many people prefer night to day, and do their sleeping while jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun is making his daily journey through the blue, blue sky.

The time that most of these folk like best is the shadowy time when night is meeting day, and again in the dawn when day is meeting night. It is in the in-between hours that the night folk like best to be abroad always excepting those nights when moonlight makes beautifully dusky the Green Forest all the night through. Then the hunters are active until the Black Shadows hurry back to the Purple Hills.

In the soft twilight Bobby Coon prowled through the little swamp. Bobby loves swamps, especially swamps where there are plenty of trees of good size. He had followed along the banks of the Laughing Brook from the Green Forest where in a hollow tree he had spent the day. There was a sharp chill in the air. Jack Frost still returned at night. At least he did some nights.

"Ha!" exclaimed Bobby rather under his breath. He had stopped to examine several small holes in the soft earth, such holes as you might make by thrusting a small pencil into soft ground. Then Bobby looked carefully all about him. "So Longbill is back. He must have been here this afternoon," said he.

There was a sudden whir of wings and from almost beneath Bobby's nose, so close that he was startled, a bird with a long bill and a funny short tail shot up, flew a little way and dropped back to the ground only a short distance from Bobby Coon, but far enough for safety. It was Longbill the Woodcock.

"If I had seen you——" began Bobby.

"Why didn't you? I was right there in front of you in plain sight," interrupted Longbill.

Bobby ground his teeth. "I'll catch you some day," he declared.

"Not until you make better use of your eyes than you ever have yet," taunted Longbill.

"You are just lucky," grumbled Bobby Coon.

"In what way am I lucky? If you asked me I'm unlucky," replied Longbill.

"Old Mother Nature has given you a coat that makes you look exactly like the brown leaves and sticks around you so that anybody coming along is likely to almost step on you before seeing you. You don't even have to hide behind of under anything to be unseen, and if that isn't being lucky I don't know what is. Unlucky, indeed. You're the luckiest fellow I know," retorted Bobby Coon.

Bobby stared at the ground. "What the matter with it?" he demanded.

"It's beginning to freeze. Jack Frost is making it hard," complained Longbill.

"What of it?" asked Bobby.

"What of it? How am I going to get a living with the ground so hard I can't bore into it? Tell me that Bobby Coon!" cried Longbill. "I eat worms and the worms are in the ground. If I can't bore them I can't get them. I'm likely to starve. Jack Frost has no business to be around now."

"Perhaps you had no business to come back so early," suggested Bobby Coon.

France Hears Nazis Plan to Take Holland

Switzerland Also On Conquest List, Say Newspapers

By John Elliott.
Special Cable to The Post.

Paris, March 9.—A report that Chancellor Hitler was planning his "lightning blow" for 1939, the military seizure of Holland and possibly Switzerland, created serious uneasiness in Paris today.

The object of Hitler's coup is said to be the holding of these countries as pawns until Britain and France have complied with the wishes of Germany and Italy for a redistribution of colonial territories.

This story is published by one of the most responsible Paris newspapers—Le Journal des Debats,—which has enjoyed for years a reputation as a serious daily of high literary standing. The article appears under the signature of Pierre Bernus its diplomatic correspondent.

French Make Inquiries

The report of Hitler's pending attack was taken seriously enough in French diplomatic circles to be the subject of inquiries made by Robert Coulondre, French Ambassador in Berlin, at the Wilhelmstrasse a few days ago.

According to "Le Temps" tonight, Ernest von Weizsaecker, secretary of state of the German foreign office, told the French Ambassador that "these rumors have no foundation."

Nevertheless, the same newspaper in its financial columns informed its readers this report had a very disturbing effect on the Paris Bourse today.

The "Debats" article said Hitler discussed his "1939 plan of action" with a group of high officers of the German army as long ago as last December.

The Fuehrer is said to have informed them that the time was approaching for "a decisive operation which would break like a thunderbolt and which would impose the German will on the western powers."

Hitler, according to this story, fixed the end of the Spanish civil war as the date for this action. At the same moment that Premier Mussolini officially formulated his Mediterranean demands, the Fuehrer would support him in a speech in which he would present his own claims in the form of an ultimatum.

Minor Moves Before

But this offensive was to be preceded by minor moves by the totalitarian states, such as the occupation of Hainan, the reinforcement of the Italian troops in Lybia and the recrudescence of native agitation in Palestine and Syria, designed to distract and wear down the western democracies.

The object of the surprise attack against Holland, and perhaps Switzerland, too, according to Le Journal des Debats, would be "the seizure of territorial gauges.

"Giving as a pretext that it was only a provisional occupation and not a conquest, Germany would enumerate her demands and would put France and Great Britain in the position of having to give her satisfaction. If the western powers yielded or even if they consented under one form or another to enter into negotiations, they would soon see other demands arising, as the Reich would then have proof that it could do anything."

Reich Claims Area In Antarctic Now Held by Norway

Berlin, March 9 (I. N. S.).—Germany tonight laid claim to the discovery of 135,000 square miles of territory on the immense Antarctic continent.

The announcement presaged a possible territorial controversy with Norway, which previously claimed discovery of the region.

The land was declared in Berlin to have been discovered by the Antarctic expedition of the airplane-catapulting ship Schwabenland, under command of the German explorer, Capt. Ritscher.

Location of the territory was given as between the longitudinal lines of 5 west and 15 east, extending inland southward to approximately latitude 75.

A Norwegian decree of January 14 claimed sovereignty over an area which includes the territory now claimed by the Reich.

First Baptist Church Observes 137th Anniversary

Harris & Ewing.

Baptists Hear Moral Laxity Assailed

Youth Leader Speaks On Anniversary; Envoy From Japan Applauded

Before any program of character education can have any real value, Government and business must improve their ethical foundations, Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission and president-elect of the University of Texas, said last night at First Baptist Church.

His address was delivered at the church's 137th anniversary banquet, highlighted by the presence of the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Kensuke Horinouchi, members of the Baptist faith.

Bringing greetings to the more than 350 guests, who gave the distinguished couple a tremendous ovation, the ambassador said the friendliness of Christians here had made a deep impression upon them.

"Mother" Church Here

Earlier in the program, Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Union, and a former pastor of the First Baptist Church, presented a brief historical sketch of the congregation. He pointed out its first services were held in 1802 in the old Treasury Building.

Explaining that First Baptist was the "mother" church of 135 colored and 30 white Baptist churches in Washington, Dr. Weaver said that "it should take the lead in interpreting the meaning and purpose of Baptistry in the Nation's Capital."

Among the guests was R. Walton Moore, Counsellor of the State Department, whose grandfather, the Rev. Jeremiah Moore, preached the first sermon to a group of five Baptists. Other guests of honor were the pastor of the First Baptist Church and Mrs. Edward Hughes Pruden; Elgin Smith, moderator, who served as toastmaster; Mrs. Rufus W. Weaver, Representative and Mrs. Robertson, Representative and Mrs. Harold D. Cooley, and Dr. M. W. M. Splawn, former president of the University of Texas.

Mrs. Porter There

Also present were E. Hilton Jackson, president of the board of trustees; Mrs. Samuel Judson Porter, widow of a former pastor; Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Robertson.

Also participating in the program were Mrs. Jordan Bentley and her son, Jordan, jr., both of whom sang. The Rev. M. W. Royall gave the invocation.

"We must strive to restore the moral and ethical foundations of our society," Dr. Rainey declared. "To command the respect and loyalty of youth all our institutions must more nearly conform to the high moral concepts of youth, and we must see that social and political rewards conform to these standards."

Declaring that youth expects to find high qualities among their leaders in government and industry, Dr. Rainey said "their failure to find these qualities in their leaders is the primary cause of cynicism and radicalism among youth."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation in the Library of Congress presents Adolf Busch and Rudolf Serkin Thursday night in a recital of music for violin and piano. Program: Sonata in D minor, Op. 108 (Brahms), Sonata in D major, K 306 (Mozart), Sonata in A major, Op. 47 (Beethoven).

Coolidge Auditorium could not accommodate all the music-lovers who flocked to the Library of Congress last evening to hear the last of the three sonata recitals by Adolf Busch and Rudolf Serkin. Those foresighted persons who had secured their places long in advance and those fortunate tardy ones who crowded the anteroom constituted an audience so spell-bound and so considerate of the players' concentration as to refrain from applause between the movements of the sonatas. And how difficult that restraint had been was evident in the ovations that burst forth at the end of each work.

The remarkable unanimity of these two musicians in their rhythmic flexibility, their dynamic shading and their emotional variability is the principal source of one's profound satisfaction with their collaborative artistry. Whatever hours of rehearsal and discussion have been involved in the preparation, the effect is that of perfect consentience on every detail of interpretation. They play with an agreement that amounts to a temporary fusion of personalities.

Their offerings at this final appearance were all familiar compositions, but the intensity of the performance made them sound fresh and glowing as though they were being disclosed for the first time. The program began with the D minor sonata of Brahms, rich in ideational content and radiant with romantic fervor. This was followed by the pellucid D major sonata which Mozart wrote in his twenty-second year—that eventful year of the last journey to Paris and the death of his mother who had accompanied him to France.

The parting work was Beethoven's A major sonata, the so-called "Kreutzer," which just falls short of being a masterpiece. It begins on a scale of emotional urgency and technical splendor unmatched in any other work of its kind, but the emotional temperature drops in the second movement where one's attention is held not so much by the power of inspiration as by the executive grace and beauty of the variation, and the concluding tarantella is a rhythmic feat that bears no spiritual relation to the rest of the work. In fact, it was originally the finale of the sonata in A flat, Opus 30.

The sonata suffers from a dichotomy which prevents it from being an integral whole. The difference in emotional tension between the beginning and the end makes one feel that a tragedy has turned into a comedy, that Paolo and Francesca have been replaced by Figaro and Susanna.

There is a practical explanation for this lack of uniformity in the texture of the sonata. It was written for the mulatto violinist, George Augustus Polgreen Bridgetower, who had come to Veinna from England with letters of recommendation that led to a friendship with Beethoven, and it was written in haste to fill a promise that Beethoven made to aid the newcomer in a concert. Ries relates that Beethoven summoned him at 4:30 in the morning of the concert day and asked him to copy the violin part of the first allegro quickly.

The piano part was merely sketched, and in the performance that day Beethoven played from the fragmentary notations, while Bridgetower had to play the second movement from the manuscript because there had not been time to copy it. Contemporary reports say that the first performance was received with laughter at the extravagant manner of the violinist. Bridgetower lived to be nearly 80, dying in London in 1860, and in his later years he told Thirlwell that the sonata had carried a dedication to him, but that before he left Vienna he had a quarrel with Beethoven, who re-dedicated the work to Kreutzer.

Stricter Gambling Laws Indorsed In Prince Georges

The Prince Georges County Municipal Association last night indorsed legislation passed by the Maryland Legislature to tighten gambling laws in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties.

Meeting in Mount Rainier Town Hall, the association also heard charges by Bird H. Dolby, president, that the Legislature "seems to be planning to get rid of incorporated towns."

Three pending bills would vest in the County Commissioners important powers now exercised by towns, he said.

The measures are the justice of the peace reorganization bill, which Dolby said would virtually eliminate town police forces; the Washington suburban sanitary commission bill, providing for construction of an incinerator and collection of refuse by the commission, and a bill to empower the County Commissioners to provide street improvements, lighting and other public services to unincorporated communities.

Capt. Kerr's Burial Today In Arlington

Was Descendant Of Prominent Maryland Settlers

Services for Capt. Leeds Clayborne Kerr, 83-year-old retired naval officer and descendant of prominent Maryland colonial settlers, who died Tuesday at the Naval Hospital, will be held at 11 a. m. today in Fort Myer Chapel.

Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Born in Baltimore, Capt. Kerr was a son of former Representative and Mrs. John Leeds Kerr and a direct descendant of Col. Trench Tilghman, aide de camp to George Washington, and John Bozman, first Maryland historian.

His grandfather was John Leeds Kerr, United States Senator from Maryland.

The Kerr family has been identified with Baltimore and Washington since the cities were founded, and with Virginia and Maryland since the first quarter of the seventeenth century.

Wye House, Perry Hall, Radcliffe Manor and Foxley Hall on the Eastern Shore are among the ancestral seats of the family connections still standing.

Capt. Kerr was appointed assistant paymaster to the Navy in 1880 and had served on the ships Wyoming, Pawnee, Dolphin, Alert, Independence, Concord, Yorktown, Iowa, Minneapolis and Philadelphia.

He had been stationed in Washington from 1905 to 1907, as purchasing paymaster in the Navy Yard. While here he was promoted to general inspector of the pay corps and after special assignments retired on his own application in 1914.

Other shore duties included posts at Mare Island, San Francisco, Newport, Brooklyn and Baltimore.

He was recalled from retirement in 1917, but served only several months in the New London, Conn., area, before again leaving the service.

Surviving is a brother, Halbert S. Kerr, of Salt Lake City.

Dr. Payette Dies; Skin Specialist Here 62 Years

Dr. George N. Payette, father of John J. Payette, general zone manager for the Warner Bros. film interests in this region, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital of a streptococcus infection. He was ill less than two weeks.

PAYETTE

A retired skin specialist, Dr. Payette was 79. A native of Woonsocket, R. I., he had lived in the District for 62 years.

Besides his son, John, he leaves another son, George N. Payette, jr., of Hagerstown, Md., and two daughters, Mrs. George A. Degnan, of Washington, and Mrs. William L. Schwalm, of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., also 11 grandchildren.

Dr. Payette was a member of Holy Name Society.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at Dr. Payette's home, 1615 Allison street northwest, followed by solemn high requiem mass at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Sixteenth street and Park road. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Rabbi Wise Holds Fear, Not Courage, Grips Britain

New York, March 9 (AP).—Fresh from the London Palestine conference, Rabbi Stephen Wise tonight declared "fear took the place of courage" to inspire the British suggestion of Arab domination of the Holyland.

He said after he arrived on the Queen Mary, which brought about 900 German refugees:

"Not that England, government or people, shares the spirit of Hitlerism, but, throughout the conference we could not fail to feel that decisions might be taken in a world paralyzed by the spectre of the dictator countries. Courage seems to have ceased to rule the heart of man. Fear has taken its place everywhere, and everywhere, alas, includes Downing Street and Whitehall."

The opinion will be contained in the final instructions to the jury tomorrow before it decides the guilt or innocence of Mikhail Gorin, Soviet travel agent, his wife, Natasha, and Hafis Salich. Gorin and Salich, Russian-born former naval intelligence attache at San Pedro, are charged with two counts of espionage and one of conspiracy; Mrs. Gorin is accused of conspiracy.
